Delay Action Until Dec. 2

Arlington Heights package liquor dealers, singly and as a group, expressed their objection Monday to a recommendation that the village board expand the local quota of package liquor licenses from seven to eight.

Action on the recommendation was deferred to the next regular meeting to allow time for study of new evidence.

The objection came up predictably when chairman Jack Walsh of the board's public health and safety committee presented the body's report, calling for an eighth "B" class license as one of a number of things.

Stephen Jurco, attorney representing five village liquor store or agency proprietors, had asked to be heard on the matter. Nick Barkulis, proprietor of Elms Liquor Land, had also written to the village manager requesting placement on the agenda.

THE REPORT was read as the first matter under old business before the board, Jurco appeared to request that the dealers be allowed to present evidence on the matter as interested parties before a decision was reached, and a hearing was granted then and there.

Jurco asked that the matter be deferred to a separate hearing date to give him time to prepare data in support of his case, but Village Pres. John G. Woods answered, "Why don't you go ahead and swear witnesses?"

Jurco did, and the ensuing discussion consumed about two hours and forced continuation of the meeting to tonight, Thursday, with more than half of the agenda remaining.

THE REPORT which started the stir recommended two things beside the immediate increase in the quota of "B" licenses by one:

That future changes in the number of "B" licenses be guided by a ratio of 4,000-5,000 population for every license. The present figure is 5,210, which would be reduced to 4,562 if another license were granted as recommended.

Also, that in the future additional consideration be given by the liquor commissioner (Woods) in issuing licenses to their geographical location in the village.

The report quoted figures from other suburban villages indicating a variance in licenses (for those offering them at all) from one for each 2,240 people to one for each 6,288, and also quoted figures for other types of licenses, promising recommendations on the others later.

JURCO DREW from liquor store owner in testimony several unanimous opinions. The dealers contended that another store in the downtown area would burden

Piqued at Police, Heaves Trash Can

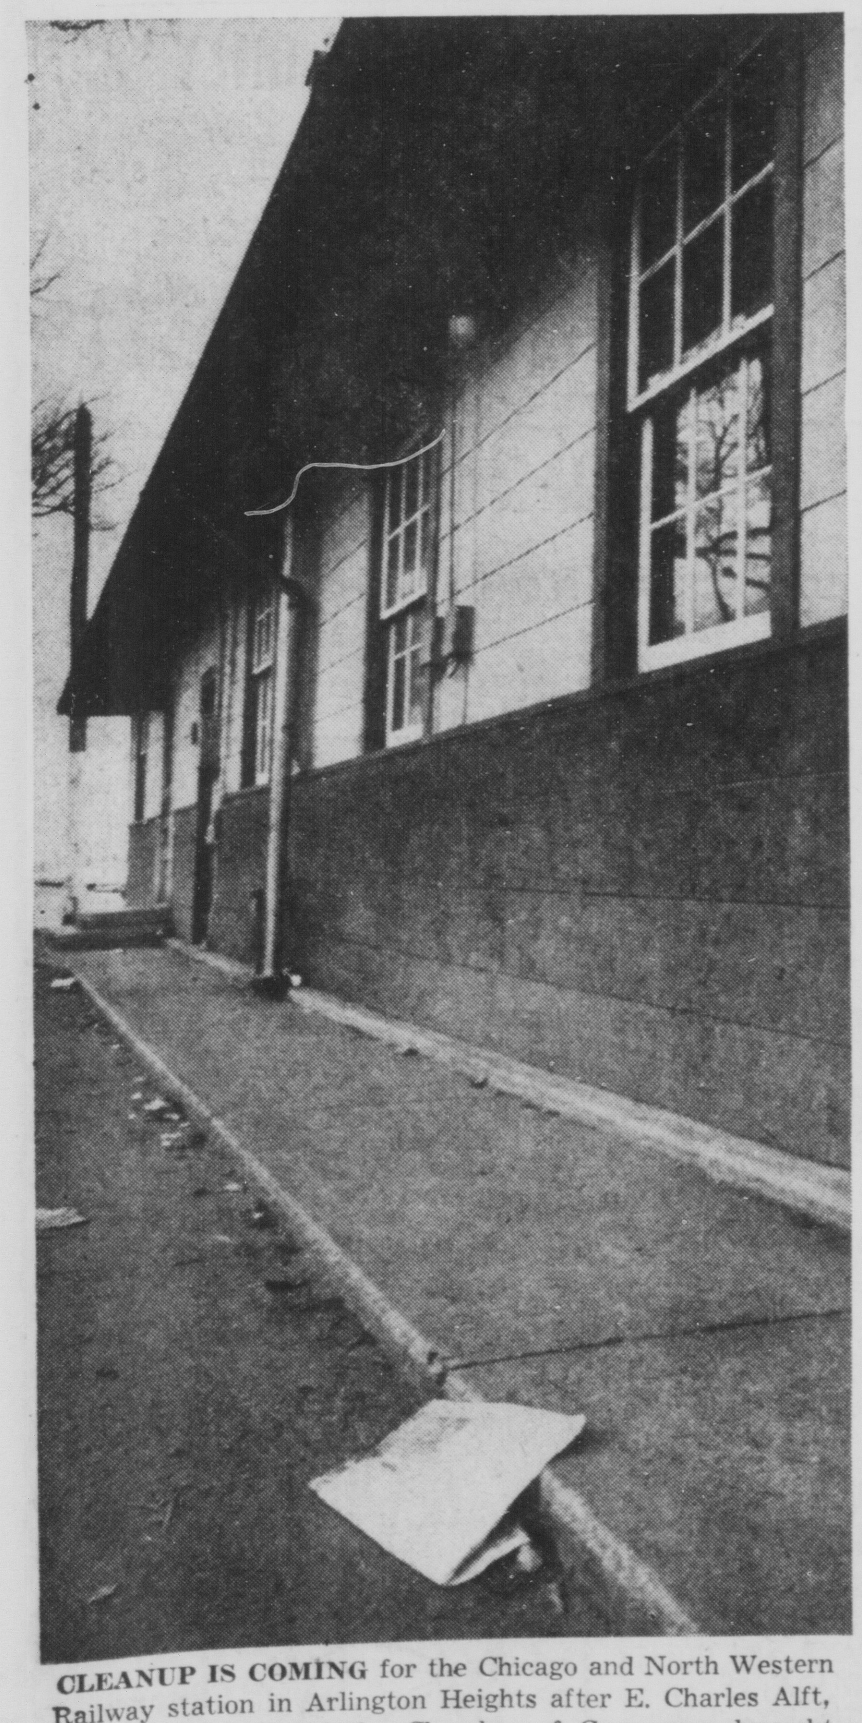
James Harry Griffith, 3 E. Hawthorne, was subdued by police and arrested on three charges Sunday night after heaving a trash can atop the hood of a parked squad car.

Griffith is scheduled to appear Dec. 18 in police magistrate court to answer charges of public intoxication, use of obscenity, and damage to village property—all under local ordinances.

THE INCIDENT occurred shortly after 9 p. m. at the intersection of Campbell and Dunton in the village.

According to the police report, two officers were in the Countryside Inn Restaurant when Griffith began using loud profanity and, as he was paying his bill, repeated, "I hate cops!" several times.

HE THEN LEFT the restaurant, according to the report, and picked up a public waste container and threw it on the hood of the squad car, parked along Campbell Street at the intersection.



CLEANUP IS COMING for the Chicago and North Western Railway station in Arlington Heights after E. Charles Alft, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, brought village and chamber pleas to the attention of railroad officials. H. A. Lenske, director of commuter and passenger services, promises renovation early next year under 1964 budget.

Drilling Bid Low and Slow

Bids were received Monday by the Arlington Heights village board for drilling of a new village well, but action was deferred upon discovery that the low bidder had included 110 more days for completion of the job than the next man.

The board will also question Consoer, Townsend and Associates, consulting engineers for the village, on apparent discrepancies in the cost of seemingly standard items included in the bids.

The two drilling firms involved in the question are the apparent low bidder, L. Cliff Nealy, Batavia, and the second bidder, Egener-Galloway, Milwaukee.

Consoer, Townsend and Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson recommended to the board that the low bid be accepted, but that no contract be entered into until the village has received a deed for the well site.

THE SITE is a half-acre on the west side of State Road north of Rand Road, approximately opposite Pinegate Manor subdivision.

It is being traded by Kenroy Realty Co., developers, for a site previously donated in connection with a 200-acre annexation but found to be inaccessible and unusable by the village.

The Nealy bid for drilling on the site is $79,489.25, and asks for 360 days to complete the job. The Egener-Galloway bid is $85,333.30, but he asks only 250 days.

Trustee Bud Beacham questioned if it would not be worth the extra $6,000 to have the well completed in time to meet at least part of the anticipated summer water demand next year.

He noted that the Nealy work schedule would put completion somewhere in mid-winter. But Hanson said the village had used Nealy on all recently drilled wells and that he had never pulled off the job.

HE SAID also that, since the bid specifications included no penalty for late completion, the drilling firm could not be held to a certain schedule anyway.

Motion was made for deferral to the next regular meeting, with trustees Carl Mees, William Moore and Norval Stephens voting "no." Village Atty. Jack Siegel ruled that since bids were in the nature of a committee report, consideration could be deferred by vote of only two trustees.

Village Pres. John G. Woods cast the tie-breaking vote in favor of deferral "just to make sure."

Besides completion date considerations and possibility of a penalty clause in the bid specifications, Beacham and other trustees expressed interest in finding why the two bidders involved quoted widely variant prices on well pipe and casing.

The board voted finally to return deposit checks three other bidders, now out of the running, had submitted with their bids.

GOOD PINCH by the Arlington Heights Police Department meant that five-year-old Marybeth Cook could stop painful rabies shots after first one. Holding cat which led him and other police a merry chase is animal welfare officer Eugene Korn.

Police Find Cat, End Rabies Shots

Arlington Heights police in a concentrated search last week chased down and positively identified a cat which bit five-year-old Marybeth Cook Nov. 10.

The police capture Thursday allowed the girl's doctor to stop a painful series of rabies shots begun only the day before as a precautionary measure.

The cat, which fit the girl's description perfectly, was chased through the neighborhood near the Cook home, 540 S. Dunton Ave., and finally cornered beneath a porch at 626 S. Vail.

POLICE OFFICERS Jack Weber and Eugene Korn, finding no space to crawl after the cat, executed a blind maneuver — Korn, able to see the animal, directing, and Weber, unable to see from his position, using a long-handled snare.

The five-year-old, after seeing several cats and saying they were not the ones, definitely chose the animal with white face and feet and a black body.

VETERINARIAN at the Arlington Heights Animal Hospital, where the cat was impounded, reports that the animal is apparently healthy, but that the impounding period must legally go on until Nov. 24—10 days after the capture.

Garbage Rate Boost Is 15 Cents a Month

After two months of negotiations, most of the time without a contract, the village of Arlington Heights and Laseke Disposal Co. have reached agreement on new terms calling for increases in both cost and service.

The three-year contract, already signed by Laseke, was approved Monday by the village board. It will take effect Dec. 1.

After Laseke's original request for a longer contract and larger hikes in cost, the prices set were $2.10 a month for curb pickup, $2.95 a month for back door service, and $3.20 per cubic yard for commercial and other volume customers.

Increases are 15 cents a month in the first two categories, and 20 cents per cubic yard in the commercial bracket.

A surprise clause in the contract is the village board's option to determine if the service should be limited strictly to back door as of Dec. 1, 1964.

THE CONTRACT provides that, "On Dec. 1, 1964, all residential pickups shall be from the back door, except for special curbside service . . . at a cost of $2.50 per month unless the Board of Trustees, on 60-day notice to the contractor, decides not to change to all back-door service."

Chairman Norval Stephens of the board's finance committee, which is responsible for provisions of the contract, explained that he anticipates the formation of a citizen's committee to study the matter before the end of 1964.

He explained that the pickup ratio is now about one-third back door, two-thirds curb, but that firms and citizens considering moving into the village have commented unfavorably on the appearance of trash cans lining the streets.

He also said that blowing rubbish, can tops and cans have caused problems on windy days in the past, and that these problems would be eliminated by exclusive back door service.

Trustee Eugene Schlickman objected to the wording of the contract in that it doesn't specifically call for a board vote to change to the single service, but his motion to change the wording died for lack of a second.

He contended that "residents should be able to enjoy the privilege of curb service if they wish," and asked that the contract read that the board could exercise its option to change service in a year.

OTHER CHANGES in the new contract are:

Later starting hours — now 7 a. m. rather than 6 a. m. on residential routes, and the same time on commercial routes adjacent to residential areas.

Improved provisions for handling of brush, boards and branches tied in five-foot bundles and placed at the curb.

Inclusion of all normal household or yard waste regardless of amount.

Pickup of building material, sod, dirt, or concrete not to exceed one cubic yard per pickup and to be placed in a bushel basket or strong container at curbside—for 10 cents additional per container.

Increased size limit for standard containers—now not to exceed 30 rather than 20 gallons.

Increased public liability insurance and property damage insurance on each truck.

Numbered badges for each collector so that he may be easily identified for safety and referral in complaints.

Since the contract was not made retroactive, Laseke has been working under the old rates while negotiating for a new contract, and will continue at that rate until Dec. 1.

Gun Victim Is Improved

A Palatine man injured in a gun accident Sunday afternoon at a gas station at Palatine and Wilke Roads, was taken off the critical list at Northwest Community Hospital.

Brian Fox, 1410 Joan Drive, Palatine, apparently was shot accidentally by Daniel Lukasik, 29 N. Dryden St., Arlington Heights, as he was cleaning a gun.

Vote Victory Margin Close

by JIM CARNS
News Editor

A hike in the Arlington Heights elementary school tax rate is assured and two new schools will be built. But district residents' vote of confidence on the two proposals Nov. 16 was by no means overwhelming.

The proposals on two separate District 25 ballots Saturday were an increase in the maximum educational tax rate from $1.25 to $1.46 per $100 assessed valuation, and issuance of $710,000 in bonds to finance construction of schools in Greenbrier and Westgate.

Total turnout for the election was 3,321 -- about average in comparison with past district votes.

BUT THE tax rate increase passed by only 105 votes (1,688 to 1,503) and the building proposal passed by a margin of 172 (1,723 to 1,551).

The school board held an adjourned meeting Monday night to canvass the vote as required by law; and members took the opportunity to express their pleasure at the voters' response, though the margin was slim.

The margin in past building bond referenda has been typically much greater, but an increase in the maximum tax rate has not been combined previously with the building issue.

THIS WOULD probably explain the close passage, according to Robert P. Campbell, assistant superintendent of schools. He explains that more than two thirds of the tax rate increases proposed throughout the state are voted down the first time around.

According to the architect's preliminary schedule, approval of the building bond issue means that the two proposed schools will be completed in time for the beginning of the 1964-65 school year.

The larger building is to be located at the intersection of Verde and Roanoke Drives in Greenbrier subdivision at the northern limits of the village. Twelve rooms will be constructed, with provision for later expansion to 18 rooms on the site.

THE SECOND building is to be located on the present Westgate School site at the intersection of Grove and Dwyer, and will include eight classrooms.

The educational tax rate increase, which will probably go immediately to the maximum $1.46 just approved, will apply to 1964 tax bills payable in the spring of 1965.

But District Supt. Ralph E. Clabaugh has said that some of the increase will perhaps be usable in the 1964-65 budget through tax anticipation warrants higher than the approximately 30 per cent utilized in this year's budget.

The added tax revenue — about 10 per cent — will serve primarily to get the district back to the financial plane on which it existed several years ago, Clabaugh says.

HE POINTS to the fact that costs and teacher salaries have increased while assessed valuation per student in the district has decreased steadily in past years, and the two trends seem to be continuing.

In addition to the continuing trends, the district will be required to staff and equip additional classrooms for next year in the two schools just approved for construction and in Thomas Junior High School already under way.

APPROVAL of the two issues means that, in 1965, residents of the district will be faced with approximately a 10 per cent increase in their total district tax bill if the legal maximum educational tax rate is put to use immediately.

The building bond approval should have no effect on the tax rate since the district bonds retired and new assessed valuation over which to spread the tax will approximately counterbalance the new issue.

Tavern Hours

Ask End To Later Closing

The Arlington Heights village board passed a resolution Monday asking for repeal of the Cook County ordinance allowing 4 a. m. tavern closing.

IN PART, THE document states that the village president and board have "determined that the operation of taverns until 4 a. m. is not in the best interests of the northwest suburban portion of Cook County and the people of the County of Cook generally."

It also requests that "all municipalities within the northwest suburban area refrain from amendment of local ordinances which would permit 4 a. m. tavern closing hours and confine said hours to those presently in force under local ordinance.

A request for later closing in Mount Prospect has been referred to the police and judiciary committee for study. Presumably pressure has come to Mount Prospect from Jack Gunnell's and Old Orchard Country Club, requesting the late licenses now granted in the county as conditions for annexation to the village.

Council Offers to Assist Yule Donations for Needy

The Northwest Suburban Welfare Council has offered to act as a clearing house for distribution of Christmas donations for needy persons or families.

The council president, Alan B. Campbell (administrator of Northwest Community Hospital), explained that the agency will accept names of needy persons from individuals, schools and other sources for Christmas time giving.

Similarly, according to Campbell, churches and other charitable organizations wishing to distribute Christmas gifts or food baskets may obtain names of the needy by contacting the council secretary.

Suggested names of needy persons should be submitted to Mrs. Sue Harding, council secretary. Mrs. Harding may be reached by telephone at 824-2134. Her address is % Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County, 725 Des Plaines Ave., Des Plaines, 60016.

NAMES FOR use in Christmas gift and food distribution programs also will be available from Mrs. Harding.

Campbell stressed that the welfare council would act as a central information service only, noting that the agency does not have the facilities for picking up or distributing Christmas donations.

The Northwest Suburban Welfare Council was organized two years ago. Membership ranges throughout the northwest suburban area and also includes some Chicago area welfare and charitable groups.

ACCORDING to Campbell, present membership includes the school social workers from Arlington High School District 214, Mount Prospect Elementary School District 57 and Arlington Heights School District 25.

The Northwest Suburban and Park Ridge YMCA's, Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County, Northwest Suburban Boy Scout Council, The Opportunity Council, Algonquin School (for mentally retarded children), Wheeling Township Supervisor Albert Peters and the Mount Prospect Welcome Wagon, also are listed members. Northwest Community Hospital and Forest Hospital (private mental hospital) are both members.

The American Red Cross, Mount Prospect office of American Cancer Society, Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society, the Welfare Council of Metropolitan Chicago, and the Des Plaines office of the Cook County Department of Public Health participate in the agency work.

The Park Ridge Family Service Bureau and the Northwest Cooperative Mental Health Clinic also belong to the welfare council.

After Dark Solicitors Arrested

Two persons were arrested by Arlington Heights police Monday for soliciting after dark in the 700 and 800 blocks of N. Kaspar Avenue.

The arrests, at 9 p.m., followed complaints by two residents of the area who said the men were going from door-to-door, trying to get into homes, but would not say what company they were from or what they wanted.

ARRESTED were Fred G. Scheifer, Lyons, and Michael T. Ocallahan, Evanston, who told police they were selling the Collier Encyclopedia prospectus out of Chicago.

According to the police report, they said they were let out of a car to go door-to-door and had made no previous appointments with any area residents.

The two were released on $25 bond.

AAUW Unites Collegiate Women, Aids Education

(This is the first of a series of articles to be presented in the Herald on member organizations of the Arlington Heights Community Council (Commco). The stories will include history, aims and membership of a wide variety of civic and social groups.)

The American Association of University Women was founded in Boston in 1881 for the purpose of uniting "alumnae of different (educational) institutions for practical educational work."

Ironically, its founder, Mrs. I. Tisdale Talbot, although wife of the dean of Boston University, was not herself a college graduate.

Originally known as the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, the group adopted its present name in 1921 with the affiliation of the Southern Association of College Women.

TODAY AAUW has over 200,000 members and, through affiliation with the International Federation of University Women, formed in 1920, extends into 50 countries, promoting exchange of teachers between the United States and foreign countries and contributing finances for graduate study at Oxford University, England.

The Arlington Heights branch of AAUW was organized in 1959 as an offshoot of the Northwest Suburban branch. First meeting was held at Lauterburg & Oehler's with 17 charter members.

In the intervening four years, membership has increased seven-fold to 115, drawn from Arlington Heights, Palatine, Barrington, Elk Grove, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights and Buffalo Grove.

MEMBERSHIP requirements follow those of the national organization, being restricted to graduates of colleges which meet specific AAUW educational standards, as well as those of regional accrediting agencies.

National membership is also open to associate members, composed of non-graduates with two years of work in an approved school, and corporate membership, restricted to approved colleges and universities. The local branch is composed of active membership only.

ON THE NATIONAL level, AAUW has sponsored:

1. A fellowship program, since 1890, which provides financial grants for further study by Ph. D. graduates or those students nearing completion of study for a Ph.D Through 1961, 717 such grants were made.

2. Financial aid for study in this country by foreign students. As of the end of 1961, 713 students from 52 countries had received financial assistance.

3. A study action program to "allow college women to continue their own intellectual growth, to further the advancement of women and to discharge the special responsibilities to society of those who have enjoyed the advantage of higher education."

ON THE LOCAL level, the Arlington Heights branch has contributed financial aid to the national and international fellowship programs and participated in the study action program through:

1. Study groups on Russia, literature, art, music, education and "the American family in a changing world."

2. Official support of the Community College issue by means of a speakers bureau to provide information on the proposed college and a staff to circulate petitions when desired.

3. An analysis of the problems of juvenile delinquency in Arlington Heights.

PRESIDENTS of the local branch are elected for two-year terms. Mrs. Charles L. Toot, 901 N. Princeton, elected in April of this year, was preceded as president by Mrs. John Gessert, 929 S. Chestnut; Mrs. John Jenkins, 707 S. Ridge, and Mrs. Thomas Dabovich, 201 S. Drury Lane.

Schneller Elected By Furniture Men

Joseph Schneller, Arlington Heights furniture retailer, has recently been chosen for two positions with the Chicago Retail Furniture Assn.

At the association's annual meeting last month in Chicago he was elected to membership on the board of directors, and his selection as chairman of the association's public relations committee was recently announced.

Schneller's two business locations in the village are Schneller Furniture, 22 S. Dryden Ave., and the Colonial Shoppe, 15 N. Hickory.

Among the jobs outlined for Schneller's public relations committee are creation of a weekly journal for association members, distribution of publicity to all news media, and handling of publicity for next year's Home Furnishings and Electric Living shows.

The new chairman is a longtime member of the association and has been active in civic and village affairs since moving his business from Chicago to Arlington Heights. (A

Firemen Help with Dystrophy Drive

Chief Harvey Carothers of the Arlington Heights Fire Department today (Thursday) announced the start of the 14th annual Muscular Dystrophy Campaign.

Members of the department have placed coin containers in business establishments throughout the area. The participation of firemen in the MD campaign is part of their comprehensive civic program to make their community a better place to live.

Chief Carothers urged all citizens of Arlington Heights to give generously in the campaign.

He said, "Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America are dedicated to finding a cause and cure of muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular disorders."

He pointed out that more than 200,000 persons in the United States are afflicted with this crippling and killing disease.

The Greater Chicago Chapter of MDAA helps support clinical facilities for dystrophics at the University of Illinois Research and Educational Hospital and Cook County Hospital.

The chapter also provides, at no cost to patients, physical therapy, wheelchairs, lifts and other orthopedic appliances. Recreational activities and a camping experience at Camp Reinberg also are provided.

In Chicago, research is conducted at Northwestern University, Pennsylvania-St. Luke's Hospital and the University of Illinois.

Advance contributions of $242,000 have been recorded to date.

$1,500 Burglary Reported

A burglar netted more than $1,500 worth of clothing and jewelry Sunday night, ransacking the home of Kenneth H. Coughlin, 507 S. Evanston, Arlington Heights.

Coughlin reported the burglary to police when he returned home at 10:30 that evening to find that someone had gone through all bedrooms and closets in the house.

Among the items reported missing are two pieces of diamond jewelry, $150 in cash, a mink stole and assorted women's clothing.

Police indicate the thief gained entry through a sliding patio door, forcing both screen and glass, and left muddy footprints and fingerprints all over the house, but nothing identifiable.

Two pillowcases were also stolen, and presumably used to carry away the other valuable items.

Coughlin told police the burglar had left behind other large articles of value. (A

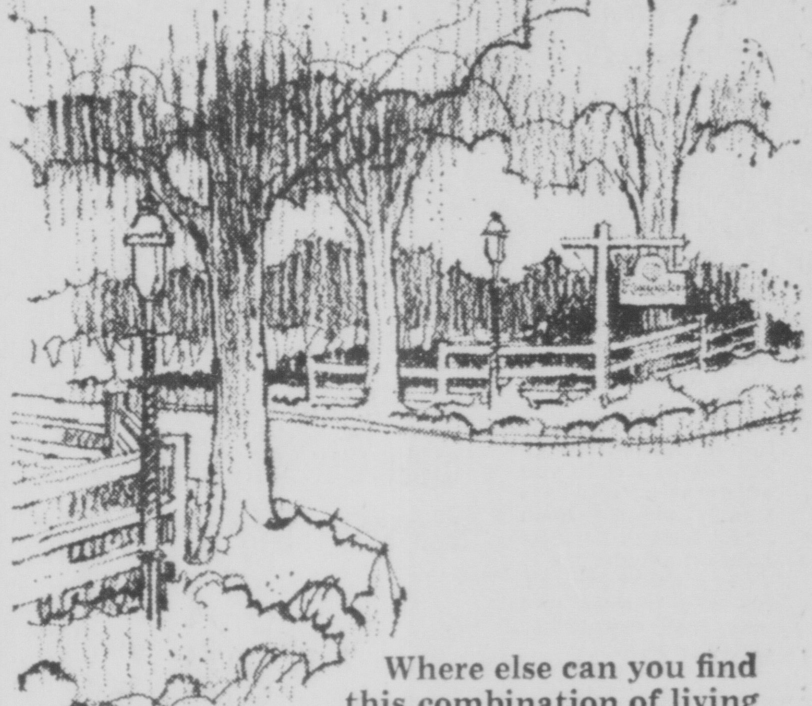
on Long Grove Road



Where else can you find this combination of living advantages in suburban homesites?

Beauty . . . hilly countryside with magnificent views, giant oaks and hickories plus two picturesque little lakes.

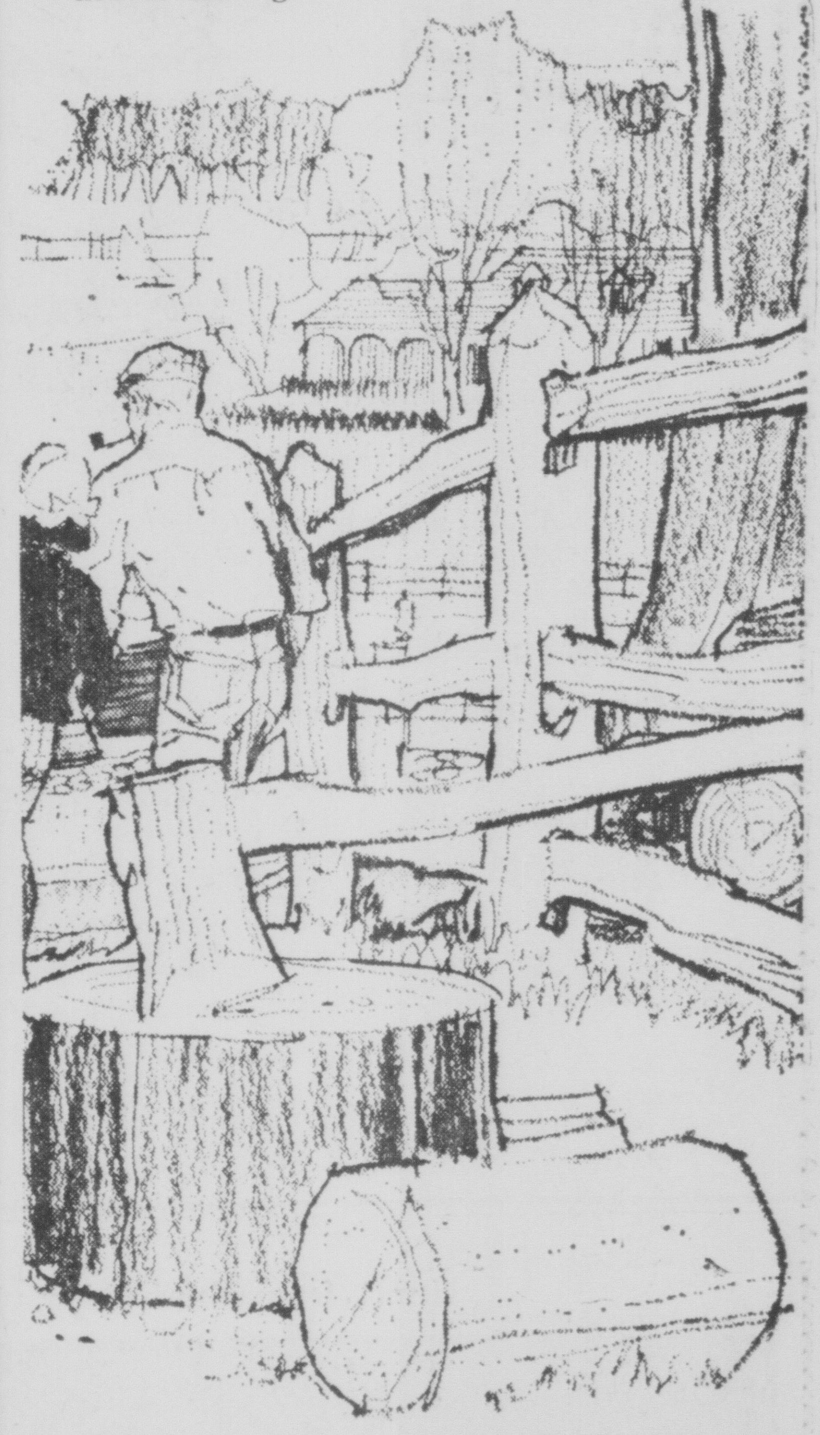
Size . . . large one to three acre sites—one acre is minimum so you'll never be crowded.

Community Planning . . . Winding blacktopped lanes, sites all different in shape and size, and wisely created architectural restrictions are but some of the reasons why you'll want to live in Farmington. Too, your home investment is permanently protected.

Location . . . Only 40 minutes from loop via Expressways and fast commuter service. Farmington, adjoining the village of Long Grove in the northwest suburbs, is actually closer to Chicago than is Barrington.

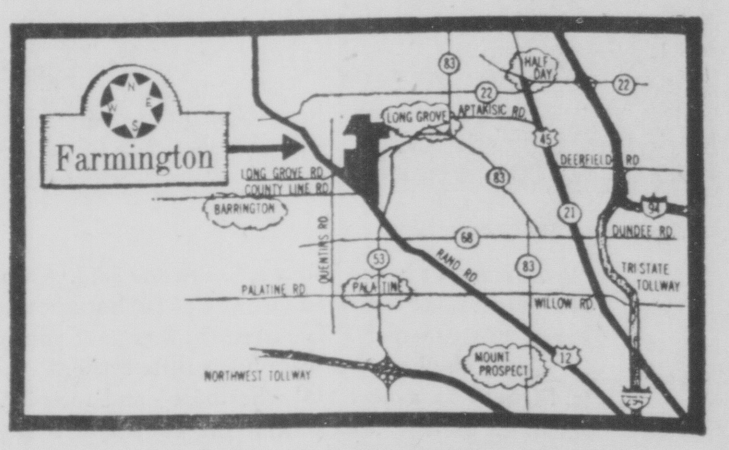
Prices . . . much less than you'd pay for relatively small lots on the North Shore or in the best western suburbs. Farmington sites range from $7,500 to $17,000, and remember, one acre is minimum! If you prefer, buy the site of your choice on contract with as little as 10% down and build whenever you wish.

This extremely rare combination of living advantages cannot be duplicated in suburban Chicago.



Come out today and see these exceptional homesite values—on a hilltop, in rolling meadow land, or tucked away among the stately old trees. Add to this Farmington's private stable, a large indoor ring, bridle paths; hunt country close at hand. Excellent shops, stores, churches and schools all near Farmington on Long Grove Road . . . a wonderful place to build your home, to live, and grow.

NOW AVAILABLE AT FARMINGTON:
Visit the two 4-bedroom custom homes open for your inspection.



DRIVE TO THE FARMINGTON OFFICE on Long Grove Road, ¾ of a mile east of Rand Road (Route 12) and one mile west of Route 53. Watch for the Farmington signs.

AAUW Unites Collegiate Women, Aids Education

(This is the first of a series of articles to be presented in the Herald on member organizations of the Arlington Heights Community Council (Commco). The stories will include history, aims and membership of a wide variety of civic and social groups.)

The American Association of University Women was founded in Boston in 1881 for the purpose of uniting "alumnae of different (educational) institutions for practical educational work."

Ironically, its founder, Mrs. I. Tisdale Talbot, although wife of the dean of Boston University, was not herself a college graduate.

Originally known as the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, the group adopted its present name in 1921 with the affiliation of the Southern Association of College Women.

TODAY AAUW has over 200,000 members and, through affiliation with the International Federation of University Women, formed in 1920, extends into 50 countries, promoting exchange of teachers between the United States and foreign countries and contributing finances for graduate study at Oxford University, England.

The Arlington Heights branch of AAUW was organized in 1959 as an offshoot of the Northwest Suburban branch. First meeting was held at Lauterburg & Oehler's with 17 charter members.

In the intervening four years, membership has increased seven-fold to 115, drawn from Arlington Heights, Palatine, Barrington, Elk Grove, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights and Buffalo Grove.

MEMBERSHIP requirements follow those of the national organization, being restricted to graduates of colleges which meet specific AAUW educational standards, as well as those of regional accrediting agencies.

National membership is also open to associate members, composed of non-graduates with two years of work in an approved school, and corporate membership, restricted to approved colleges and universities. The local branch is composed of active membership only.

ON THE NATIONAL level, AAUW has sponsored:

1. A fellowship program, since 1890, which provides financial grants for further study by Ph. D. graduates or those students nearing completion of study for a Ph.D Through 1961, 717 such grants were made.

2. Financial aid for study in this country by foreign students. As of the end of 1961, 713 students from 52 countries had received financial assistance.

3. A study action program to "allow college women to continue their own intellectual growth, to further the advancement of women and to discharge the special responsibilities to society of those who have enjoyed the advantage of higher education."

ON THE LOCAL level, the Arlington Heights branch has contributed financial aid to the national and international fellowship programs and participated in the study action program through:

1. Study groups on Russia, literature, art, music, education and "the American family in a changing world."

2. Official support of the Community College issue by means of a speakers bureau to provide information on the proposed college and a staff to circulate petitions when desired.

3. An analysis of the problems of juvenile delinquency in Arlington Heights.

PRESIDENTS of the local branch are elected for two-year terms. Mrs. Charles L. Toot, 901 N. Princeton, elected in April of this year, was preceded as president by Mrs. John Gessert, 929 S. Chestnut; Mrs. John Jenkins, 707 S. Ridge, and Mrs. Thomas Dabovich, 201 S. Drury Lane.

Schneller Elected By Furniture Men

Joseph Schneller, Arlington Heights furniture retailer, has recently been chosen for two positions with the Chicago Retail Furniture Assn.

At the association's annual meeting last month in Chicago he was elected to membership on the board of directors, and his selection as chairman of the association's public relations committee was recently announced.

Schneller's two business locations in the village are Schneller Furniture, 22 S. Dryden Ave., and the Colonial Shoppe, 15 N. Hickory.

Among the jobs outlined for Schneller's public relations committee are creation of a weekly journal for association members, distribution of publicity to all news media, and handling of publicity for next year's Home Furnishings and Electric Living shows.

The new chairman is a longtime member of the association and has been active in civic and village affairs since moving his business from Chicago to Arlington Heights. (A

Firemen Help with Dystrophy Drive

Chief Harvey Carothers of the Arlington Heights Fire Department today (Thursday) announced the start of the 14th annual Muscular Dystrophy Campaign.

Members of the department have placed coin containers in business establishments throughout the area. The participation of firemen in the MD campaign is part of their comprehensive civic program to make their community a better place to live.

Chief Carothers urged all citizens of Arlington Heights to give generously in the campaign.

He said, "Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America are dedicated to finding a cause and cure of muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular disorders."

He pointed out that more than 200,000 persons in the United States are afflicted with this crippling and killing disease.

The Greater Chicago Chapter of MDAA helps support clinical facilities for dystrophics at the University of Illinois Research and Educational Hospital and Cook County Hospital.

The chapter also provides, at no cost to patients, physical therapy, wheelchairs, lifts and other orthopedic appliances. Recreational activities and a camping experience at Camp Reinberg also are provided.

In Chicago, research is conducted at Northwestern University, Pennsylvania-St. Luke's Hospital and the University of Illinois.

Advance contributions of $242,000 have been recorded to date.

$1,500 Burglary Reported

A burglar netted more than $1,500 worth of clothing and jewelry Sunday night, ransacking the home of Kenneth H. Coughlin, 507 S. Evanston, Arlington Heights.

Coughlin reported the burglary to police when he returned home at 10:30 that evening to find that someone had gone through all bedrooms and closets in the house.

Among the items reported missing are two pieces of diamond jewelry, $150 in cash, a mink stole and assorted women's clothing.

Police indicate the thief gained entry through a sliding patio door, forcing both screen and glass, and left muddy footprints and fingerprints all over the house, but nothing identifiable.

Two pillowcases were also stolen, and presumably used to carry away the other valuable items.

Coughlin told police the burglar had left behind other large articles of value. (A

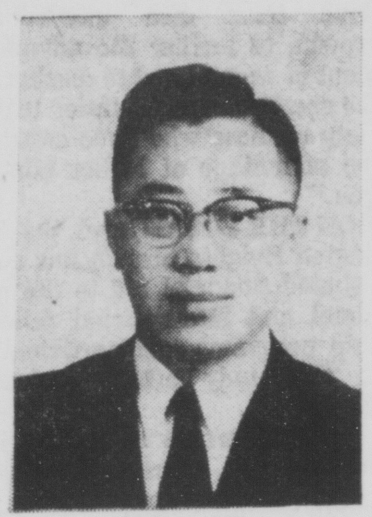
At Our Saviour's

Chinese Pastor In Pulpit Sunday

Guest speaker for the annual Mission Sunday observance at Our Saviour Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights, next Sunday will be the Rev. Paul Lien-Huei Hu, who is presently engaged in graduate study toward the degree of master of sacred theology at the Lutheran School of Theology at Maywood.



REV. HU

Pastor Hu will speak at both the 8:15 and 11 a.m. services about Lutheran work in Hong Kong, where he has lived for the past 14 years when not studying in the United States.

Born in Sinyang, Honan, China, in 1925, Pastor Hu received his education in Lutheran schools there. He went to Hong Kong in 1949 for his theological education and was graduated from the Lutheran Theological Seminary in Hong Kong in 1952, then served as chaplain in the Hong Kong Leprosarium.

Pastor Hu first came to the United States in 1953, studying for one year in Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, and two additional years in Luther Theological Seminary, St. Paul, Minn., completing work there for his B.D. degree in 1956.

Returning to Hong Kong, he served as pastor in the Lutheran Church of Hong Kong, and for the past six years has been an assistant professor in the Lutheran Theological Seminary there.

REMAINING in Hong Kong are Pastor Hu's wife and two daughter, five and three years old. He expects to return to his home next summer when his work at Maywood is completed.

Each year on Mission Sunday the Our Saviour congregation participates in a special thanks offering received specifically for the extension of mission work at home and abroad.

Mrs. Albert Roggenbuck, who is missions chairman for this year, has been in charge of arrangements for the thanks offering services. The Rev. John P. Petersen, pastor, will conduct the worship service and introduce the guest speaker.

Two Paving Jobs Rushed

Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements experts usable completion before winter weather of two major projects costing in total more than $380,000 for street paving, concrete curbs, gutters and drainage walks, and associated improvements.

The board, through its engineering firm of Consoer, Townsend and Associates, has designed and is supervising the construction in record time of the improvement of Oakton Street from Yale to State Road as one project, and similar improvement of portions of Beverley, Hickory, Douglas, Hawthorne and Frederick Streets, all lying north of Euclid Avenue.

CONSTRUCTION of the Oakton Street project was awarded by the board of local improvements to Allied Asphalt Paving Co., who bid successfully for the work. Rockroad Construction Co. was the successful bidder for the installation of the Beverley - Hickory - Douglas project.

The board expects the initial layer of bituminous paving materials to be installed over rock foundations on both projects this week so that a suitable driving surface will be available during the winter months.

The installation of underground improvements and concrete curbs is substantially complete to receive the initial paving. Private driveways will be left in usable condition and, in many instances, restored to their original surface before construction must be discontinued as a result of winter weather.

THE FINAL dressing of street parkways, completion of sidewalks, laying of the top course of bituminous paving materials and the restoration of driveways will be completed on both projects in the spring, thus concluding the work involved in these projects.

Temporary barriers now restricting traffic over and through portions of these projects will be removed as soon as the progress of construction will sagely permit. (A there is one.

"If only the Le Mans had a 6," someone said. Ahem! The standard engine is now an in-line 6 of 140 horsepower, with a pair of extra-cost V-8s for added muscle if you want it.

"If only the Le Mans were just a little bigger." And so it is. Bigger—on a new 115" wheelbase—and roomier. (And speaking of new, that's what the body and brakes and frame and suspension and steering and wheels and most other things are. Good and new.)

"If only the Le Mans came in a hardtop," someone else said. There's a planned coincidence for you. It just came. And now that we've wiped out your last possible excuse for not buying a Pontiac Le Mans, how about it?

Letter Is Trigger for 3 Trustee Motions

Concern Relations With Mt. Prospect

Village Pres. John G. Woods and the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees received a letter last week from Mount Prospect which puts three board motions into force.

The letter, written Nov. 15 by Mount Prospect Village Pres. C. O. Schlaver and announced Monday by the village board, is official notice that no action was taken at a Mount Prospect board meeting which Arlington Heights representatives attended.

Up for consideration at that meeting was the proposed boundary line between the two villages south of Central Road. Development of Old Orchard and establishment of a northern boundary between the two villages were also discussed.

The Mount Prospect Plan Commission recommendation presented for approval at the meeting was that a southern boundary not be approved until a northern boundary giving Old Orchard Country Club to Mount Prospect had been agreed upon.

MOUNT PROSPECT Trustee John Bickley made a motion to overrule the plan commission recommendation, remove them from the picture and resubmit the southern boundary alone to Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect for approval.

That motion was defeated, and no further motion was made.

In his letter of official notification, Schlaver stated:

"It appears that until some agreement is reached as to the northern boundary any further discussion of a southwest boundary will be unfruitful.

"Rest assured, in respect to the proposed annexation of the Old Orchard Country Club property, if such action is taken by Mount Prospect it will be taken with good planning practices in mind and with serious consideration of the counsel of Eugene Baughman (planning consultant) and of other technical advice which looks forward to the changes in zoning, height and construction which will be needed for the increased population and living habits of tomorrow."

THE THREE Arlington Heights motions which went into effect at the time Schlaver's letter was officially received are that:

1. Arlington Heights indicate intent to honor a Meier Road southern boundary even though Mount Prospect has not agreed, because the boundary represents good planning.

2. Arlington Heights' interest in Old Orchard Country Club is motivated primarily by concern for orderly planning and growth and the possible detrimental effect of poor development on the entire area—not by a desire for annexation of the property.

3. ARLINGTON Heights indicate willingness to reconvene negotiations on a northern boundary and land use of parcels lying astride or adjacent to any proposed boundary.

The first two motions passed unanimously, but the third passed 4-2, with "no" votes coming from Trustees Bud Beacham and William Moore.

Beacham had previously commented that "You (the board) get one cheek slapped and you're going back to get the other one slapped now."

Air Force Nurse Assured of Variety

The nurse who wants variety in her life may find what she is looking for as an Air Force nurse.

Tech. Sgt. Conrad D. Person, recruiter in the Air Force Recruiting Office at East Gate Shopping Center in Lombard, says the military nurse will get a variety in types and number of patients, size and facilities in hospitals and training and opportunities for specialization.

IN THE United States, most Air Force hospitals offer services ranging from general surgery to cardiology and dentistry. Some specialize, such as the Chanute Air Base Hospital which emphasizes orthopedics.

Medical facilities throughout the world where U.S. forces are stationed range from small dispensaries and mobile emergency units to modern well-equipped hospitals and installations such as the School of Aviation Medicine at Gunter AFB, Ala.

THE AIR Force nurse may also choose to train as a flight nurse.

The recruiting office in Lombard is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. until noon. The telephone number is 627-0423.

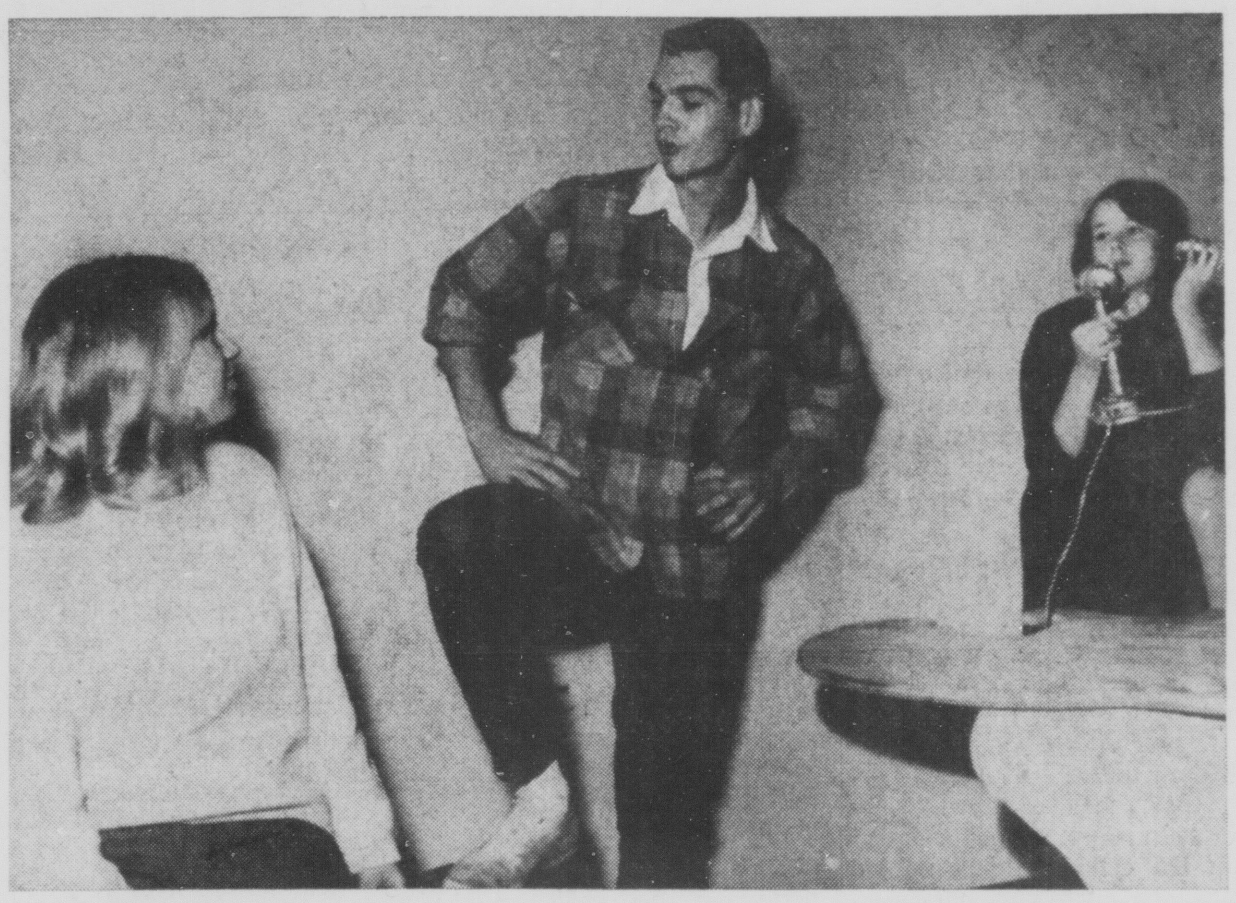
'Once in a Lifetime' Promises Surprises



LAST REHEARSAL has actors Georganne Sedor, left, Douglas McDonald, and aJnet Sauer, right, giving their all for "Once in a Lifetime" presented tonight, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Arlington High School little theatre. (Staff Photo)

Surprise promises to be the order of the evening when Arlington High's three-act comedy "Once in a Lifetime" is presented tonight, Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. and Friday and Saturday, Nov. 22, 23 at 8 p.m. in the Little Theatre.

Technical director Gayle Beckway's comic interpretation of the non-realistic sets designed by art instructor James Walker will burst upon the audience in seven scenes.

The evening will begin with music of the Twenties and Thirties, interpreted by the piano of Senior James Kilbury, son of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Kilbury, 1011 N. Illinois, Arlington Heights. Accompanying him on percussions will be Claude LaRose, senior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude H. LaRose, 611 E. Grove, Arlington Heights.

"PROBABLY the biggest surprise of the production," stated director Douglas K. Murphy, "will be the audio-visual effects designed by Robert K. Johnston, senior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Johnston, 532 Banbury, Arlington Heights.

"Scenes from early talking pictures will combine with the live action of the stage at unexpected moments. Railroad whistles and steam locomotive sounds will contrast sharply with the candidly make-believe Pullman car scene," explained the director.

The unexpected in costumes will be provided by Anna Pietrolonardo, junior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pietrolonardo, 1600 Rand Road. Anna designed the costumes for the girls in the cast and constructed eight of the gowns used in the play.

She selected the colors, fabrics, and trimmings in addition to advising her student seamstresses. The gowns are vintage 1929, shortly after the birth of the "talkies."

TESTING THE holding capacity of the Little Theatre stage will be 50 students in the roles of 62 characters, a record size for a stage play at Arlington High School. Students in the cast and crews represent all four years of high school.

As three vaudevillians who head for Hollywood after the development of the Vitaphone are two seniors and a sophomore. Georganne Sedor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sedor, 909 N. Walnut, and Brian Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Reynolds, 525 S. State, join underclassman Douglas McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. McDonald, 215 W. Orchard, all of Arlington Heights, in the leading roles.

"ONCE IN a Lifetime" is a product of the writing team of Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman. "Act One," the recent autobiography of Moss Hart, chronicled the story of the original Broadway production of the play.

The New York premiere on September 24, 1930, marked the beginning of a collaboration that included "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "You Can't Take It With You," and "George Washington Slept Here."

Tickets to tonight's early performance will be available at the door. Because of the limited seating capacity of the Little Theatre, patrons are urged to contact a cast member or the high school's administrative office for tickets for the weekend performances.

Doors will open 30 minutes before performances and tickets for each evening's performance will go on sale 45 minutes before curtain each evening.

Social Work Seeks Educational Balance

Districts See Common Goals

by JIM CARNS
Staff Writer

(Second of Two Articles)

Social work in schools in the northwest suburbs, and elsewhere, must start with the administration. The need must be recognized, a qualified person must be hired, and a program established.

The social workers themselves work in a professional field outside their own, while at the same time they perform their task of implementing or attempting to aid social and emotional adjustment.

It is these factors that contribute to a unique situation. Programs of school social work now widespread in elementary districts in the area and being established in high school districts are the result actually of an outsider seeing the need for experts.

NO DISTRICT administrator is a stranger to the problems of education. He must think in terms of providing a uniformly high standard of service to all students in his charge.

Here the connection between two fields comes. The administrator has seen that individual emotional and social situations can not only hamper the individual child's ability to learn, but also disturb the balance of the entire classroom situation.

The problem which area administrators have described in establishment or enlargement of social work programs is not determining whether the idea has merit.

RATHER, AS set forth by Supt. Ralph E. Clabaugh of the Arlington Heights elementary district, it is "to get mature, judicious people who know their limitations and don't go around looking for cases."

The majority of other district administrators agree, and several are having problems along this line. The Palatine elementary district at one time had three social workers, but they all took other jobs three years ago and Supt. E. S. Castor has not found replacements.

"I believe in the program strongly," Castor explained. "We could do a better job in the district if we had social workers, but qualified people are hard to find."

THE SCHAUMBURG elementary district looked for nearly a year before employing its first social worker, and has now authorized hiring of another since the first is only serving four of eight schools.

The Arlington Heights district built the staff up to five, but it dropped to three for half of a year while administrators attempted to find replacements for two workers who had taken other positions.

John Nebo and Henry Krogh, state consultants for school social work in the Park Ridge district office, channel possible personnel to districts; but these are just possibilities, and still the number is not sufficient to meet the need.

ANOTHER PROBLEM is an understanding among the teacher, administrator and social worker of the program's scope.

Sometimes the loudest, most demonstrative "problem" student in a class is not the one in need of the social worker's help, according to Mrs. Ruth Sangster, supervisor of the department of social work in the Arlington Heights elementary schools.

At the same time, the quiet student, most easily overlooked in a classroom situation, may have the deepest emotional or social problem.

"But the teachers are getting better all the time at identification of children in need of referral to the social worker," Mrs. Sangster says.

ALSO, THE social worker is asked only to counsel, not to prescribe — particularly not to prescribe to the teacher who must deal with the child in the setting of a classroom group rather than on the social worker's individual basis, according to the Arlington Heights superintendent.

Beyond the classroom situation, administrators are faced with the decision whether a child needs simple disciplinary action in a problem situation or referral to a social worker.

The line between the school psychologist now employed on a part- or full-time basis in most districts and the social worker is more clearly defined in the minds of those involved.

The psychologist tests, primarily to determine the mental capabilities of a student. The social worker's purpose is therapeutic, designed to remove social or emotional barriers which prevent the child from working up to his capabilities in the educational system.

THE SOCIAL worker is really in a middle ground, getting cases by referral from teachers, principals, parents and sometimes even students themselves, and suggesting referral to outside agencies or medical personnel when the problem is outside his scope.

It is within these limits that the worker's goal is best defined by Mrs. Sangster: "The way you evaluate any mental health program is — Does behavior change?"

A masters degree in social work and some experience in the field is a "near necessity," Mrs. Sangster says; and such qualifications are almost universal.

THE WORKER'S method varies, but it is always one of developing a close personal relation with the child, building up his confidence on a personal interview basis. Often it involves parents on an interview basis as well, and they are always involved in referral and kept informed on the child's progress.

The social worker may play games with a young child, talk of inconsequentials with an adolescent, or come to any common level with the referred student to find a starting point toward understanding.

He may use all of the school's recreational or extracurricular facilities in limited therapy, or turn to community resources from the YMCA to social and relief agencies and the mental health clinics.

PROBLEMS encountered range from automatic referral to one of many other special education programs under state subsidy because of physical or mental handicaps to schoolphobia, a deep fear rooted entirely in the educational system.

They run the range of the withdrawn, the overactive, the loners. The therapy is talk, if it will work — or one of many other methods if talk fails.

But it all comes back to the educational system. If a child falls away from the classroom situation he is brought back when possible.

IN SOME cases, one child will be in the social worker's files all through elementary and junior high school, and transfer to another social worker for high school.

In high schools the program has not nearly the impetus it has gained at lower levels, though. The attempt is to catch the problem in the formative years of youth — to keep the child from falling away from education and joining the many high school dropouts who are kept in the system until then only by legal requirements. (A-14

A HIGH STAKE may ride on a game such as this — the trust and confidence of a child in need of the social worker's help. "You have to go out to them," says social worker Mrs. Ruth Sangster. (A-14

ONE OF THESE children may be a social worker's case. Workers in elementary schools attempt to catch trouble with emotional and social adjustment at an early age, before it throws the child permanently out of balance in the educational system. (A-14

Installation Set For Masonic Lodge

Uniformed Knights Templar from Bethel Commandery in Elgin will act as escort when new officers of Arlington Heights Masonic Lodge are installed Saturday night.

The installation will be held at 8 p.m. at the Masonic Temple, 1104 S. State Road.

Marvin A. Henrickson, 725 N. Pine, Arlington Heights, will be installed as master by John B. Anderson of Mundelein, assisted by David E. Wennerstran, Burkett A. Davis, Arthur E. Reynolds and Olav Larsen, all of Arlington Heights.

THE CEREMONY, which is open to the public, will be followed by a short salute to the lodge by robed representatives of Job's Daughters and the Order of DeMolay from Arlington Heights.

Henrickson, a patent attorney associated with Hill, Sherman, Meroni, Gross and Simpson of Chicago, has served as a lodge officer for the past seven years.

Social Work Seeks Educational Balance

by JIM CARNS
Staff Writer

(Second of Two Articles)

Social work in schools in the northwest suburbs, and elsewhere, must start with the administration. The need must be recognized, a qualified person must be hired, and a program established.

The social workers themselves work in a professional field outside their own, while at the same time they perform their task of implementing or attempting to aid social and emotional adjustment.

It is these factors that contribute to a unique situation. Programs of school social work now widespread in elementary districts in the area and being established in high school districts are the result actually of an outsider seeing the need for experts.

NO DISTRICT administrator is a stranger to the problems of education. He must think in terms of providing a uniformly high standard of service to all students in his charge.

Here the connection between two fields comes. The administrator has seen that individual emotional and social situations can not only hamper the individual child's ability to learn, but also disturb the balance of the entire classroom situation.

The problem which area administrators have described in establishment or enlargement of social work programs is not determining whether the idea has merit.

RATHER, AS set forth by Supt. Ralph E. Clabaugh of the Arlington Heights elementary district, it is "to get mature, judicious people who know their limitations and don't go around looking for cases."

The majority of other district administrators agree, and several are having problems along this line. The Palatine elementary district at one time had three social workers, but they all took other jobs three years ago and Supt. E. S. Castor has not found replacements.

"I believe in the program strongly," Castor explained. "We could do a better job in the district if we had social workers, but qualified people are hard to find."

THE SCHAUMBURG elementary district looked for nearly a year before employing its first social worker, and has now authorized hiring of another since the first is only serving four of eight schools.

The Arlington Heights district built the staff up to five, but it dropped to three for half of a year while administrators attempted to find replacements for two workers who had taken other positions.

John Nebo and Henry Krogh, state consultants for school social work in the Park Ridge district office, channel possible personnel to districts; but these are just possibilities, and still the number is not sufficient to meet the need.

ANOTHER PROBLEM is an understanding among the teacher, administrator and social worker of the program's scope.

Sometimes the loudest, most demonstrative "problem" student in a class is not the one in need of the social worker's help, according to Mrs. Ruth Sangster, supervisor of the department of social work in the Arlington Heights elementary schools.

At the same time, the quiet student, most easily overlooked in a classroom situation, may have the deepest emotional or social problem.

"But the teachers are getting better all the time at identification of children in need of referral to the social worker," Mrs. Sangster says.

ALSO, THE social worker is asked only to counsel, not to prescribe — particularly not to prescribe to the teacher who must deal with the child in the setting of a classroom group rather than on the social worker's individual basis, according to the Arlington Heights superintendent.

Beyond the classroom situation, administrators are faced with the decision whether a child needs simple disciplinary action in a problem situation or referral to a social worker.

The line between the school psychologist now employed on a part- or full-time basis in most districts and the social worker is more clearly defined in the minds of those involved.

The psychologist tests, primarily to determine the mental capabilities of a student. The social worker's purpose is therapeutic, designed to remove social or emotional barriers which prevent the child from working up to his capabilities in the educational system.

THE SOCIAL worker is really in a middle ground, getting cases by referral from teachers, principals, parents and sometimes even students themselves, and suggesting referral to outside agencies or medical personnel when the problem is outside his scope.

It is within these limits that the worker's goal is best defined by Mrs. Sangster: "The way you evaluate any mental health program is — Does behavior change?"

A masters degree in social work and some experience in the field is a "near necessity," Mrs. Sangster says; and such qualifications are almost universal.

THE WORKER'S method varies, but it is always one of developing a close personal relation with the child, building up his confidence on a personal interview basis. Often it involves parents on an interview basis as well, and they are always involved in referral and kept informed on the child's progress.

The social worker may play games with a young child, talk of inconsequentials with an adolescent, or come to any common level with the referred student to find a starting point toward understanding.

He may use all of the school's recreational or extracurricular facilities in limited therapy, or turn to community resources from the YMCA to social and relief agencies and the mental health clinics.

PROBLEMS encountered range from automatic referral to one of many other special education programs under state subsidy because of physical or mental handicaps to schoolphobia, a deep fear rooted entirely in the educational system.

They run the range of the withdrawn, the overactive, the loners. The therapy is talk, if it will work — or one of many other methods if talk fails.

But it all comes back to the educational system. If a child falls away from the classroom situation he is brought back when possible.

IN SOME cases, one child will be in the social worker's files all through elementary and junior high school, and transfer to another social worker for high school.

In high schools the program has not nearly the impetus it has gained at lower levels, though. The attempt is to catch the problem in the formative years of youth — to keep the child from falling away from education and joining the many high school dropouts who are kept in the system until then only by legal requirements. (A-14

A HIGH STAKE may ride on a game such as this — the trust and confidence of a child in need of the social worker's help. "You have to go out to them," says social worker Mrs. Ruth Sangster. (A-14

ONE OF THESE children may be a social worker's case. Workers in elementary schools attempt to catch trouble with emotional and social adjustment at an early age, before it throws the child permanently out of balance in the educational system. (A-14

45 Panel Talks Are Scheduled

More than 4,000 school board members and school administrators from throughout Illinois will meet in Chicago next week for the joint annual conference of the Illinois Association of School Boards (IASB) and the Illinois Association of School Administrators (IASA).

The conference will start on Sunday, Nov. 24, and end Tuesday, Nov. 26.

Theme for the three-day conference is "Changing Concepts in Education and Educational Administration."

Northwest suburban school board members and administrators will participate in the conference. School boards have named delegates and alternates to vote on the 13 suggested resolutions to be considered by the IASB.

Among the delegates will be Mrs. Caroline Hanks of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove District 21, Victor Myer of Arlington Heights District 25, Gerald Brubaker of Elk Grove District 59 and Mrs. Eugenia Chapman of Arlington High School District 214.

DURING THE conference 45 panel discussions have been scheduled. Topics for the panels range from "Recent Court Decisions" and "School Finance" to "Educational Television" and "An Adequate Junior College Program."

Highlight of the IASB convention centers on the business meetings of the group and the adoption of the resolutions which set the Illinois school boards' general policy and legislative suggestions.

At least two of the local school districts have instructed their delegates to oppose a resolution on the "Teaching About Communism" as drafted. High school District 214 drafted an amendment to the communism resolution, stressing that curriculum decisions are best made at the local level and recommendations from the state level should be advisory only.

Both District 214 and Wheeling District 21 took issue with a resolution praising the governor and 73rd general assembly for their "every possible assistance" to local schools. The usual courtesy resolution was criticized by members of both school boards who pointed out the governor had vetoed the school assistance bill this year and the legislature had almost forced the veto by not providing funds to implement the bill.

IN ITS place the high school district suggested an amended resolution which would urge "legislative leadership" to guarantee good public education in Illinois.

Other resolutions (1) call for a study of part-time enrollments, (2) oppose use of public funds for private schools, (3) seek a new tax for the county clerk to cover cost of tax collection so that such costs won't be deducted from tax receipts for schools and other taxing bodies, and (4) approve a study for increase in the school entrance age.

One resolution would call for a study of possible statutory limits upon the amount of liability damages which may be assessed against a school district.

A study of the effect of trailer courts upon public schools and measures to more adequately tax such property is the topic of another resolution.

JAMES M. Patterson, director of public relations for the American Oil Company, will be the principal speaker of the conference. Patterson helped to organize the Rich Township High School District at Park Forest, became a school board member, and served as vice-chairman of the Tri-County Division, IASB. He has been cited by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for outstanding service to the 4-H movement.

Patterson currently is a member of the public relations committee of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Other major speakers will be Mrs. Ruth H. Page, executive director of the State Federation of District Boards of Education of New Jersey, and Rabbi M. M. Hershman of Joliet, civic and educational leader.

A display of school equipment, supplies and services, covering 180 booths will be set up in an vention period.

School Officials Visit Forest View

Representatives from offices of both the state and county superintendents of schools made an official visit to Forest View High School Friday.

The purpose was to inspect the school and then make an official report to the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools as a preliminary step to accreditation of the high school.

Forest View is already accredited by the state of Illinois, but accreditation by the North Central Association is not possible until a secondary school has a four-year program. The high school, which opened in the fall of 1962, has its first graduating class this year.

THE REPORT of the official visitors will be considered by the accrediting committee next spring.

In the official inspection party were Roy Clark, first assistant state superintendent; Bill Kelly, representative from the state office and Victor Schmidt and Lucy Driscoll, assistant Cook county superintendents.

At Dundee Polar Dome

Leading Skaters Prepare for Fund Raising Feature

With the opening of the 1963-64 speed skating season just two weeks away, over 400 of the leading blade artists in the United States are in training for the Olympic Fund Raising meet scheduled at the Polar Dome in Dundee on Sunday, Dec. 1, with all final races set for 2 p.m.

Many of last year's title-holders have outgrown their classes, so that the battle for points to qualify for the Nationals, and a chance to be picked as the nation's best will get under way with the starting gun.

Most of the skating coaches have had their skaters working out several nights a week at the Polar Dome on the 16-lap to a mile track, and will be ready to repel the invaders from Wisconsin, Missouri, Ohio, Michigan and Minnesota who are expected to compete.

The only indoor champion who will not take part in the meet will be Karen Kaper of the Peirce Skating Club, who along with Barbara Lockhart of Northwest Skating Club and Ed Rudolph, former national champions, are now at Colorado Springs, training for the Olympic games. The trio are members of the squad from which the team will be picked around the first of the year.

The Illinois clubs who are entertaining full teams are Northbrook Skating Club, Northwest Skating Club, Glen Ellyn A.A.A., Peirce Skating Club, U.C.T. Champaign, Lilacin Skating Club, Mount Prospect Skating Club, Champaign-Urbana Skating Club, Aurora Skating Club, Wing Skating Club, and Stahma Skating Club.

Tickets for the finals, which will include several figure skating numbers, can be purchased at the Polar Dome. Proceeds will go to the American Olympic Fund Speed Committee.

DURING THE conference 45 panel discussions have been scheduled. Topics for the panels range from "Recent Court Decisions" and "School Finance" to "Educational Television" and "An Adequate Junior College Program."

Highlight of the IASB convention centers on the business meetings of the group and the adoption of the resolutions which set the Illinois school boards' general policy and legislative suggestions.

At least two of the local school districts have instructed their delegates to oppose a resolution on the "Teaching About Communism" as drafted. High school District 214 drafted an amendment to the communism resolution, stressing that curriculum decisions are best made at the local level and recommendations from the state level should be advisory only.

Both District 214 and Wheeling District 21 took issue with a resolution praising the governor and 73rd general assembly for their "every possible assistance" to local schools. The usual courtesy resolution was criticized by members of both school boards who pointed out the governor had vetoed the school assistance bill this year and the legislature had almost forced the veto by not providing funds to implement the bill.

IN ITS place the high school district suggested an amended resolution which would urge "legislative leadership" to guarantee good public education in Illinois.

Other resolutions (1) call for a study of part-time enrollments, (2) oppose use of public funds for private schools, (3) seek a new tax for the county clerk to cover cost of tax collection so that such costs won't be deducted from tax receipts for schools and other taxing bodies, and (4) approve a study for increase in the school entrance age.

One resolution would call for a study of possible statutory limits upon the amount of liability damages which may be assessed against a school district.

A study of the effect of trailer courts upon public schools and measures to more adequately tax such property is the topic of another resolution.

JAMES M. Patterson, director of public relations for the American Oil Company, will be the principal speaker of the conference. Patterson helped to organize the Rich Township High School District at Park Forest, became a school board member, and served as vice-chairman of the Tri-County Division, IASB. He has been cited by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for outstanding service to the 4-H movement.

Patterson currently is a member of the public relations committee of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Other major speakers will be Mrs. Ruth H. Page, executive director of the State Federation of District Boards of Education of New Jersey, and Rabbi M. M. Hershman of Joliet, civic and educational leader.

A display of school equipment, supplies and services, covering 180 booths will be set up in an vention period.

School Officials Visit Forest View

Representatives from offices of both the state and county superintendents of schools made an official visit to Forest View High School Friday.

The purpose was to inspect the school and then make an official report to the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools as a preliminary step to accreditation of the high school.

Forest View is already accredited by the state of Illinois, but accreditation by the North Central Association is not possible until a secondary school has a four-year program. The high school, which opened in the fall of 1962, has its first graduating class this year.

THE REPORT of the official visitors will be considered by the accrediting committee next spring.

In the official inspection party were Roy Clark, first assistant state superintendent; Bill Kelly, representative from the state office and Victor Schmidt and Lucy Driscoll, assistant Cook county superintendents.

At Dundee Polar Dome

Leading Skaters Prepare for Fund Raising Feature

With the opening of the 1963-64 speed skating season just two weeks away, over 400 of the leading blade artists in the United States are in training for the Olympic Fund Raising meet scheduled at the Polar Dome in Dundee on Sunday, Dec. 1, with all final races set for 2 p.m.

Many of last year's title-holders have outgrown their classes, so that the battle for points to qualify for the Nationals, and a chance to be picked as the nation's best will get under way with the starting gun.

Most of the skating coaches have had their skaters working out several nights a week at the Polar Dome on the 16-lap to a mile track, and will be ready to repel the invaders from Wisconsin, Missouri, Ohio, Michigan and Minnesota who are expected to compete.

The only indoor champion who will not take part in the meet will be Karen Kaper of the Peirce Skating Club, who along with Barbara Lockhart of Northwest Skating Club and Ed Rudolph, former national champions, are now at Colorado Springs, training for the Olympic games. The trio are members of the squad from which the team will be picked around the first of the year.

The Illinois clubs who are entertaining full teams are Northbrook Skating Club, Northwest Skating Club, Glen Ellyn A.A.A., Peirce Skating Club, U.C.T. Champaign, Lilacin Skating Club, Mount Prospect Skating Club, Champaign-Urbana Skating Club, Aurora Skating Club, Wing Skating Club, and Stahma Skating Club.

Tickets for the finals, which will include several figure skating numbers, can be purchased at the Polar Dome. Proceeds will go to the American Olympic Fund Speed Committee.

Dealers Fight Quota Increase

the market, split up business rather than attract more, and cause business difficulties among area dealers.

Though all of the dealers questioned said they would agree with expansion of the quota, they added that the new license should be on the perimeter of the village somewhere in an area of new development rather than downtown.

Trustee Walsh pointed out that legally a quota expansion was all the committee could recommend and all the board could consider, and that selection or location of a licensee was entirely up to the liquor commissioner.

BUT A STANDING application by Jewel-Osco store, located at Wing and Davis Streets, left no doubt as to the purpose of the quota expansion.

Jurco described the village liquor license as a privilege, and said that, in effect, increasing the quota would be giving the privilege with one hand and sapping it away from existing dealers with the other.

But Woods said the license was not intended to create monopolies or shelter a competitive situation, but to give the village police power in an area which offers peculiar law enforcement problems.

HE ALSO clarified through questioning of Charles Karavidas, owner of Parkway Liquors, that a license could not be purchased with a liquor business and is not allowed to be included as a capital asset.

The dealers and village resident Frank Palmatier also objected to the fact that quota increase was under consideration for a food-drug store.

Dealers claimed the idea of food-liquor combination had been turned down before, and now it was to be approved. They cited Elms Liquor Land, which was built separate from Elms Grocer Land because the village would not allow a package store on the grocery premises.

PALMATIER OBJECTED on the grounds that children entering the Jewel-Osco store would be automatically exposed to a liquor display, while a separate store would still be objectionable, but less so.

He said the structure of the Dram Shop Act, regulating sale of liquor in the state, is much too lax, and added that a good example is "the spectacle that Jewel-Osco comes out and expects to get preferential treatment from the board."

Trustee Bud Beacham recommended that a representative of Jewel-Osco be allowed to present information to the board since the firm had become directly involved in the hearing.

THE FIRM'S attorney said the liquor department would be entirely separated from the remainder of the store if required. The Arlington Heights store would be the first of four such centers in the Chicago suburbs to be granted a liquor license.

The trustees agreed with the attorney's contention that downtown Arlington Heights was not stagnating, and could stand more business of many varieties.

Beacham ended the hearing by commenting that there seemed to be many logical arguments: "Every time somebody opens his mouth it sounds good." His move to table the matter until Dec. 2 received "no" votes from trustees Norval Stephens, Jack Walsh and William Moore, but Woods cast the tie-breaking vote in favor of deferral. (AF

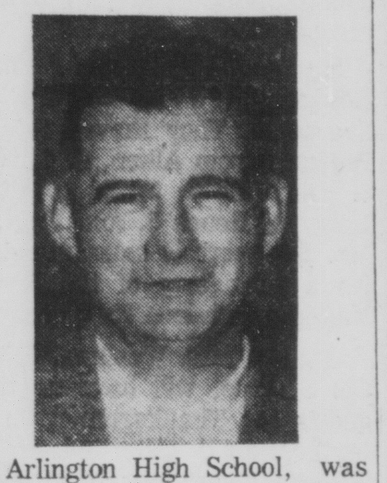
Appoint Eight to New District 214 Posts

New administrators for Wheeling High School, set to open next September, a new assistant principal for Forest View High School and a new district-wide coordinator of physical education, health and safety were named by the school board of High School District 214 this week.

The new administrative posts are effective for the 1964-65 school year.

Howard J. Lester, now serving as athletic director for Arlington High School, was appointed as the first district-wide coordinator of physical education, health and safety.



The new position will include responsibility of the physical education departments for both boys and girls in all four District 214 high schools. The coordinator also will head all athletic programs, with the coaching staffs of the four schools responsible to him.

ROBERT HASKELL was named as assistant principal for instruction services at Forest View High School. Haskell, now a social science teacher at Prospect High School, will replace Thomas W. Shirley. Shirley has been transferred to the new Wheeling High School to serve in the same capacity.

Other appointments for Wheeling High School include Clarence M. Miller as assistant principal for administrative services; Charles W. Adams as librarian; Dean DePoy, band director, and E. Elliott (Bus) Ormsbee as director of athletics.

Roland R. Goins was named division head for science and mathematics at Wheeling, and Thomas L. Rife will be the division head for social science and foreign languages at Wheeling.

LESTER HAS been involved with athletics in District 214 since 1953. He acted as varsity baseball and basketball coach at Arlington High School for four years. He transferred to Prospect High School at its opening where he served as athletic director for three years. Two years ago he moved back to Arlington High as athletic director.

Next year Lester will continue on a part-time basis as athletic director at Arlington High in addition to his duties as coordinator of physical education and athletics. Present plans call for a part-time assistant for Arlington High to be named before the opening of school next fall.

Lester lives at 1103 N. Pine, Arlington Heights. He and his wife have two daughters, Vicky, 21, a student at Illinois State College at Normal, and Sue, 18, a student at Chicago School of Beauty Culture.

LESTER WAS graduated from Illinois State Normal University with a B.S. degree in physical education. He holds a master's degree in education from the same school. Before coming to District 214, Lester taught physical education at Shelbyville, Abingdon, Batavia and Winchester, all in downstate Illinois.

Haskell of 221 N. Eastwood, Mount Prospect, came to District 214 from Central Junior High in Steger, Ill., where he taught physical education and social studies. He holds a B.S. in education from Olivet Nazarene College in Kankakee and a master's from the University of Chicago. He and his wife, Evelyn, have four sons, ages 14, 12, 10 and 5.

Sidelights

Of Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights, Scarsdale & Estates, Stonegate

Dorothy Meyer, CL 3-2298   Elsie Jedd, CL 3-5982

Pheasants and Sidelights items have something in common this week — they're hard to find. According to some local hunters the birds can read and, having been forewarned in print, they all left the country just before the season opened Saturday noon. However, no one has yet declared open season on the Sidelights. Sometimes it just looks that way.

Mrs. Arthur Olsen and Mrs. William Heise, newcomers to the 600 block of S. Walnut Street, were recently welcomed by 20 of their new neighbors at a coffee given by Mrs. Herb Carl and Mrs. Russell Larson. Both guests of honor were already Arlington Heights residents and needed no introduction to the City of Good Neighbors, only to another neighborhoodful of them.

The Olsens moved from a S. Vail Street address, and the Heises from N. Yale.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Smith, 909 S. Dunton, came home Friday from a 2-week tour through the Southeast that included a 3-day stay in New Orleans and brief sightseeing stops in other major southern cities.

The Smiths' daughter, Sharon, left here late last month to begin working and studying at the University of Washington in Seattle. A registered nurse, Miss Smith will work in the university hospital as well as in campus classrooms, furthering her studies.

THE TED Lisec family, once of Arlington Heights and recently of Indianapolis, is now partly here and partly in New York. Lisec is in the East attending an executive accountants' school, and his wife and children are staying here for the 2-month-plus duration with Mrs. Lisec's parents, the Frank Leths, 503 S. Evergreen.

Susan Kendall was 12 years old Tuesday and celebrated that evening at a family dinner party in the Kendall home, 733 S. Dunton.

Tommy Olcese, 1131 N. Walnut, celebrated his sixth birthday Saturday with nine neighborhood friends who were his guests at an afternoon party. Little-people approved games with matching refreshments filled the afternoon schedule and the party goers.

Weekend visitors in the Otto Adam home, 510 N. Evergreen, were long-time friends, the Floyd Larson family of Elkhorn, Wis.

An after-school party last Wednesday marked the big event of Barbara Hey's seventh birthday, making the afternoon school session the longest in the memory of Miss Hey and her 11 guests. Lots of fun and much-needed refreshments at 441 S. Highland revived the school-weary celebrants.

THE JAMES Masons are home again at 902 S. State after a 3-week vacation that meandered them through New Orleans, Miami, Nassau and Jamaica. They had a few relaxed, sun-filled days in each place, toured through much of Florida and came home Friday, looking tan and rested.

A long-time-ago Arlington Heighter is back in town, renewing old friendships and marvelling at the size of her "little" home town. She is the former Marie Kolle, now Mrs. Harold Therens, mother of two sons and twin daughters, and a grandmother 12 times. Cleveland residents for 35 years, she and her husband now live at 706 N. Drury.

Many veteran Arlington Heighters will remember Mrs. Therens' late father, Nick, who was active in local politics and a dedicated worker for his party. The former Kolle residence was at 12 S. Vail and Mrs. Therens says it was a pleasant surprise to see the home still there despite the many other changes in the downtown area.

Mr. Therens is with A.T.&T., and was recently transferred to the Chicago office. Two sons and a daughter live in Cleveland, and the other twin daughter was married here Aug. 31.

THE EDWARD Wilsons, 304 S. Wilshire, became grandparents with the arrival of Edward Forsyth Wilson, born Nov. 11, to Ens. and Mrs. Edward H. Wilson in Sharpe Memorial Hospital, San Diego. Ens. Wilson is at sea on an 8-month cruise and will not see his son until Dec. 4.

The Arthur Klimas, 1001 Mayfair, recently returned from New York, where they attended the wedding of her son, William Lloyd Elkjer to Miss Karin Ruth Thompson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Howard T. Thompson of Rochester. The wedding took place Oct. 19 in the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Reformation in Rochester.

The newlyweds will live in Hamilton, Ohio, where he is working as an architect, while she finishes her senior year at the University of Miami.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Coobs, 401 S. Carlyle, joined the Henry Wieditzes of Arlington Heights Saturday to attend the Lyric Opera performance of Tannhauser, after which they dined at the Golden Ox.

THE THOMAS Hamiltons, 111 S. Dryden, came home Sunday from a 2-week vacation at Lauderdale - by - the - Sea, where they met friends from Delaware and Mrs. Hamilton's sister and brother-in-law, the Charles Meyers of South Bend.

Both the Hamiltons came back with fine suntans acquired while swimming and drift fishing. A boat trip to Cap's restaurant was an interesting adventure in dining.

Mrs. Wilbur Todd, 103 S. Brighton, gave a coffee Tuesday to welcome Mrs. Joseph Lyons, who recently moved to Stonegate from Cedar Rapids.

The Robert Kramers, 1717 Kensington, spent the weekend in Cedar Rapids visiting their daughter, Janet, a senior at Coe College. Because Coe College is on a quarterly system, Janet will not be home for the Thanksgiving holidays.

Miss Linda Seales, daughter of Mrs. C. F. Seales, 222 S. Drury, who attends Ohio Wesleyan University, went to Granville to spend the weekend with two Denison College friends and Stonegate neighbors, the Misses Lynn Johnson and Sue Hamilton.

They will continue catching up on the news when they all come home next week for the Thanksgiving holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Blaisdell, 628 Newbury, had as their houseguests last week, former Scarsdale neighbors, the Heinz Lips of Wilmington, Del., who were here for a 5-day visit. The Lips' seven children, Bill, Tom, Walter, Peter, James, David and Linda, asked their parents to extend greetings to all their friends.

Mrs. G. E. McReynolds of St. Joseph, Mo., was in Arlington Heights for a weekend visit with her son and family, the R. E. McReynolds, 538 S. Lincoln.

NEWCOMERS to Scarsdale are Mr. and Mrs. George Lawlis, who moved to 810 Bristol from Greenwich, Conn., Sept. 30. They have one daughter, Anita, who will be 13 years old Saturday. Mr. Lawlis is employed by the Kraft Food Company in Chicago.

Robert Grabitz, 509 S. Dryden, organized a party for neighborhood fathers and sons who wanted to see the televised Chicago Bear-Green Bay Packers football game Sunday. smokeless broiling

Yours with Modern Gas Ranges

There's nothing like gas flame for cool, clean, closed-door broiling No need to heat up and smoke up your kitchen ...gas gives you truly smokeless broiling. The friendly gas flame completely burns up the greasy smoke that otherwise would escape into the kitchen. (Make your own test. Hold a lighted match above a burning cigarette... watch the flame "eat up" the smoke.)

"Flame-kissed" broiling. Flavor is flame-sealed for succulent, tender results. Not desert-dry, dehydrating heat, but pure, "flame-kissed" broiling, as in fine restaurants.

Instant on — or off! No lengthy warm-up period when you broil with gas... the flame responds instantly to the turn of a dial. Turn it off... presto! —no flame—no "carry-over" heat to linger on and on!

"Automatic" means more with gas. Set baking or roasting time—then forget it... temperature controlled burners prevent burned food... each automatic feature is better because of the precise heat control possible with gas. Only the friendly gas flame gives the subtle variations of heat so necessary to fine cooking.

Increases will also go to widows of servicemen who died after Jan. 1, 1957, if they have elected to receive DIC instead of death compensation. (WUS

Parents Throng to Hear About Colleges

More than 800 students and parents attended the college night program last week at Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Rolling Meadows.

Fourteen Catholic colleges sent representatives to the program, while more distant schools provided display material for information.

Mother M. Thomas, principal, opened the program with an address of welcome. She expressed her appreciation to the college representatives for being present, and to the parents and students for their enthusiasm manifested in the large attendance.

The main speaker of the evening was The Rev. Joseph Dooley, associate professor of political science and history at Marian College.

Commenting on what he called the "knowledge explosion," Fr. Dooley reminded his audience of the growing complexity of our modern world. "Life is getting more complicated," he stated, "and we need more education if we are to cope effectively with life today."

He emphasized that the specialization demanded in our modern civilization is not provided for in our high schools, hence the necessity of a college education for all who can possibly attend.

Fr. Dooley reminded the students that their decision to go to college or not to go would be one of the most important decisions of their lives.

After the lecture the students and their parents had the opportunity to visit each college "booth" and to talk with the representatives of the various colleges.

Colleges represented were: De Paul, Loyola, Mundelein and St. Xavier, Chicago; Rosary College, River Forest; Barat College, Lake Forest; Marycrest College, Davenport; Loretto Heights College, Denver, Colo.; Alverno College, Milwaukee; Dominican College, Racine; Marian College, Indianapolis; Webster College, Webster Grove, Mo.; and the Marymount Colleges in New York, Virginia, California and Florida. Fire Destroys 25 Meadowdale Stores

CARPENTERSVILLE, (UPI) — Fire roared through 26 stores of the Meadowdale Shopping Center early Tuesday. Loss was estimated at $1,000,000.

State Fire Marshal William Cowhey began an on-the-scene investigation to determine the cause of the fire. It was believed to have started in Marvin's Shoe Store, one of the 25 stores destroyed.

THE 26TH STORE, Carson Pirie Scott & Co., received heavy smoke and water damage, largely from a sprinkler system that was set off throughout the shop.

The stores were in the Winter Garden small arcade, which makes up about half of the total shopping center of 54 stores. Fourteen of the stores were built around a skating rink, which was destroyed.

Two women's shops, a barber shop, a beauty shop, a realty office, a shoe store, a record shop, a book store and the shopping center office were among the establishments destroyed.

The fire was discovered by Carpentersville Police Chief James Klinkhamer who was in the Winter Garden with a companion when they saw smoke. Klinkhamer said he was nearly choking on the smoke by the time he could turn in an alarm, and by the time firemen arrived, the fire had spread to a half dozen shops.

FLAMES SHOT high into the night air and lit up the surrounding area.

Firemen from East Dundee, West Dundee, Crystal Lake, Elgin, Palatine, Cary, Gilberts, Barrington Hills and Algonquin were summoned after the alarm was turned in at 11:37 p.m. The fire was not controlled for about three and one-half hours.

State police blocked off Illinois 25, which runs past the shopping center. Carpentersville is four miles north of Elgin, northwest of Chicago. (A14

Student Council Leaders Attend Aurora Convention

Three administrators and 37 students from High School District 214 participated Saturday, Nov. 16, in the last annual Northeast-Northwest Area Student Council Convention at East Aurora High school in Aurora.

About 1,000 students and 100 teachers from the NE-NW area attended. Next year this area will be split into separate Northwest and Northeast areas with District 214 students attending the Northeast area.

Burton L. Showers, director of student activities and adviser for the Student Council at Forest View High school, was chosen by the general advisers' group as adviser-at-large for a 2-year term.

SHOWERS, known in state student council circles as "Mr. Student Council," will be serving his third term as district adviser-at-large. He has been a member of the State Executive Board of the Illinois Association of Student Councils for eight years and has served as the organization's chairman.

Bruce Altergott, adviser for student council for the junior-senior building at Palatine High School, was chosen at adviser-at-large for a one-year term.

In addition to Showers, other District 214 advisers present were Miss Martha Craig, Student Council adviser at Arlington High School, and Frank Bohac, director of student activities at Arlington High School.

PROJECTS WHICH the convention undertook in its one-day conference included the making of campaign speeches, the planning of a new constitution, the making of plans for next year's convention, and then splitting into 40 discussion groups, each with a different topic.

Student leaders from District 214 high schools included Pat Herman from Forest View High School. Pat led the "Techniques of Leadership" group. From Arlington High School were Jack Lindstrom, who led the "Privileges and Responsibilities of High School Students" discussion; and Mack Borgen, who led the discussion of "Student Council Responsibility for Student Behavior.."

"This convention was one of the largest student convention meetings in the United States," Showers said. "It was comparable in size to the Illinois State Student Council Convention."

Some 13 students attended from Forest View High School. They were Brian Karp, Charles Fyfe, Bill Sundblad, Pat Sullivan, Pat Hermann, Jim Humphrey, Faith Meyer, Gary Grenlie, Bob Kohn, Tom Denney, Jan Newberg, Bonnie Luczak, and Charles Boesenberg.

Also, senior Carol Torrens of Forest View High school, the second vice-president of the Illinois Association of Student Councils, attended the District Student Council Convention at Pekin Saturday.

Fourteen students attended from Arlington High School. They were Jim Auld, Fred Kasl, Nancy Palmatier, Joy Witt, Margo Seaman, Dorothy Anderson, John Rybski, Mine Acemi, Rich Faner, Chris Thackery, Janet Hault, and discussion leaders Jack Lindstrom and Mack Borgen.

Ten students attended from Prospect High School. They were Kathy Farleigh, Marguerite DeHuszar, Steve Herod, Don Jernberg, Sandy Joern, Charlotte Kreusch, Jeri Robbins, Barbara Rucker, Julieann Thomas, and Ralph Thompson. (ACM-EG

'Y' Indian Braves Slate Tree Sale

Indian Braves from Northwest Suburban YMCA have been meeting around council fires to plan for their annual Christmas tree sale, which begins Thursday, Dec. 5. The braves, all fathers and sons of the 'Y' Indian Guides, are now selling tickets which can be used toward the purchase of trees at the sales lot, adjacent to the 'Y' building, 300 E. Northwest Hy., Des Plaines.

A 10-cent commission is being paid on every advance ticket sold. Tribes selling tickets can use this commission to fill their "wampum pouches" to pay for projects and outings.

PROCEEDS FROM the tree sale will help complete a $5,000 pledge made by Big Waters Nation of Indian Guides to the local YMCA building fund.

With over 350 fathers and sons active in the area Indian Guides, manpower during the selling period should be no problem. Big and little braves will share in keeping the lot open until Christmas Eve.

INDIAN GUIDE tribes interested in selling the advance tickets may call Bob Spinks, Arlington Heights, at 253-7184 for further information. (B9

"I REMEMBER"
BY The Old Timers

Grandmother also told about the time my uncle had an attack of appendicitis. There was no doctor where they lived, so they had to wait for a train. The whole family went along because there was no one to leave the children with and they rode the train more than one hundred miles to the town where the operation was performed. They brought ice and put it in fruit jars to pack around my uncle on the train to keep the appendix from bursting. They were met by an ambulance which rushed him to the hospital for the operation. He is alive to this day, a healthy man.

About 1,000 students and 100 teachers from the NE-NW area attended. Next year this area will be split into separate Northwest and Northeast areas with District 214 students attending the Northeast area.

Burton L. Showers, director of student activities and adviser for the Student Council at Forest View High school, was chosen by the general advisers' group as adviser-at-large for a 2-year term.

SHOWERS, known in state student council circles as "Mr. Student Council," will be serving his third term as district adviser-at-large. He has been a member of the State Executive Board of the Illinois Association of Student Councils for eight years and has served as the organization's chairman.

Bruce Altergott, adviser for student council for the junior-senior building at Palatine High School, was chosen at adviser-at-large for a one-year term.

In addition to Showers, other District 214 advisers present were Miss Martha Craig, Student Council adviser at Arlington High School, and Frank Bohac, director of student activities at Arlington High School.

PROJECTS WHICH the convention undertook in its one-day conference included the making of campaign speeches, the planning of a new constitution, the making of plans for next year's convention, and then splitting into 40 discussion groups, each with a different topic.

Student leaders from District 214 high schools included Pat Herman from Forest View High School. Pat led the "Techniques of Leadership" group. From Arlington High School were Jack Lindstrom, who led the "Privileges and Responsibilities of High School Students" discussion; and Mack Borgen, who led the discussion of "Student Council Responsibility for Student Behavior.."

"This convention was one of the largest student convention meetings in the United States," Showers said. "It was comparable in size to the Illinois State Student Council Convention."

Some 13 students attended from Forest View High School. They were Brian Karp, Charles Fyfe, Bill Sundblad, Pat Sullivan, Pat Hermann, Jim Humphrey, Faith Meyer, Gary Grenlie, Bob Kohn, Tom Denney, Jan Newberg, Bonnie Luczak, and Charles Boesenberg.

Also, senior Carol Torrens of Forest View High school, the second vice-president of the Illinois Association of Student Councils, attended the District Student Council Convention at Pekin Saturday.

Fourteen students attended from Arlington High School. They were Jim Auld, Fred Kasl, Nancy Palmatier, Joy Witt, Margo Seaman, Dorothy Anderson, John Rybski, Mine Acemi, Rich Faner, Chris Thackery, Janet Hault, and discussion leaders Jack Lindstrom and Mack Borgen.

Ten students attended from Prospect High School. They were Kathy Farleigh, Marguerite DeHuszar, Steve Herod, Don Jernberg, Sandy Joern, Charlotte Kreusch, Jeri Robbins, Barbara Rucker, Julieann Thomas, and Ralph Thompson. (ACM-EG

"I REMEMBER"
BY The Old Timers

Grandmother also told about the time my uncle had an attack of appendicitis. There was no doctor where they lived, so they had to wait for a train. The whole family went along because there was no one to leave the children with and they rode the train more than one hundred miles to the town where the operation was performed. They brought ice and put it in fruit jars to pack around my uncle on the train to keep the appendix from bursting. They were met by an ambulance which rushed him to the hospital for the operation. He is alive to this day, a healthy man.

'Y' Indian Braves Slate Tree Sale

Indian Braves from Northwest Suburban YMCA have been meeting around council fires to plan for their annual Christmas tree sale, which begins Thursday, Dec. 5. The braves, all fathers and sons of the 'Y' Indian Guides, are now selling tickets which can be used toward the purchase of trees at the sales lot, adjacent to the 'Y' building, 300 E. Northwest Hy., Des Plaines.

A 10-cent commission is being paid on every advance ticket sold. Tribes selling tickets can use this commission to fill their "wampum pouches" to pay for projects and outings.

PROCEEDS FROM the tree sale will help complete a $5,000 pledge made by Big Waters Nation of Indian Guides to the local YMCA building fund.

With over 350 fathers and sons active in the area Indian Guides, manpower during the selling period should be no problem. Big and little braves will share in keeping the lot open until Christmas Eve.

INDIAN GUIDE tribes interested in selling the advance tickets may call Bob Spinks, Arlington Heights, at 253-7184 for further information. (B9

Hospital Chairman Honored by Trustees

The regular business of the Arlington Heights Village Board was set aside for a brief period Monday night to honor A. C. Buehler, chairman of the board of trustees of Northwest Community Hospital.

Mayor John G. Woods stated the village board was "happy to postpone its deliberations" to "pay honor" to Buehler.

Woods explained that Buehler has served two terms as chairman of the hospital board in addition to pledging $150,000 to the hospital expansion fund campaign now under way. Aim of the campaign are funds for a $4 mililon addition to the present hospital building.

WOODS READ the framed citation before presenting it to Buehler: "Whereas the Northwest Community Hospital is an outstanding institution serving Arlington Heights and the Northwest Suburban Area; and, Whereas A. C. Buehler, as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Northwest Community Hospital, has generously contributed his time, his talents and his worldly possessions; and, Whereas his demonstrated leadership, untiring efforts and financial generosity to the hospital have contributed materially to the welfare of Arlington Heights and to the area in general;

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the President and the Board of Trustees of the Village of Arlington Heights that this resolution of appreciation be awarded on behalf of the citizens of Arlington Heights . . . in grateful recognition of his outstanding public service to Arlington Heights and the entire Northwest Suburban Area." Forensic Students Win Three Trophies

At the Catholic Forensic League Tournament held at Immaculate Heart High School in Westchester last week students from Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Rolling Meadows were awarded three trophies.

Representing the school in the various divisions were 10 girls from the freshman and sophomore classes.

Linda Gallagher, a sophomore, won a first place trophy in original oratory. Linda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gallagher, 312 Longacres Lane, Palatine, and a graduate of St. Colette School in Rolling Meadows.

A THIRD place trophy was awarded to Madonna McMahon, a freshman, for her performance in dramatic monologue. Madonna, a graduate of St. Raymond School in Mount Prospect, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John McMahon, 600 W. Lincoln St., Mount Prospect.

The combined points of all 10 contestants won for the school a third-place trophy.

The areas in which the girls competed were original oratory, oratorical declamation, extemporaneous speaking, dramatic monologue and humorous monologue.

Donna Tarpey and Virginia Mungenast were finalists in their respective divisions, oratorical declamation and humorous monologue.

Competing in the tournament were 20 other Catholic high schools. (B9

Romney Hits Partisanship In Defeat of Tax Reforms

by JAMES S. BROOKS
United Press International

LANSING, MICH., (UPI) — Timing, political aspirations, special interests and citizen support were main factors in the defeat of plans to rewrite Michigan's tax laws, Gov. George Romney said.

The main problem, he told newsmen, was "legislative members of both parties who are more interested in self-preservation or narrow partisan politics than in supporting needed state programs.

"This was the primary but not the only factor in defeat of the program," he said.

TIMING entered in, he said, "in light of the state's improved financial situation. It was apparent early in the summer that this was not the favorable time politically to undertake tax reform.

"However, economically and from the standpoint of job needs, it was urgently needed," he said.

"The political climate was wrong under such circumstances, largely because of other factors — principally the indifference of politicians and many citizens when there is no crisis or emergency."

Romney said another factor was the legislators of both parties "who put political objectives and self-interest first and the state's interests last.

"IT IS CLEAR from the actions of some Republicans and some Democratic legislators in the past — and I emphasize the past — in the past and present, that they are more interested in obstructing and defeating a governor than they are in supporting a sound and needed program."

Romney said some members voted on long-standing convictions, "but I am referring to those who clearly acted on a partisan basis — even shifting their position on the same basic program" they have considered in past years.

Special interest groups entered the picture, he said, with "The greater desire . . . for the full realization of their excessive demands regardless of its effect on the total program of greater benefit to themselves and others." He listed among these some senior citizens, some school officials, and brewery interests — which he termed the "yes, but" group.

Romney declined to concede total defeat but claimed "there was more Republican support than ever before for basic tax reform."

1000 Diabetes Test Kits Given Out First Day

More than 1,000 free diabetes test kits were distributed Monday at Randhurst Center during the first day of a Diabetes Detection Drive in northwest suburbs.

The kits are being distributed this week by the Mothers of Diabetic Children at a special booth in the mall of the Mount Prospect center.

The women expect to hand out a thousand kits daily for the entire week, with approximately 90 per cent used and returned.

The concerted test drive is part of National Diabetes Week observance Nov. 17-23. (B8

Forensic Students Win Three Trophies

At the Catholic Forensic League Tournament held at Immaculate Heart High School in Westchester last week students from Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Rolling Meadows were awarded three trophies.

Representing the school in the various divisions were 10 girls from the freshman and sophomore classes.

Linda Gallagher, a sophomore, won a first place trophy in original oratory. Linda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gallagher, 312 Longacres Lane, Palatine, and a graduate of St. Colette School in Rolling Meadows.

A THIRD place trophy was awarded to Madonna McMahon, a freshman, for her performance in dramatic monologue. Madonna, a graduate of St. Raymond School in Mount Prospect, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John McMahon, 600 W. Lincoln St., Mount Prospect.

The combined points of all 10 contestants won for the school a third-place trophy.

The areas in which the girls competed were original oratory, oratorical declamation, extemporaneous speaking, dramatic monologue and humorous monologue.

Donna Tarpey and Virginia Mungenast were finalists in their respective divisions, oratorical declamation and humorous monologue.

Competing in the tournament were 20 other Catholic high schools. (B9

Romney Hits Partisanship In Defeat of Tax Reforms

by JAMES S. BROOKS
United Press International

LANSING, MICH., (UPI) — Timing, political aspirations, special interests and citizen support were main factors in the defeat of plans to rewrite Michigan's tax laws, Gov. George Romney said.

The main problem, he told newsmen, was "legislative members of both parties who are more interested in self-preservation or narrow partisan politics than in supporting needed state programs.

"This was the primary but not the only factor in defeat of the program," he said.

TIMING entered in, he said, "in light of the state's improved financial situation. It was apparent early in the summer that this was not the favorable time politically to undertake tax reform.

"However, economically and from the standpoint of job needs, it was urgently needed," he said.

"The political climate was wrong under such circumstances, largely because of other factors — principally the indifference of politicians and many citizens when there is no crisis or emergency."

Romney said another factor was the legislators of both parties "who put political objectives and self-interest first and the state's interests last.

"IT IS CLEAR from the actions of some Republicans and some Democratic legislators in the past — and I emphasize the past — in the past and present, that they are more interested in obstructing and defeating a governor than they are in supporting a sound and needed program."

Romney said some members voted on long-standing convictions, "but I am referring to those who clearly acted on a partisan basis — even shifting their position on the same basic program" they have considered in past years.

Special interest groups entered the picture, he said, with "The greater desire . . . for the full realization of their excessive demands regardless of its effect on the total program of greater benefit to themselves and others." He listed among these some senior citizens, some school officials, and brewery interests — which he termed the "yes, but" group.

Romney declined to concede total defeat but claimed "there was more Republican support than ever before for basic tax reform."

Clark in Battle Against Pollution

ROCK ISLAND, (UPI) — Illinois Atty. Gen. William G. Clark said Tuesday he has started a program to prevent any further water contamination in the state.

Clark said the nature of pollution and abatement is the problem.

Somebody last month dumped 2,500 gallons of cyanide into Kickapoo Creek at Mattoon. This endangered the water supply of Newton, 25 miles downstream from Mattoon.

"A community is reluctant to expend money to abate pollution because somebody on down the river, in the case of water pollution, rather than they themselves, receive the benefits of such a program," Clark told a rotary lunchon meeting.

THE ATTORNEY general said the reluctance of communities to take part in an abatement program for water pollution was "clear nearsightedness, because the reverse of the coin is exactly true.'

Clark said the reluctant community would receive the same pollution from a community upstream from them as they would give to one downstream.

Clark said, "I hope to be able to ask the cooperation of all local governments in the state as well as private industry to make definite efforts to cure any existing pollution problems . . . and prevent further contamination than that which already exists in the water of this state." (A14

Politics Gone From Prisons, Kerner Says

CARBONDALE, ILL., (UPI)—Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner said Sunday night that "There are too many people who believe prison is a place for punishment and not a place for rehabilitation."

Kerner, speaking at the opening session of an 11-state conference for parole board members, said "In the Illinois prison system today there are no political appointees. They are all professionally trained career men."

HE SAID THE correctional field is among the last to move from political to professional staffing.

"In Illinois today we have replaced the uninterested and untrained political appointee," Kerner said. "Today most of those in correctional institutions have contact with psychiatrists and social workers, whereas a relatively few years ago, their only contacts were with guards."

The conference will continue through this week. (A-14

5 Residents Enter TB Sanitarium

Five area residents were among 36 Cook County residents admitted to the Suburban Cook County Tuberculosis Hospital Sanitarium at Hinsdale during October.

Three of the patients were from Arlington Heights, and one each from Elk Grove and Rolling Meadows.

Currently there are 136 suburban county residents undergoing treatment for TB, according to Dr. E. A. Piszczek, field director for the Suburban Cook County Tuberculosis Sanitarium District.

In 1962 suburban Cook County accounted for 278 new active cases of tuberculosis. There were 37 deaths for the same area. (B9

Disney Defends His Lincoln Creation for World's Fair

by BRUCE B. BAKKE
United Press International

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI) — Walt Disney said he is "staking my reputation" on the success or failure of an animated Abraham Lincoln figure that is to be the heart of the Illinois exhibit at the New York World's Fair.

Disney, in Springfield to preview the "Land of Lincoln" exhibit, said the Lincoln figure "is not a motion picture, not a cartoon, this is a sincere presentation of a great man."

"I have more at stake in this than the State of Illinois," Disney said at a news conference. "I am staking my reputation on this — my integrity. I am not a carnival operator."

DISNEY'S statement was in answer to criticism that the animated Lincoln figure might be "grotesque" or resemble a carnival side show.

The Hollywood cartoonist and movie producer, who founded California's famed "Disneyland," said the Lincoln figure will seem to audiences "as lifelike as I am standing before you — perhaps more so."

The Lincoln figure will be in a 12-minute presentation called "Great Moments with Mr. Lincoln" held in a 500-seat auditorium in the $1 million Illinois pavilion at the fair. The program will be seen by an estimated 25,000 visitors a day.

In it, a life-size Lincoln figure stands, sits, talks and gestures.

"HE IS GOING to speak to you," Disney said. "His voice is as close as we could get from actual descriptions of this great man. He will appear in a very dignified setting. While seated in a chair before speaking, he will drop his head in thought, a characteristic Lincoln action. When he is introduced he will stand—putting his hands behind his back, as though deep in thought."

Disney said the figure even will tap its fingers on its chair while waiting for his introduction.

The Pllinois Pavilion also will house a manuscript of the Gettysburg address and other Lincon objects.

GOV. OTTO KERNER told newsmen and observers at the conference in the state capitol that "Abraham Lincoln is the best known American in the world today. As Mr. Seward said, he belongs to the ages."

Kerner said some persons had said Illinois should not spend the money for an exhibit at the World's Fair. The governor said his state was one of the greatest and richest in the nation and "by failing to be present at a World's Fair in the U. S. we would be admitting lack of strength."

Ralph G. Newman, chairman of the Illinois Exhibit Commission, said "Illinois is not spending but investing $1 million in this project. I believe the investment will pay great dividends."

Advent Service Set By Presbyterians

The Presbyterian Church of Palatine will hold its annual advent service Sunday, Dec. 1, at 7 p.m. in the church, 800 E. Chicago Ave. It will be a service of music and Scripture planned for the entire family to help prepare for the coming of Christ. A nursery will be provided for pre-school children. Everyone is welcome.

Four years ago the women's association conceived the idea of having a special service during December to take time to prepare spiritually for Christmas. It was decided to make this an advent service in keeping with the season of expectancy and preparation, concentrating on the Scripture story before the actual nativity took place.

THE MUSIC AND Scriptures will retell the main story of the Old Testament, beginning with God's first promise to the Hebrew people, culminating with the promise of the Messiah to come and the preparation for His coming.

Scripture readings will be given by Mrs. Irvin Kamradt, Mrs. Robert Kocher, Mrs. James Monsma and Mrs. Robert Parker. Mrs. Philip Brooks will narrate the service.

Music will be provided by the church's adult choir, directed and accompanied by E. Thompson Bagley. The offering will go to the general mission fund for the world-wide work of the church. (A-P

Modern Etiquette

Q. When a man asks a girl what kind of flowers she prefers for her evening dress, should she make any suggestions, especially if the flowers she likes are expensive?

A. It is always more tactful in this case merely to tell him the color of her dress, and let him choose appropriate flowers. The florist can assist him in his selection.

Ghastly Indiana Railroad Tragedy Almost Forgotten

by BOYD GILL
United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., (UPI) — It seems impossible for a railroad disaster occurring within the memory of thousands of Hoosiers to be lost in the files of history only a few years later.

But that appears to have happened in the case of the tragic train wreck Nov. 12, 1906, near Woodville, a little community northwest of Valparaiso.

Although the World Almanac, a reliable reference of the world's major disasters of all time, lists rail catastrophies with tolls as low as 15 killed, there's not a word about the Woodville wreck. The death toll is recalled by local residents to have been at least 61 killed and possibly as many as 100 to 110.

Reporter Don Kenyon of the Valparaiso Vidette - Messenger dug into the background of the Woodville accident while seeking the answer to the puzzling question of just how many died in another bad rail wreck in the area—the circus train collision at Ivanhoe near Gary in 1918.

KENYON learned the details from old newspaper files and clippings and interviews with old-timers who remembered the disaster vividly.

A Baltimore and Ohio railroad train was speeding along tracks at a point near where Indiana 49 and U.S. 6 now intersect. It carried a load of immigrants from Poland, Italy, Russia and Austria toward Chicago from the Atlantic coast.

The train crashed head-on into an eastbound freight train and burst into flame. Clippings show the toll was 61 killed, 77 injured seriously.

BUT PORTER County residents who were at the scene afterward recall that through peculiar circumstances many of the dead never were accounted for. They said the train was loaded with many children of the immigrant families, that children rode free on the train, that the railroad and the authorities had no record of the number of passengers aboard and could only count the number of tickets sold to adults.

The Ivanhoe circus train wreck on June 22, 1918, killed somewhere between 57 and 85 persons — nobody is sure just how many.

It happened when a train carrying the Hagenback-Wallace circus from Michigan City to Hammond was struck from the rear by an empty 16-car train while the first was stopped to investigate a "hot wheel."

NEWSPAPER files show that most of the dead, members of the circus troupe and roustabouts who had no permanent addresses, were buried in a Chicago cemetery.

Five life-sized white marble elephants were set up in the cemetery plot to memorialize the wreck's dead, it was said. (B9

Blackhawk Scouting Insignia Is Retired

A high ranking Chicago Boy Scout official paid tribute Sunday to the work done over the years by a local Scouting organization.

More than 300 adult leaders and their wives, attending the annual recognition dinner of the Northwest Suburban Council's Blackhawk District at Old Orchard Country Club, heard Ray Weaver, deputy regional executive, commend them for their efforts in giving boys of their communities "a sense of security, a feeling of belonging, faith in themselves and an opportunity to be of service."

It was the last official function of the 20-year-old Blackhawk District which had grown large enough to be divided into two new districts.

Dinner guests saw the district's insignia retired by outgoing chairman, John H. Dunham Jr., 100 E. Marion, Prospect Heights, followed by the unveiling of the new district names by the village officials concerned.

"SAUK WOODS" is the name of the new district serving Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows, while "North Star" is its counterpart for Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

Distinguished service awards were presented to Walter E. Lyman, 21 N. Lancaster, Mount Prospect, for his work with Cub Scout Pack 152; to Thomas F. Clauter, 317 S. George, Mount Prospect, for his work as scoutmaster of Troop 135; to John N. Pedersen, 804 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, an adviser and rifle instructor for Explorer Post 57; and to LeRoy H. Archaeology Group To Hear Localite

Chicago Archaeological Society members living in the Paddock area will be attending a meeting of the group Sunday evening at 8 at the Chicago Academy of Sciences, 2001 N. Clark St., Chicago. Capt. William F. Dickson, USAF command pilot, will talk on "Archaeology in Southern Japan."

Capt. Dickson is assigned to the Secretary of the Air Force, Midwest Office of Information, Chicago, and lives with his wife and three children in Roselle. He has 15 years of military service on his record and was in Korea and Japan during 1953-56.

WHILE ON the island of Kyushu, Japan, he accidentally discovered an important burial site that had been partially washed out after a storm. A Chinese bronze mirror dating around the time of Christ was found, along with other parts of mirrors, an iron dagger and early pottery. This period was about 500 years prior to written history in Japan.

Because of his interest, a Buddhist shrine was built in his honor at this site.

HAVING NO formal training in archaeology, Capt. Dickson will emphasize the responsibility of the amateur and explain the Japanese system of protecting the nation's heritage. (B9

Collects Back Pay, Serves Smorgasbord

SALEM, ILL., (UPI) — Marion County State's Atty. William P. Miller found it wasn't necessary to issue any subpoenaes to a smorgasbord he threw Tuesday in the County Courthouse.

Miller had promised county employes a feed if he ever collected some $3,000 in back pay due him because of a population increase in the county.

Miller made good the promise Tuesday. The tables in the hall outside his third floor office were spread with such standby goodies as roast beef, ham and turkey. And for the gourmets with a little sporting blood—such delicacies as fried ants and chocolate covered grasshoppers.

About 80 county employes, board members and attorneys partook.

"It was quite a spread," said one board member. (B9

Advent Service Set By Presbyterians

The Presbyterian Church of Palatine will hold its annual advent service Sunday, Dec. 1, at 7 p.m. in the church, 800 E. Chicago Ave. It will be a service of music and Scripture planned for the entire family to help prepare for the coming of Christ. A nursery will be provided for pre-school children. Everyone is welcome.

Four years ago the women's association conceived the idea of having a special service during December to take time to prepare spiritually for Christmas. It was decided to make this an advent service in keeping with the season of expectancy and preparation, concentrating on the Scripture story before the actual nativity took place.

THE MUSIC AND Scriptures will retell the main story of the Old Testament, beginning with God's first promise to the Hebrew people, culminating with the promise of the Messiah to come and the preparation for His coming.

Scripture readings will be given by Mrs. Irvin Kamradt, Mrs. Robert Kocher, Mrs. James Monsma and Mrs. Robert Parker. Mrs. Philip Brooks will narrate the service.

Music will be provided by the church's adult choir, directed and accompanied by E. Thompson Bagley. The offering will go to the general mission fund for the world-wide work of the church. (A-P

Modern Etiquette

Q. When a man asks a girl what kind of flowers she prefers for her evening dress, should she make any suggestions, especially if the flowers she likes are expensive?

A. It is always more tactful in this case merely to tell him the color of her dress, and let him choose appropriate flowers. The florist can assist him in his selection.

Ghastly Indiana Railroad Tragedy Almost Forgotten

by BOYD GILL
United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., (UPI) — It seems impossible for a railroad disaster occurring within the memory of thousands of Hoosiers to be lost in the files of history only a few years later.

But that appears to have happened in the case of the tragic train wreck Nov. 12, 1906, near Woodville, a little community northwest of Valparaiso.

Although the World Almanac, a reliable reference of the world's major disasters of all time, lists rail catastrophies with tolls as low as 15 killed, there's not a word about the Woodville wreck. The death toll is recalled by local residents to have been at least 61 killed and possibly as many as 100 to 110.

Reporter Don Kenyon of the Valparaiso Vidette - Messenger dug into the background of the Woodville accident while seeking the answer to the puzzling question of just how many died in another bad rail wreck in the area—the circus train collision at Ivanhoe near Gary in 1918.

KENYON learned the details from old newspaper files and clippings and interviews with old-timers who remembered the disaster vividly.

A Baltimore and Ohio railroad train was speeding along tracks at a point near where Indiana 49 and U.S. 6 now intersect. It carried a load of immigrants from Poland, Italy, Russia and Austria toward Chicago from the Atlantic coast.

The train crashed head-on into an eastbound freight train and burst into flame. Clippings show the toll was 61 killed, 77 injured seriously.

BUT PORTER County residents who were at the scene afterward recall that through peculiar circumstances many of the dead never were accounted for. They said the train was loaded with many children of the immigrant families, that children rode free on the train, that the railroad and the authorities had no record of the number of passengers aboard and could only count the number of tickets sold to adults.

The Ivanhoe circus train wreck on June 22, 1918, killed somewhere between 57 and 85 persons — nobody is sure just how many.

It happened when a train carrying the Hagenback-Wallace circus from Michigan City to Hammond was struck from the rear by an empty 16-car train while the first was stopped to investigate a "hot wheel."

NEWSPAPER files show that most of the dead, members of the circus troupe and roustabouts who had no permanent addresses, were buried in a Chicago cemetery.

Five life-sized white marble elephants were set up in the cemetery plot to memorialize the wreck's dead, it was said. (B9

Here Are Pros and Cons of Retail Price Law

Backers Say It Protects Quality

by TOM EDWARDS
Staff Writer

Consumers apparently aren't generally aware of it, but there is a bill now pending before the U.S. Congress that should have quite an import on their shopping activities and dollars — and maybe even on the identities of products.

Called the Quality Stabilization Bill, more exactly it is legislation which will give manufacturers greater control over the marketing practices of retailers. It is to give them a lever by which they can exercise greater authority in setting the conditions under which their products may be sold—and the prices.

It is an attempt to legislate against what backers of the bill refer to as a "retail monopoly." ly."

One of the chief arguments put forward in behalf of the bill is that some retail organizations are forcing manufacturers to cut down on quality to lessen the selling cost of name products.

THEN WITH a cheapened "name" product, some retailers are misusing the name brand "in furtherance of bait merchandising practices," that is, as a come-on in their advertising. Once the customer is in the store, then the salesman may make a pitch to peddle a corresponding but lesser known product, or simply other products on which the profit margin is higher.

That is, the name brand manufacturers are being required to absorb the profit loss resulting from "discout prices" rather than the retailers, it can be deduced from this logic.

Therefore, the main motivations behind the bill seem to be:

1) To protect not only the quality of name brands, but also the price advantage that they enjoy over other competition.

2) To protect small retailers from the price cutting and volume selling tactics of large chain organizations and discount houses.

Perhaps an important consideration for legislators in weighing the legislation is that the proposed content of the bill is aimed almost entirely at giving an advantage to name brands rather than directly fostering quality production itself.

What is to prevent a brand name from being removed from a product and another name substituted by either the retailer or manufacturer, and then sold via any of the present tactics now being deplored?

Ostensibly this could lead to an increase in the present practice of distributing the same product under several different names, with the price often varying according to the label on the product. (However, on durable goods, the brand name sometimes is indicative of the repair service available to the customer, but usually service depends more on the retail firm from which the product is purchased.)

Credence is given to this possible loophole by the fact that supporters of the bill are pointing out that it won't restrict in any way the right of retailers to sell a product at any price they wish, but only from selling the brand name at any price they wish.

FURTHER, THE bill "will be optional with the manufacturer whether to use (it) in the marketing of his products." That is, it would only be obligatory on retailers at the discretion of the manufacturers.

A side effect of the bill that might be beneficial to consumers is that it might eliminate to some extent "deceptive discounts," against which the Federal Trade Commission is reported to be seeking stiffer rules. That is, it might reduce the practice of taking a normally 40-cent item, marking up its price to 45 cents, and then selling it for 39 cents and claiming a "discount" of six cents.

But, indicatively, reduction of phony discounts is evidently not one of the advantages of the bill being cited by private interests lobbying for its passage.

A salient question is why manufacturers even need such a bill. They already have the right to not only withhold their products from any retailer, but even to "announce in advance the circumstances under which he will refuse to deal," according to 1919 and 1936 Supreme Court decisions.

Although they could refuse to provide their products, it is argued, they would be out of business if they did so because of the large proportions of the market some of the retailers, or middlemen wholesalers, control.

Manufacturers are therefore "obligated," one supporter of the bill said, to reduce the quality of their merchandise in order to stay in business. "They used to put the quality in the price, but not any more," he said.

But can't manufacturers be accused of getting themselves into the bind they say they are in by having initially bent their "principles" in accord with pressures from retailers, and now are asking Congress to bail them out?

Is quality ccontrol the main motive behind the bill—or profit margin control?

A strong opponent, the National Cooperative League, a consumer organization, says the bill will result in less price competition and, therefore, higher prices to consumers.

Price competition is "one of the things we have least of in our economy," Jerry Voorhis, executive director of the Cooperative League said.

"Eighty-five per cent of our prices are administered" now, according to a survey by the U.S. Steel Corp., Voorhis said.

AUTOMOBILE, steel, chemical and container prices are all decided upon essentially by manufacturers, he said, and there is "too high a mark up on drugs. People in really competitive lines have a very tough time."

Voorhis also questioned whether small businesses will benefit as is maintained. (According to the proponents of the bill, 60 per cent of the members of the National Small Business Men's Association are for the bill, and 34.5 per cent against.)

The bill is "fair trade (or price fixing) in disguise," according to Walker Sandbach, director of the Hyde Park Cooperative Society in Chicago.

Various "fair trade" proposals (one such bill was defeated in 1958) have been made since holding illegal the principle of resale price contracts.

"The fundamental problem in connection with any effort toward resale price maintenance is whether it results in restraint of trade which does violence to the basic principles of our antitrust laws," the NSBMA stated in listing the arguments against the "quality stabilization" bill

"The difference" between its name, "quality stabilization," and "price fixing . . . are technical and legalistic," according to the June 14 Kiplinger Washington Letter, which is "circulated privately to businessmen."

Besides consumer lobbies, discount houses are against the bill because "It's aimed at discount houses, cut-rate stores . . .," Kiplinger states.

Eight out of 10 housewives are for the bill, according to a survey by Ernst and Ernst, a Chicago firm, private supporters of the bill state.

They make this statement on the basis of replies to the following question, one of six in the survey form:

"Do you believe that the manufacturer who really wants to give you the highest quality. . . highest dependability . . . and highest value . . .in his trademarked product . . . should be permitted to protect that quality . . . and value . . . for you . . . and protect his own good reputation . . by lawfully preventing any change . . . either up or down . . . by any storekeeper . . . in the retail price such quality manufacturer may name . . . to be paid for his quality product everywhere?"

(THIS IS the exact synopsis of the question released in public relations material in behalf of the bill.)

"The bill will pass the House, and may pass the Senate," according to the Kiplinger letter. For the "lobby forces behind the bill are the most powerful in years, including retailers and manufacturers with great influence at grass roots. They are the big advertisers, too, so publishers are very responsive.

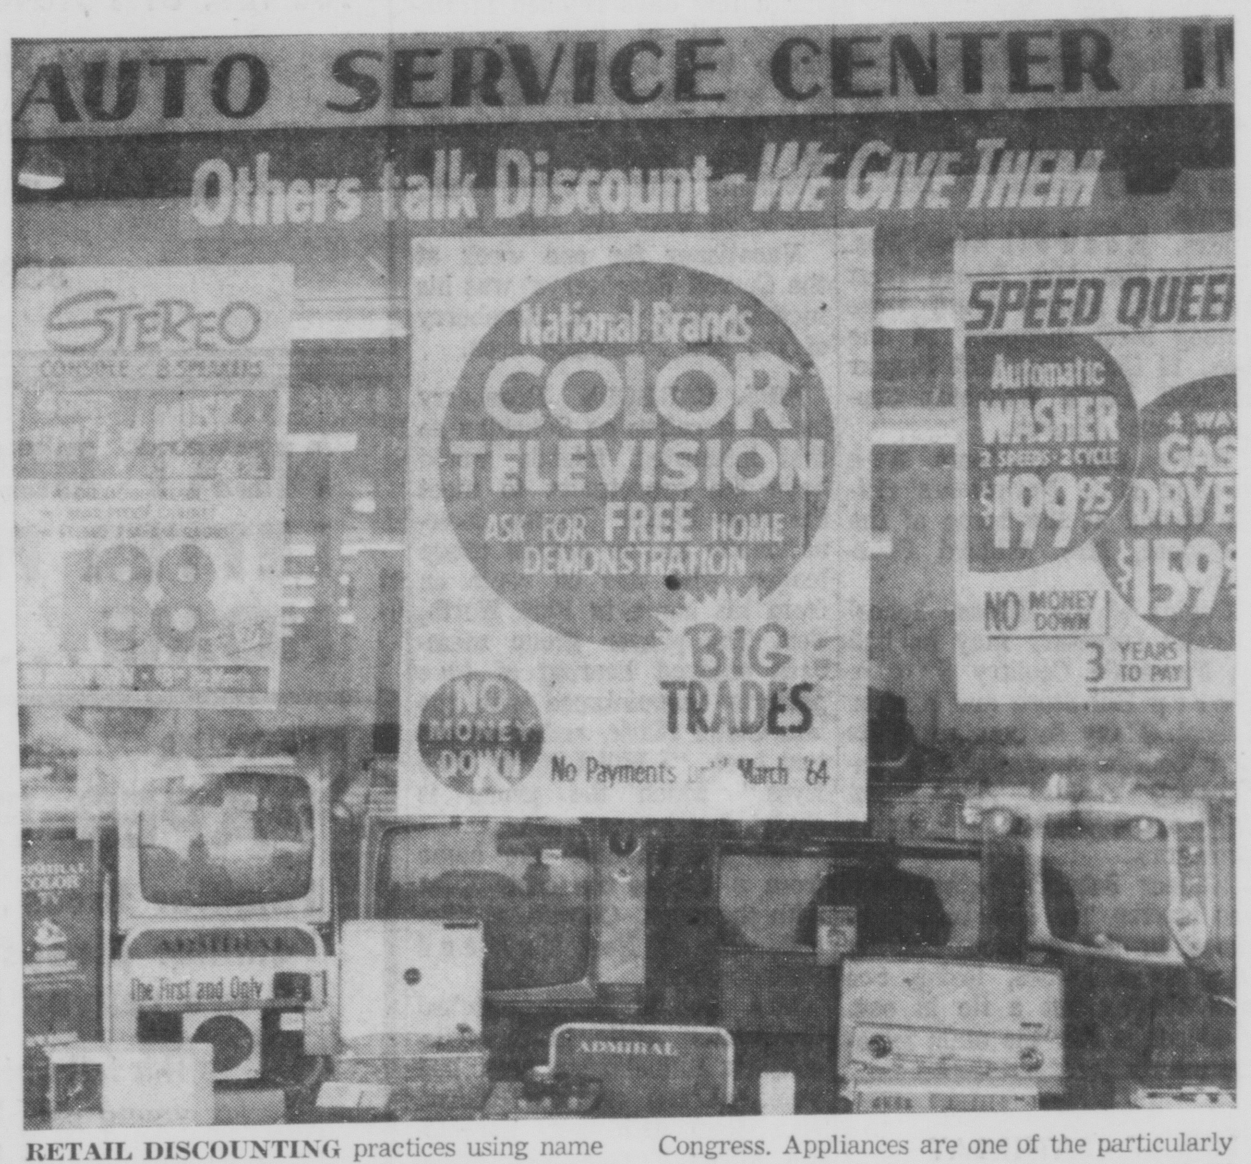
"At least 35 members of House and Senate have introduced bills, and such a show of massed force is well-nigh unbeatable." (Influential Sen. Hubert Humphrey, has introduced this bill with 10 other senators.)

"Probably most Congress members are opposed to the plan . . . But many don't dare vote against, for the retail merchants . . . are bombarding them to get behind it," Kiplinger continues.

"CONSUMER lobbies," though "violently opposed," are "vocal but ineffective, not well organized . . . cut very little ice."

"After all," Kiplinger conlinger concludes, "discounting grew from the competition for sales, and can't be just legislated away," so it "will not stop" if the bill is passed.

With civil rights, foreign aid, and tax cut legislation being given the headlines, there probably won't be too much public airing of this domestic merchandising bill. (A14



RETAIL DISCOUNTING practices using name brands as a come-on are one of the reported targets of legislation being proposed in the U.S. Congress. Appliances are one of the particularly sensitive areas. (A-14

Here Are Pros and Cons of Retail Price Law

by TOM EDWARDS
Staff Writer

Consumers apparently aren't generally aware of it, but there is a bill now pending before the U.S. Congress that should have quite an import on their shopping activities and dollars — and maybe even on the identities of products.

Called the Quality Stabilization Bill, more exactly it is legislation which will give manufacturers greater control over the marketing practices of retailers. It is to give them a lever by which they can exercise greater authority in setting the conditions under which their products may be sold—and the prices.

It is an attempt to legislate against what backers of the bill refer to as a "retail monopoly." ly."

One of the chief arguments put forward in behalf of the bill is that some retail organizations are forcing manufacturers to cut down on quality to lessen the selling cost of name products.

THEN WITH a cheapened "name" product, some retailers are misusing the name brand "in furtherance of bait merchandising practices," that is, as a come-on in their advertising. Once the customer is in the store, then the salesman may make a pitch to peddle a corresponding but lesser known product, or simply other products on which the profit margin is higher.

That is, the name brand manufacturers are being required to absorb the profit loss resulting from "discout prices" rather than the retailers, it can be deduced from this logic.

Therefore, the main motivations behind the bill seem to be:

1) To protect not only the quality of name brands, but also the price advantage that they enjoy over other competition.

2) To protect small retailers from the price cutting and volume selling tactics of large chain organizations and discount houses.

Perhaps an important consideration for legislators in weighing the legislation is that the proposed content of the bill is aimed almost entirely at giving an advantage to name brands rather than directly fostering quality production itself.

What is to prevent a brand name from being removed from a product and another name substituted by either the retailer or manufacturer, and then sold via any of the present tactics now being deplored?

Ostensibly this could lead to an increase in the present practice of distributing the same product under several different names, with the price often varying according to the label on the product. (However, on durable goods, the brand name sometimes is indicative of the repair service available to the customer, but usually service depends more on the retail firm from which the product is purchased.)

Credence is given to this possible loophole by the fact that supporters of the bill are pointing out that it won't restrict in any way the right of retailers to sell a product at any price they wish, but only from selling the brand name at any price they wish.

FURTHER, THE bill "will be optional with the manufacturer whether to use (it) in the marketing of his products." That is, it would only be obligatory on retailers at the discretion of the manufacturers.

A side effect of the bill that might be beneficial to consumers is that it might eliminate to some extent "deceptive discounts," against which the Federal Trade Commission is reported to be seeking stiffer rules. That is, it might reduce the practice of taking a normally 40-cent item, marking up its price to 45 cents, and then selling it for 39 cents and claiming a "discount" of six cents.

But, indicatively, reduction of phony discounts is evidently not one of the advantages of the bill being cited by private interests lobbying for its passage.

A salient question is why manufacturers even need such a bill. They already have the right to not only withhold their products from any retailer, but even to "announce in advance the circumstances under which he will refuse to deal," according to 1919 and 1936 Supreme Court decisions.

Although they could refuse to provide their products, it is argued, they would be out of business if they did so because of the large proportions of the market some of the retailers, or middlemen wholesalers, control.

Manufacturers are therefore "obligated," one supporter of the bill said, to reduce the quality of their merchandise in order to stay in business. "They used to put the quality in the price, but not any more," he said.

But can't manufacturers be accused of getting themselves into the bind they say they are in by having initially bent their "principles" in accord with pressures from retailers, and now are asking Congress to bail them out?

Is quality ccontrol the main motive behind the bill—or profit margin control?

A strong opponent, the National Cooperative League, a consumer organization, says the bill will result in less price competition and, therefore, higher prices to consumers.

Price competition is "one of the things we have least of in our economy," Jerry Voorhis, executive director of the Cooperative League said.

"Eighty-five per cent of our prices are administered" now, according to a survey by the U.S. Steel Corp., Voorhis said.

AUTOMOBILE, steel, chemical and container prices are all decided upon essentially by manufacturers, he said, and there is "too high a mark up on drugs. People in really competitive lines have a very tough time."

Voorhis also questioned whether small businesses will benefit as is maintained. (According to the proponents of the bill, 60 per cent of the members of the National Small Business Men's Association are for the bill, and 34.5 per cent against.)

The bill is "fair trade (or price fixing) in disguise," according to Walker Sandbach, director of the Hyde Park Cooperative Society in Chicago.

Various "fair trade" proposals (one such bill was defeated in 1958) have been made since holding illegal the principle of resale price contracts.

"The fundamental problem in connection with any effort toward resale price maintenance is whether it results in restraint of trade which does violence to the basic principles of our antitrust laws," the NSBMA stated in listing the arguments against the "quality stabilization" bill

"The difference" between its name, "quality stabilization," and "price fixing . . . are technical and legalistic," according to the June 14 Kiplinger Washington Letter, which is "circulated privately to businessmen."

Besides consumer lobbies, discount houses are against the bill because "It's aimed at discount houses, cut-rate stores . . .," Kiplinger states.

Eight out of 10 housewives are for the bill, according to a survey by Ernst and Ernst, a Chicago firm, private supporters of the bill state.

They make this statement on the basis of replies to the following question, one of six in the survey form:

"Do you believe that the manufacturer who really wants to give you the highest quality . . . highest dependability . . . and highest value . . . in his trademarked product . . . should be permitted to protect that quality . . . and value . . . for you . . . and protect his own good reputation . . . by lawfully preventing any change . . . either up or down . . . by any storekeeper . . . in the retail price such quality manufacturer may name . . . to be paid for his quality product everywhere?"

(THIS IS the exact synopsis of the question released in public relations material in behalf of the bill.)

"The bill will pass the House, and may pass the Senate," according to the Kiplinger letter. For the "lobby forces behind the bill are the most powerful in years, including retailers and manufacturers with great influence at grass roots. They are the big advertisers, too, so publishers are very responsive.

"At least 35 members of House and Senate have introduced bills, and such a show of massed force is well-nigh unbeatable." (Influential Sen. Hubert Humphrey, has introduced this bill with 10 other senators.)

"Probably most Congress members are opposed to the plan . . . But many don't dare vote against, for the retail merchants . . . are bombarding them to get behind it," Kiplinger continues.

"CONSUMER lobbies," though "violently opposed," are "vocal but ineffective, not well organized . . . cut very little ice."

"After all," Kiplinger concludes, "discounting grew from the competition for sales, and can't be just legislated away," so it "will not stop" if the bill is passed.

With civil rights, foreign aid, and tax cut legislation being given the headlines, there probably won't be too much public airing of this domestic merchandising bill. (A14

Trustees Consider Request For Commercial Building

At Thursday's village board meeting, Everett Lindgren asked trustees to approve his plan asking for the right to construct a building on the west end of his Crossroads property. The building would house three commercial enterprises. His request was referred to zoning, building and planning authorities.

A progress report was heard on the construction of the Oakwood Road bridge, completion to be by Dec. 10. Abbott Laboratories has offered up to $21,000 toward its cost.

After discussion was carried on regarding the village board's next step in connection with the Route 53 alignment, the matter was referred to Legal Counsel Murray Conzelman.

Mrs. Marie Nehrbass, owner of The Crossroads Exchange, reapplied for a license to sell liquor in her dining room. At present liquor licenses are owned by The Village Tavern, Indian Valley Country Club and Long Grove Country Club.

Mrs. Robert Reed's place as village secretary as been filled, Mrs. Donald Graham of Mardan Woods took over at Thursday's meeting.

MRS. DONALD Arnold, chairman of Kildeer School's Book Fair, reports that total sales of books, book plates and mathematics texts will add up to about $1500, with Kildeer's 20 per cent commission going for more books. Anyone having a specific choice for the library is asked to call Mrs. Arnold or Mrs. Harold Turner. Serving with them on the library committee are Mrs. Tom Hoyne and Mrs. Robert Riley.

Mrs. Bessie Geest and Mrs. Roswell Ryan, this area's cancer education chairmen, provided a literature table at the fair, materials being secured through the Lake County Chapter. The Society has donated a book, "The Truth About Cancer," to be added to the library shelves.

The Vernon Township Historical Society's calendar is off the press and on sale at the Crossroads shops. Judging from the many remarks of praise, it is an attractive asset to any kitchen wall. A committee comprised of Mrs. William Park, president; Mrs. Jack Nelson, program chairman; and Mrs. Marie Cordo, secretary, thought up the calendar idea as a means of raising money to go toward the preservation and restoration of historical landmarks. The calendar includes pictures of the Aptakisic store, dated 1888, Prairie View depot and the Half Day and Buffalo Grove Church. Of special interest to Long Grovers is the picture of the General Store and a picture of Long Grove Church, dated before 1874.

CALENDARS may also be secured from Mrs. Herbert Ward and Mrs. Leo Block of Prairie View and Mrs. Ed Gleason and Mrs. Herman Von Sande of Half Day.

Six thousand children have ridden horses at Arcadia Farms birthday parties in the past three years, according to Blanche Kloman, the owner. Peter Cirelli, in charge of the management, keeps up a continual round of activities from season to season. Latest venture is the organization of a riding club, "The Rocking "A" Arcadia Club of Long Grove," first activity of which will be a chartered bus trip to the Amphitheatre to attend the International Horse Show.

The Parent Faculty Club of Ela-Vernon High School will have a "Back to School Night" on Nov. 25, at 7:30 p.m. Starting the activities in the gym, parents will pick up a schedule of classes and meet for a short assembly. They will then attend 10-minute classroom sessions of all the classes attended by their sons and daughters.

Dr. John Kalas, professor of Philosophy and Religion at Lake Forest College, led a discussion for teen agers on "What it Means to be a Christian" at the Orville Held home Nov. 17.

Discussion of Hinduism continued at the three guild circles held at the homes of Mrs. Fay Fiscus, Mrs. Franklin Bivins and Mrs. Donald Armstrong. Co-hostess at the latter circle was Mrs. Elden Gadke. The morning circle has selected for its Christmas project the helping of migrant families; the evening group will make gifts for and adopt senior citizens at Bee Dozier's Rest Home; and the afternoon meeters' help will go to Kenwood Community Church.

"TINY" JOHNSON and his Long Grove Church Social Action members met Nov. 14 at the Malcolm Shroyer home to discuss future steps to be taken to remove racial prejudice in the community. Members agreed to the proposal that a questionnaire be sent to church members regarding integration in Long Grove.

Keeping Mrs. Geoge Spoerlein and Mrs. Irving Stahl busy were preparations for Sunday's card party given by the Altar and Rosary Society of Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Roswell Ryan, Mrs. Andrew Sim, Mrs. Bessie Geest and Mrs. Martin Wulff were among local shoppers at the Nov. 14 Christmas Gift Bazaar at Half Day's Washburn Congregational Church.

Today new residents are meeting at a Newcomers' Coffee hosted at the home of the president, Mrs. Willard Fournier.

Copies of the Kildeer School District Directory may be had at Farmside Country Store, Ferry Hill Store and Kildeer School. Many former residents and college students are requesting copies. This might solve some Christmas shopping problems.

Kildeer School's football season is over. The boys took third place in the division, having won three games, losing two and coming out a tie in one.

Soccer is now the main intramural competition. Captains of the teams are Scott Ireland, Valentine Sanchez, Terry Rodewald and Joe Wieser.

Kildeer girls will soon begin basketball and volleyball practice. The boys' first basketball game is set for Dec. 6.

THE MEN'S NIGHT, this Saturday, is shaping up to be the highlight social event of the month, according to rumors. Main Chef is Jim Webster and Milt Wingquist is leading in the campaign to circulate ticket reservations for the affair to be held at Kildeer School. Dinner is to be served at 6 p.m. High schoolers, too, are urged to attend.

A welcome is extended to newcomers, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Benavides. They came from Chicago to the Leonard Krause residence on Aptakisic Road. Members of the family range from Mary, 18, who is employed at Carson's in Randhurst, to Eddie, age 2. Others are Robert, David, Diane, Ida and Sonia. Mr. Benavides is supervisor of the porter personnel at Carson's.

Eight new members have joined the church Christmas choir in recent weeks. Recent Wednesday night gatherings have been held at the Don Livengood's, Floyd Gustafsons' and the David Edmundses'.

The Hacienda San Miguel Regla, the Pan-American Doctor's Club, was the Mexico vacation spot for the Stewart Richmonds and the Everett Lewises. They went horseback riding, toured the mountain area, visited Mexico City and for a few days relaxed in Pachuca, all of them arriving home with several layers of sun tan. The Richmonds now have Lorrie's grandmother, Mrs. Martha Becker of Oakland, Calif., with them; she'll be here till Dec. 1.

Vacationer for one week at the Carroll Roseberrys' was his mother, Mrs. V. A. Roseberry of the San Francisco area.

MRS. CARROLL Roseberry hosted a coffee on Saturday so that interested friends would have the opportunity to meet the Rev. Walter Fiscus, internationally known prayer group leader, who was en route on from his home in Fort Worth, Tex. The prayer group members enjoyed hearing of the pastor's acquaintance with the late Glenn Clark, author of the text book, "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes," which the group is studying.

The Ed Wachses are home from a trip to the east, spent with their son, Charlie, at Cornell, also in New York and Philadelphia.

Mrs. Donald Byrne watched the winter settle in on Wisconsin's Rhinelander area last week, as she and the chldren vacationed with her parents, the Alfred Fritzes. Don drove there Sunday to bring the family home.

Neighbors and relatives welcomed Walter Gosswiller home from Condell on Thursday, it being a birthday homecoming for Wally. Sharing the party were the Arthur Moldenhauers of Wheeling, Mrs. Mamie Moldenhauer and Henry Dammerman of Palatine, the Ozzie Weidners of Waukegan and the Martin Wulffs, Mrs. Bessie Dickinson and Ruby.

Barbara Young's friend, Jay Kenehan of Milwaukee, drove here from Milton College last weekend to have dinner with the Joe Youngs at The Chalet.

AMONG Newcomers' bridge gatherings was Friday's party at the Robert Kenans'; the Whitford Kuhns, Joe Klemeyers and the Tony Bergs making up the play.

The James Mattsons' Saturday night dinner party included the Carl Roschers and former Long Grovers, the Harold Alvins of Lake Villa.

Also moving to Lake Villa in the next year will be the John Millers of Route 22, who have made their plans because of the Route 53 allignment which threatens their land. They've purchased a house and five acres north of Highway 132.

Sharing Men's Night activities Saturday will be the Orville Helds' guests from India, Umesh Choksi and Parimala Desai, who are studying engineering at Illinois Tech. The Helds are anxious to store up information on India, in anticipation of Joan's visit with friends in Calcutta next July.

The Fred Singelmans and their daughter and her husband, the John Newkirks of Palatine, attended the wedding of a friend, Miss Marni Heminover Nov. 9 in Chicago. Mrs. Newkirk served as matron of honor for her friend, whose acquaintance she made through the teaching profession.

The Don Armstrongs' home was the Sunday scene of a buffet dinner party for 20 some guests who are among the office personnel of the Peterson Coal and Oil Co. of Chicago with which Don is associated.

ON THE NIGHT of Nov. 9, Mrs. Ed Lauffenburger sniffed something in the wind when one of her sisters dropped in. Before the evening was over the house was overflowing with relatives who came to wish her a happy birthday. Making it a party were the Elden Gadkes from next door, Geoge Lauffenburgers and the Harry Wickersheims of Palatine, Mrs. William Wickersheim of Lake Zurich and Miss Anna Wickersheim of Chicago.

Mrs. Lauffenburger's sister-in-law, Mrs. Sophie Wickersheim, formerly of Long Grove, is ill and in the Thorsen Nursing Home in Arlington Heights.

Dinner guests of the Elden Gadkes Saturday evening were the Donald Armstrongs and the Orville Keilers.

Wedding anniversary wishes go to the George Umbdenstocks, Nov. 22; to the Andrew Sims, 24th; and happy birthday wishes go to Lynn French and Vincent Allen, Nov. 21; Betsy Lemmon, 22nd; Kurt Knauth, 24th; Jimmy Didier and Chip Ullrich, 25th; and Bob Karnopp, 26th.

Passers-by are looking twice at the Ted Pieper house, with its new coat of olive green. Mae Pieper's beauty salon is also being enlarged to keep in step with the outdoor make-up. The green exterior will soon be enhanced by snow-white shutters, another building to add to Long Grove's Early American rural atmosphere. (WP

Q. Where do I put my olives and radishes served at a formal dinner, where there is no bread-and-butter plate?

A. Place them on the edge of the plate from which you are eating. Salt for the radishes goes there, too.

Q. When a man is taking a girl to a nightclub, should he escort her to their table before excusing himself to go to the men's room?

A. Yes. It is the girl's privilege to go to the powder room first, but the man should always get his companion properly seated at their table before leaving her.

The Vernon Township Historical Society's calendar is off the press and on sale at the Crossroads shops. Judging from the many remarks of praise, it is an attractive asset to any kitchen wall. A committee comprised of Mrs. William Park, president; Mrs. Jack Nelson, program chairman; and Mrs. Marie Cordo, secretary, thought up the calendar idea as a means of raising money to go toward the preservation and restoration of historical landmarks. The calendar includes pictures of the Aptakisic store, dated 1888, Prairie View depot and the Half Day and Buffalo Grove Church. Of special interest to Long Grovers is the picture of the General Store and a picture of Long Grove Church, dated before 1874.

CALENDARS may also be secured from Mrs. Herbert Ward and Mrs. Leo Block of Prairie View and Mrs. Ed Gleason and Mrs. Herman Von Sande of Half Day.

Modern Etiquette

Q. Where do I put my olives and radishes served at a formal dinner, where there is no bread-and-butter plate?

A. Place them on the edge of the plate from which you are eating. Salt for the radishes goes there, too.

Q. When a man is taking a girl to a nightclub, should he escort her to their table before excusing himself to go to the men's room?

A. Yes. It is the girl's privilege to go to the powder room first, but the man should always get his companion properly seated at their table before leaving her.

Arlington Cautious on Communism Study Plan

Arlington High School District 214 and the Illinois Superintendent of Public Instruction this week appeared to be in opposite corners over the study of communism in schools.

It wasn't the first time the high school district had expressed reservations over the stand taken by Ray Page, state superintendent, on his plan to have all Illinois schools study communism.

This week Page sent a statement to all school administrators urging that communism be studied as an integral part of social studies in their schools. The statement adopted by the subcommittee on comparative political systems of the state committee on social studies was the first phase of a project that will be concerned with the evaluation of materials dealing with communism and the teaching of political philosophies, Page said.

At the same time this week District 214 school board members adopted an amendment to a suggested resolution on teaching about communism to be placed before the Illinois Association of School Boards (IASB) annual meeting next week. The amendment would change the called for "pledge to support" the Page social studies committee to an offer to "cooperate with" the efforts of the group. In addition, district 214 would add a provision that the IASB "affirms" its belief that curriculum decisions are best made at the local level and that any recommendations the state committee may make shall be advisory only."

IN HIS FIRST press statement on the communism-study program, Page said he would review his committee's recommendations to decide whether to make the suggested program a requirement for 1964. He indicated schools which did not comply with the suggested organizational content, textbooks and source materials could lose their state aid.

It was at this point that District 214 first started its check into what effect the committee's study might have on the present high school social studies program. Particular concern was evinced since the subcommittee on comparative international political systems included several members of the Institute for American Strategy, and State Sen. Paul W. Broyles (R. Mount Vernon).

Sen. Broyles has been warning about alleged communist infiltration of Illinois universities and public schools since the end of World War II. He headed the 1947 search for Reds at the University of Chicago. He is the author of the 1957 loyalty oath law for teachers and other public employes.

WHEN ADVERSE comment on the compulsory adoption of the committee's findings developed, Page started a rapid backtrack. He now stresses that all curriculum recommendations of the social studies committee will be advisory only.

Twenty-three high schools were selected to serve as guides during the year-long study.

Arlington High School was included in the list.

A check with Page's office brought the information that the school would not be required to change its social studies curriculum, but was to be used as a model of what Illinois high schools taught today.

No visit to any social studies class at Arlington has been held to date.

IN DESCRIBING the recommendations of the subcommittee on Comparative Political Systems, Page said, "The study of modern totalitarianism in its varied forms should be an integral part of our social studies curriculum and should be taught within regular subject matter courses."

"The major emphasis . . . should be directed to a responsible, objective analysis of the communist system. In addition, all other political philosophies which deny man the freedom of inquiry and the freedom of choice of action must be included in the study," Page stated. (B-9

Kinneman Set on Three Positions for Opener

Success has been synonymous with Dick Kinneman since he took over the head basketball job at Prospect High School.

In four years Kinneman-coached varsity squads have won 83 of 100 games. There have been three trips to the regional finale and one crack at sectional action.

No matter how gloomy the outlook Dick manages to come up with a respectable club.

Before the 1962-63 season started few observers would have given the Knights much better than a .500 season. Prospect won 21 of 26 and reached the regional championship game.

Kinneman and his Knights are just one day away from the opening game of the 1963-64 campaign, and once again the Foundry Road crew is labeled a question-mark.

"We're definitely lacking good height," Kinneman remarked Tuesday, "but we still may score more than we did last year. It's our defense that needs improvement right now and we're spending a lot of time on that this week."

PROSPECT swings into action Friday evening with a home encounter against Evanston's Wildkits of the Suburban League. The varsity headliner will be preceded by a jayvee clash at 7 p.m. in the fieldhouse.

Kinneman is set on three of his starting slots but has four boys bidding for the two forward berths.

Ron Moehling (6-1) and Dave White (5-10), two lettermen, will get the first call at the backcourt positions with Dave Gobeille (6-3) at center.

BIDDING FOR the forward slots are Keith Bergen (6-4), Steve Johnsen (6-2), Rich Freyman (6-2), and Don Neubert (6-2). Bergen and Johnson are the only juniors among the top seven candidates.

Leading backcourt reserves are junior Jim LaRocco (6-0) and senior Tom McClellan (5-9).

Coaches Learn There's No Time Like Present

THIS HAS BEEN A SEASON FOR surprises in college football.

Highly regarded Northwestern, Wisconsin, and Southern California have floundered.

Illinois and Michigan State, definite question-marks when the firing began in late September, will square off Saturday afternoon in East Lansing for the Big Ten championship and Rose Bowl bid.

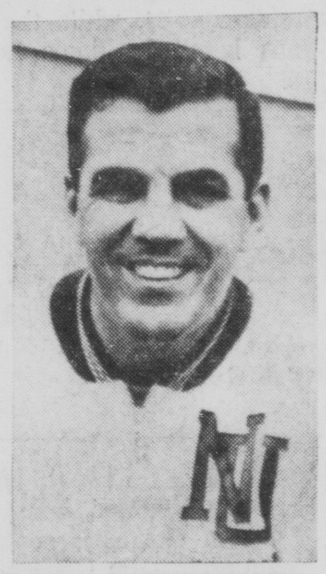
What better set of events to emphasize that the old saying "no time like the present" is particularly apropos in sports?

Last fall Northewestern, Wisconsin, and USC were riding high with great clubs and great hopes for the future.

Ara Parseghian's Wildcats consoled themselves when they fell out of the Big Ten race in November with the thought that 1963 would bring bigger and better things. Although concluding its activities with an impressive win over Ohio State, Ara's outfit still lost four games in league play.

When Wisconsin won the 1962 conference crown, Badger fans were ecstatic. "We won this one a year ahead of time," they insisted. "This was a building season. Wait'll next year." Wisconsin lost its third Big Ten game Saturday afternoon.

And didn't Southern California feel that despite its great 10-0 season and thrilling Rose Bowl triumph last season the big year would be 1963? John McKay's Trojans, now a three-time loser, were loaded with veterans at all key positions.



ARA PARSEGHIAN

Many things go into a championship schedule. It's not only talent. There's spirit, schedule, luck, and timing. Some teams keep most of their essential players from last year, but the magic combination somehow disappears from one season to the next. Injuries, such as those that hindered Northwestern, certainly don't help a title contender.

Wisconsin's Milt Bruhn believes a lack of incentive has hurt his Badgers. "I'm wondering if the Rose Bowl means so much that in Big Ten championship doesn't count any more," Bruhn said recently in reference to the fact Wisconsin is ineligible for a return trip to Pasadena in January.

Michigan's great teams in the late 1940's followed up a Rose Bowl victory with two straight league crowns, and Ohio State made a trip to Pasadena in the 1954 season and won the Big Ten the next fall. As unpredictable as the Big Ten is, champions always have had some trouble repeating, but it's difficult to say whether the Rose Bowl means more than the title itself.

We've been guilty of saying, "Well, if Illinois doesn't win the Big Ten title this year, there's always next year when they should be better."

Illinois just may be better next year with a host of returning regulars. But we've learned it's a mistake to assume that will necessarily bring a championship.

Just ask Ara Parseghian, Milt Bruhn, and Johnny McKay!

Ten Years Ago This Week . . .

COACHES HOWARD LESTER and Maurice Klotz sent their charges through the final drills as Arlington High School's varsity and frosh-soph basketball teams prepared for the openers with Downers Grove.

Lester indicated that his starting alignment would be Bob Turner and Larry Slinkard at forwards, Wayne Mueller at center, and Jack Riggs and Denny Maher at guards.

Lions Battle Bisons

When last year's record tastes like chalk, the only thing to do is look forward to the new season. Such is the case at Fenton and St. Viator high schools where the cry is 'more in '63-64.'

Neither the Bisons nor the Lions frightened many clubs last year, turning in 7-13 and 3-16 records respectively. One of them will get off to a good start tomorrow evening when the two clubs open the basketball season at the Bisons' Bensenville gym.

At Fenton

	St. Viator (0-0)		Fenton (0-0)
6-1	Vidt	F	Seimers	6-2
6-1	Heitz	F	Tecza	6-0
6-3	Grandt	C	Marinangel	6-2
5-9	Hoffman	G	Jacobsen	5-7
5-10	Murray	G	Lemonier	5-8

TIME:
Frosh-Soph 6:30, Varsity 8 p.m.
COACHES:
St. Viator, Ron Feiereisel; Fenton, Phil Hardy

Backers of both schools have reason to believe that better days are not far off. Fenton coach Phil Hardy doesn't have as much size or experience as a year ago, but he is impressed with what his club has shown in pre-season drills.

LION HEAD MAN Ron Feiereisel doesn't have a great deal of size either, but what was a curse in the past is now a blessing, he is loaded with experience. St. Viator being a new school, Feiereisel was forced to go with underclassmen in the last two years. Now his boys have come of age and the Lions will floor the same starting lineup they did a year ago.

Last year's game, the first played between the two clubs, offers an interesting picture of the different character of the teams. Fenton, the winner 62-54, has just four points coming back, those beng bucketed by Tom Tecza.

If the Lions have the feeling they have been here before, it is understandable. Feiereisel will have the authors of all but two Lion points in that game at his disposal tomorrow night. Ironically, the missing pair were thrown in by a freshman, Joey Sanchez. Sanchez, a book casualty, will not return until February.

But, Joey, sixth man a year ago, is the only missing Lion. Forwards Jim Vidt (6-1) and Joe Heitz (6-1), center Chuck Grandt (6-3), and guards Ken Hoffman (5-9) and Jim Murray (5-10). Top reserve Mike Ainslie (6-4) is also back for another term.

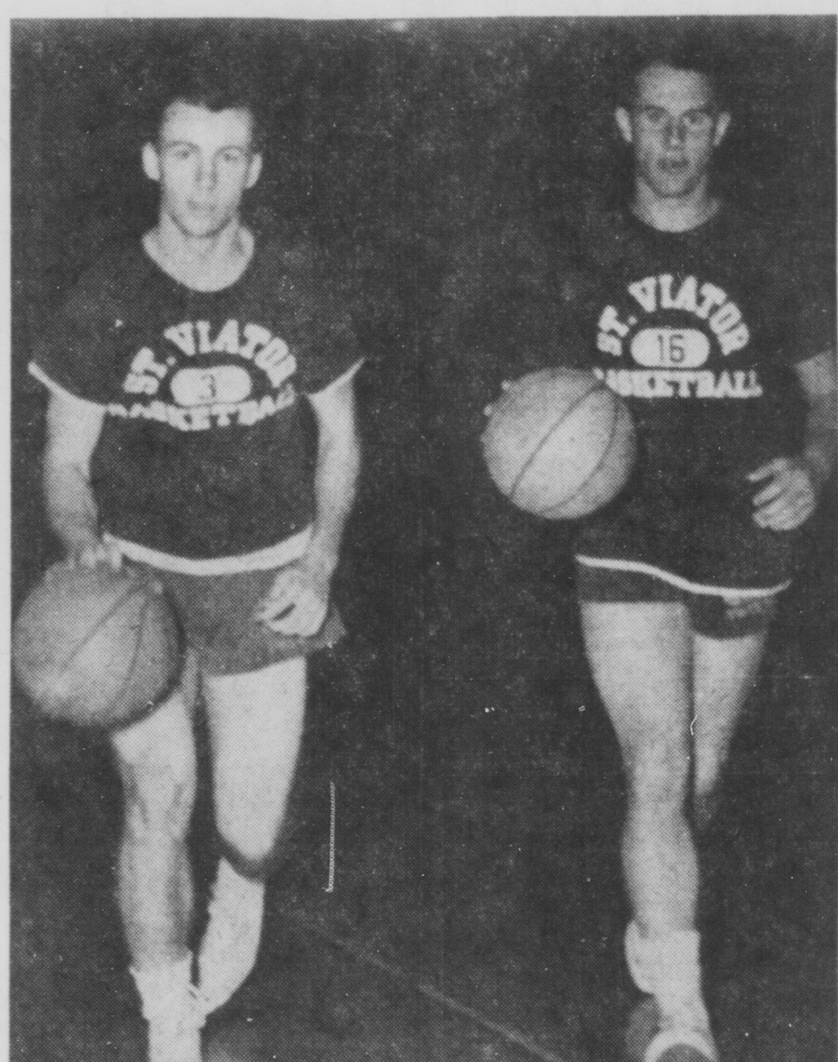
IN MURRAY and Hoffman the Lions have the highest scoring pair of guards in the area. Murray, a fine outside shooter, scored 328 points for the season, a 17.8 norm. A consistant scorer, he was named to the Chicagoland Prep All-Conference second team.

Hoffman, the hustler on the club, came on strong at the end of the year and finished with an 11.9 average.

Fenton counters with just one returning regular Norm Jacobsen and little Jake (5-7) didn't earn a starting berth until mid-season. Chances are he'll be joined by Mike Lemonier (5-8) on the backline and Jim Seimers (6-2½) and Tecza at the forwards. The center position is questionable with Hardy undecided between Jim Marinangel (6-2) and Tom Masles (6-1).

Others sure to see action for the Bisons include Al Zaba (5-8) and Bill Wilmotte (5-11) at the guards and Bob Townsend (6-1) and Cliff Romme (6-2) in the forecourt.

Backcourt Stars



HANDLING THE GUARD POSITIONS for St. Viator's varsity basketball team in the 1963-64 campaign will be veterans Jim Murray (left) and Ken Hoffman. The two seniors combined for 546 points last winter with Murray averaging 17.3 and Hoffman 11.4. Fenton will host St. Viator Friday evening in the season opener for both clubs.

Riverside Rolls to Easy Win

All-State candidate Tommy Kondla poured in 33 points Friday evening in leading Riverside-Brookfield's highly regarded Bulldogs to an easy 90-50 win over Evergreen Park.

Kondla collected 13 baskets and seven free throws and tallied 20 points in the final half in the opening game for both Riverside and the high school basketball season in the Chicago area.

The Bulldogs held a 23-17 halftime bulge and outscored the outmanned hosts 25-0 in one stretch of five minutes and 30 seconds.

Randy Hrkel, who played a backcourt for the winners, chipped in with 16 points, and Dick Kaspar and Marty Berg collected 16 and 13 respectively.

Falcons Meet Rich Central

Arneson's Squad Faces Road Contest Saturday

There's a busy weekend ahead for Forest View's varsity basketball team.

Ken Arneson's veteran Falcons will battle Rich Central and Palatine in a hardwood doubleheader that is unique in its position on the schedule.

Normally, that opening weekend is reserved for a single game, but Forest View will give its fans an interesting twin-bill as the lid comes off on another cage campaign.

THE FALCONS will host Rich Friday and journey to Palatine Saturday evening. Both varsity headliners will be preceded by frosh-soph contests at seven o'clock.

Arneson, who's naturally interested in improving on that 2-19 standard his charges posted last winter, is equipped with both size and experience and an area scoring leader, but the Falcons still rate as a definite question-mark.

Joe (The Blizzard) Mueller was the whole show last winter with a nifty 18.9 per game average, and Arneson hopes this 6-foot-1 senior doesn't have to carry the entire offensive load again this time around. Ken has been encouraged by the workonts and the improvement of other returning regulars.

DICK ANDERSON, a southpaw who stands 6-foot-4 and plays one of the forward positions, is considered the squad's most improved player. Dick will team with Garron Kokai (6-2) and either Brian Karp (6-5) or Steve Jacobsen (6-4) in the front-line.

At Forest View

	Forest View		Rich Central
6-4	Anderson	F	Ross	6-0
6-2	Kokai	F	Blanchard	6-3
6-5	Karp or	C	Williams	6-4

6-2	Dunnigan	G	Stack	6-3

TIME:
Frosh-Soph game, 7 p.m., Friday
PLACE:
Forest View High School
COACHES:
Forest View, Ken Arneson; Rich Central, Dick Dhabalt

At Palatine

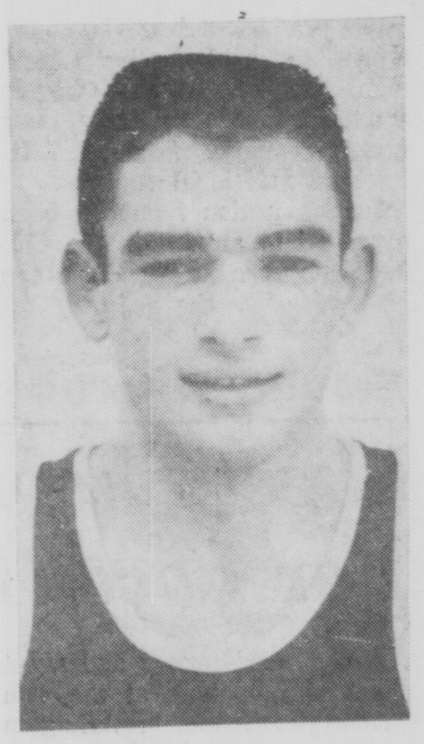
	Forest View (0-0)		Palatine (0-0)
6-4	Anderson	F	Wirsing	6-1
6-2	Kokai	F	Gaare	6-2
6-5	Karp or	C	Lewis	6-4
6-4	Jacobsen
6-1	Mueller	G	Leimann	5-11
6-2	Dunnigan	G	Petersen	6-0

TIME:
Sophomores, 7 p.m.
COACHES:
Forest View, Ken Arneson; Palatine, Dick Kolze

Jacobsen, a junior, is a transfer from Maine East who has shown promise.

Joining Mueller in the backcourt will be soph whiz Pat Dunnigan (6-2) and big things are expected from this talented youngster. The coaches thought enough of Dunnigan last year as a frosh to use him in the regional tourney.

Other leading candidates at Forest View are Russ Barger (6-1), Bob Benevides (5-10), Chip Julian (6-3), and John Pardee (6-3). Pardee is a transfer from Connecticut who could help out when he becomes more familiar with the Falcon system.



JOE MUELLER
Falcon Flash

Darryl Fenton, a 6-foot-2, 225-pounder transfer from West Aurora, will be eligible December 13.

FOREST VIEW will be meeting another all-veteran team Friday when Rich Central's Olympians come to town. Rich was in the same situation as the Falcons last year with a three-year school, and the Southeast Suburban entry posted 10 wins in 21 outings.

Coach Dick Dhabalt could field a starting quintet that averages 6-3 but is likely to stick with five veterans Friday. Probable starters are forwards Ron Ross (6-0) and Bill Blanchard (6-3), center Jim Williams (6-4), and guards Don Mahler (5-10) and Mark Stack (6-3).

Mahler was the squad's top scorer as a junior and Dhabalt is lavish in his praise of this clever playmaker. "Don could be the best guard in the south suburban area," Dhabalt stressed.

Rich Central edged Forest View in the season opener last winter, 43-38, but the Falcons were forced to operate for several minutes without floor leader Mueller. Joe chipped in 14 points but was plagued by fouls and eventually departed with five personals in the final stanza.

AN INEXPERIENCED Palatine team will host the Falcons Saturday evening. Dick Kolze lost the entire starting five from a club that posted a snappy 20-4 record last winter. Biggest loss was everyone's All-Stater, 6-foot-7 Ron Kozlicki.

Only 75 points returned to Kolze and 60 are found in guards Bill Petersen (6-0) and Danny Leimann (5-11). Other probable starters against the Falcons are Bob Wirsing (6-1), Craig Gaare (6-2), and Don Lewis (6-4).

It's possible Kolze will do

Filling Guard Slots Still Major Problem For Arlington Coach

For three years Chuck Close and Gary Brodnan served as starting guards at Arlington High School.

They combined for 1519 points and earned all-league recognition. Close is the highest scorer in Arlington cage history.

It's no secret that their absence this season has Ted Wissen more than just a little concerned as he prepares his first Arlington team for the opener with Palatine on Thanksgiving Eve.

"Our guard problem is still unsettled," Wissen pointed out this week.

SENIOR KARME Klotz (5-9), junior Mike Frase (5-10), and sophomore Tom Sloan (5-8) currently serve as the leading backcourt candidates although Wissen has been experimenting with front-line letterman Paul Splittorff (6-3) at guard.

"One day one group will look good, and then it's another the next day," Ted commented. "Mike (Frase) still is bothered by an ankle injury and hasn't been able to go full steam. Sloan (Tom) is quick and could help, but remember he's only a sophomore."

Klotz saw extensive action in the regional tourney and did collect 22 points although he didn't letter in the 1962-63 season.

WITH SPLITTORFF back in his more familiar front-line position Wissen has four boys with good size under the boards. Joining Paul are letterman Dan Sherman (6-2) and juniors Bob Connors (6-4) and Chuck Lloyd (6-5).

Greg Buczynski, a 6-foot-4 senior, who lettered last winter on the varsity, transferred and Wissen hated to see this size and experience depart.

Lloyd hasn't played much basketball at Arlington, but could help out this winter. "He's working hard and has improved," Wissen said, "but he's still got a lot to learn. He didn't play basketball as a freshman and naturally was behind with the sophomores."

SHERMAN and Splittorff, regulars as juniors, give Wissen

A NEW COACH greeted two returning lettermen as Arlington High School initiated drills for the 1963-64 basketball season. Expected to play key roles on Ted Wissen's first Cardinal varsity quintet are Paul Splittorff (left) and Dan Sherman (right). Sherman was the third leading scorer at Arlington last winter with Splittorff right behind. The Cards will open their campaign on Wednesday evening, Nov. 27, against Palatine.

Wildkits to Test Knights

Kinneman Set on Three Positions for Opener

Success has been synonymous with Dick Kinneman since he took over the head basketball job at Prospect High School.

In four years Kinneman-coached varsity squads have won 83 of 100 games. There have been three trips to the regional finale and one crack at sectional action.

No matter how gloomy the outlook Dick manages to come up with a respectable club.

Before the 1962-63 season started few observers would have given the Knights much better than a .500 season. Prospect won 21 of 26 and reached the regional championship game.

Kinneman and his Knights are just one day away from the opening game of the 1963-64 campaign, and once again the Foundry Road crew is labeled a question-mark.

"We're definitely lacking good height," Kinneman remarked Tuesday, "but we still may score more than we did last year. It's our defense that needs improvement right now and we're spending a lot of time on that this week."

PROSPECT swings into action Friday evening with a home encounter against Evanston's Wildkits of the Suburban League. The varsity headliner will be preceded by a jayvee clash at 7 p.m. in the fieldhouse.

Kinneman is set on three of his starting slots but has four boys bidding for the two forward berths.

KICKIN' IT AROUND

Coaches Learn There's No Time Like Present

THIS HAS BEEN A SEASON FOR surprises in college football.

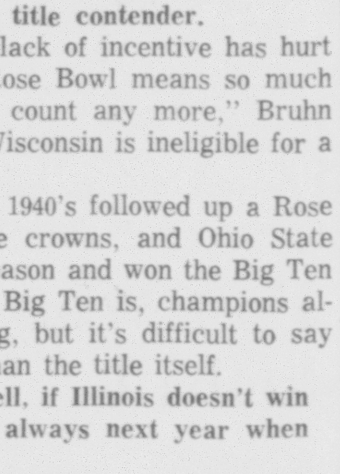
Highly regarded Northwestern, Wisconsin, and Southern California have floundered.

Illinois and Michigan State, definite question-marks when the firing began in late September, will square off Saturday afternoon in East Lansing for the Big Ten championship and Rose Bowl bid.

What better set of events to emphasize that the old saying "no time like the present" is particularly apropos in sports?

Last fall Northewestern, Wisconsin, and USC were riding high with great clubs and great hopes for the future.

Ara Parseghian's Wildcats consoled themselves when they fell out of the Big Ten race in November with the thought that 1963 would bring bigger and better things. Although concluding its activities with an impressive win over Ohio State, Ara's outfit still lost four games in league play.



ARA PARSEGHIAN

When Wisconsin won the 1962 conference crown, Badger fans were ecstatic. "We won this one a year ahead of time," they insisted. "This was a building season. Wait'll next year." Wisconsin lost its third Big Ten game Saturday afternoon.

And didn't Southern California feel that despite its great 10-0 season and thrilling Rose Bowl triumph last season the big year would be 1963? John McKay's Trojans, now a three-time loser, were loaded with veterans at all key positions.

Many things go into a championship schedule. It's not only talent. There's spirit, schedule, luck, and timing. Some teams keep most of their essential players from last year, but the magic combination somehow disappears from one season to the next. Injuries, such as those that hindered Northwestern, certainly don't help a title contender.

Wisconsin's Milt Bruhn believes a lack of incentive has hurt his Badgers. "I'm wondering if the Rose Bowl means so much that in Big Ten championship doesn't count any more," Bruhn said recently in reference to the fact Wisconsin is ineligible for a return trip to Pasadena in January.

Michigan's great teams in the late 1940's followed up a Rose Bowl victory with two straight league crowns, and Ohio State made a trip to Pasadena in the 1954 season and won the Big Ten the next fall. As unpredictable as the Big Ten is, champions always have had some trouble repeating, but it's difficult to say whether the Rose Bowl means more than the title itself.

We've been guilty of saying, "Well, if Illinois doesn't win the Big Ten title this year, there's always next year when they should be better."

Illinois just may be better next year with a host of returning regulars. But we've learned it's a mistake to assume that will necessarily bring a championship.

Just ask Ara Parseghian, Milt Bruhn, and Johnny McKay!

Ten Years Ago This Week . . .

COACHES HOWARD LESTER and Maurice Klotz sent their charges through the final drills as Arlington High School's varsity and frosh-soph basketball teams prepared for the openers with Downers Grove.

Lester indicated that his starting alignment would be Bob Turner and Larry Slinkard at forwards, Wayne Mueller at center, and Jack Riggs and Denny Maher at guards.

Lions Battle Bisons

When last year's record tastes like chalk, the only thing to do is look forward to the new season. Such is the case at Fenton and St. Viator high schools where the cry is 'more in '63-64.'

Neither the Bisons nor the Lions frightened many clubs last year, turning in 7-13 and 3-16 records respectively. One of them will get off to a good start tomorrow evening when the two clubs open the basketball season at the Bisons' Bensenville gym.

Backers of both schools have reason to believe that better days are not far off. Fenton coach Phil Hardy doesn't have as much size or experience as a year ago, but he is impressed with what his club has shown in pre-season drills.

LION HEAD MAN Ron Feiereisel doesn't have a great deal of size either, but what was a curse in the past is now a blessing, he is loaded with experience. St. Viator being a new school, Feiereisel was forced to go with underclassmen in the last two years. Now his boys have come of age and the Lions will floor the same starting lineup they did a year ago.

	St. Viator (0-0)		Fenton (0-0)

6-1	Heitz	F	Tecza	6-0

5-10	Murray	G	Lemonier	5-8

TIME:
Frosh-Soph 6:30, Varsity 8 p.m.
COACHES:
St. Viator, Ron Feiereisel; Fenton, Phil Hardy

Last year's game, the first played between the two clubs, offers an interesting picture of the different character of the teams. Fenton, the winner 62-54, has just four points coming back, those beng bucketed by Tom Tecza.

If the Lions have the feeling they have been here before, it is understandable. Feiereisel will have the authors of all but two Lion points in that game at his disposal tomorrow night. Ironically, the missing pair were thrown in by a freshman, Joey Sanchez. Sanchez, a book casualty, will not return until February.

But, Joey, sixth man a year ago, is the only missing Lion. Forwards Jim Vidt (6-1) and Joe Heitz (6-1), center Chuck Grandt (6-3), and guards Ken Hoffman (5-9) and Jim Murray (5-10). Top reserve Mike Ainslie (6-4) is also back for another term.

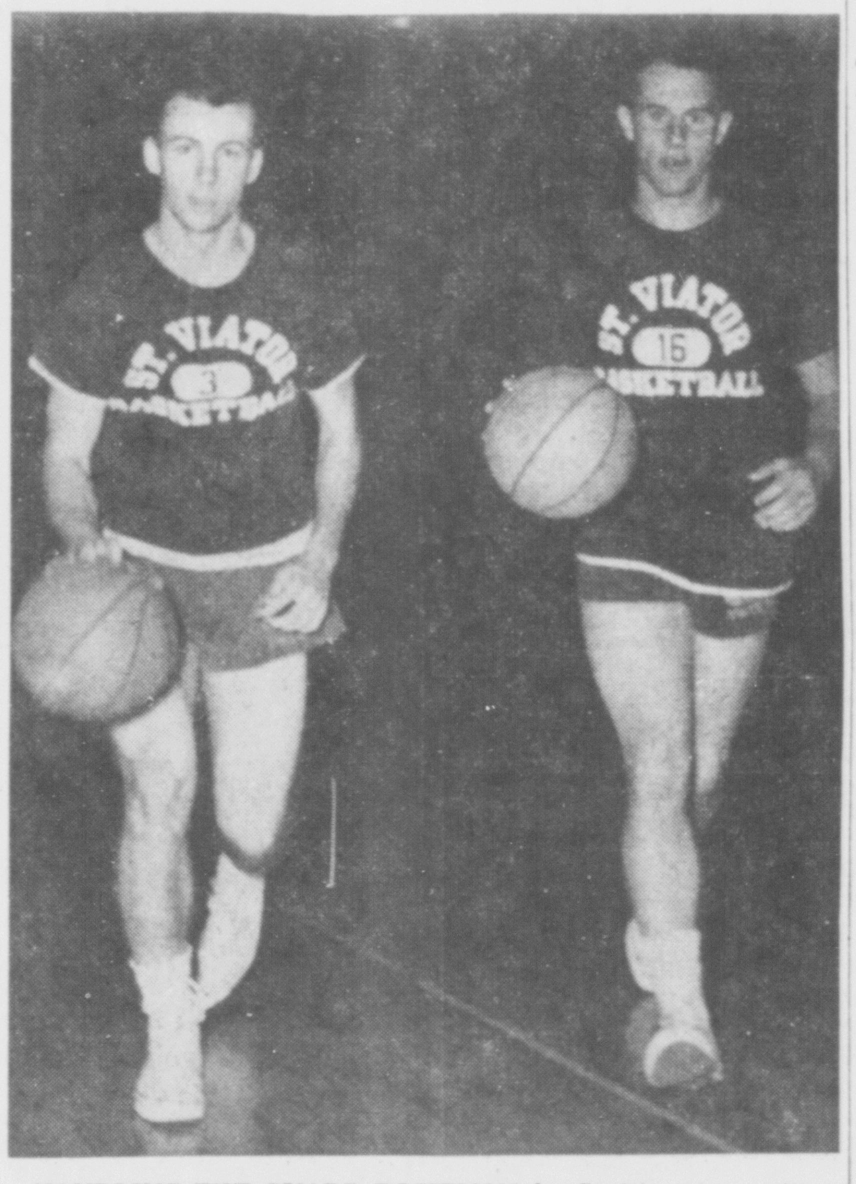
IN MURRAY and Hoffman the Lions have the highest scoring pair of guards in the area. Murray, a fine outside shooter, scored 328 points for the season, a 17.8 norm. A consistant scorer, he was named to the Chicagoland Prep All-Conference second team.

Hoffman, the hustler on the club, came on strong at the end of the year and finished with an 11.9 average.

Fenton counters with just one returning regular Norm Jacobsen and little Jake (5-7) didn't earn a starting berth until mid-season. Chances are he'll be joined by Mike Lemonier (5-8) on the backline and Jim Seimers (6-2½) and Tecza at the forwards. The center position is questionable with Hardy undecided between Jim Marinangel (6-2) and Tom Masles (6-1).

Others sure to see action for the Bisons include Al Zaba (5-8) and Bill Wilmotte (5-11) at the guards and Bob Townsend (6-1) and Cliff Romme (6-2) in the forecourt.

Backcourt Stars



HANDLING THE GUARD POSITIONS for St. Viator's varsity basketball team in the 1963-64 campaign will be veterans Jim Murray (left) and Ken Hoffman. The two seniors combined for 546 points last winter with Murray averaging 17.3 and Hoffman 11.4. Fenton will host St. Viator Friday evening in the season opener for both clubs.

Riverside Rolls to Easy Win

All-State candidate Tommy Kondla poured in 33 points Friday evening in leading Riverside-Brookfield's highly regarded Bulldogs to an easy 90-50 win over Evergreen Park.

Kondla collected 13 baskets and seven free throws and tallied 20 points in the final half in the opening game for both Riverside and the high school basketball season in the Chicago area.

The Bulldogs held a 23-17 halftime bulge and outscored the outmanned hosts 25-0 in one stretch of five minutes and 30 seconds.

Randy Hrkel, who played a backcourt for the winners, chipped in with 16 points, and Dick Kaspar and Marty Berg collected 16 and 13 respectively.

Falcons Meet Rich Central

Arneson's Squad Faces Road Contest Saturday

There's a busy weekend ahead for Forest View's varsity basketball team.

Ken Arneson's veteran Falcons will battle Rich Central and Palatine in a hardwood doubleheader that is unique in its position on the schedule.

Normally, that opening weekend is reserved for a single game, but Forest View will give its fans an interesting twin-bill as the lid comes off on another cage campaign.

THE FALCONS will host Rich Friday and journey to Palatine Saturday evening. Both varsity headliners will be preceded by frosh-soph contests at seven o'clock.

Arneson, who's naturally interested in improving on that 2-19 standard his charges posted last winter, is equipped with both size and experience and an area scoring leader, but the Falcons still rate as a definite question-mark.

Joe (The Blizzard) Mueller was the whole show last winter with a nifty 18.9 per game average, and Arneson hopes this 6-foot-1 senior doesn't have to carry the entire offensive load again this time around. Ken has been encouraged by the workonts and the improvement of other returning regulars.

DICK ANDERSON, a southpaw who stands 6-foot-4 and plays one of the forward positions, is considered the squad's most improved player. Dick will team with Garron Kokai (6-2) and either Brian Karp (6-5) or Steve Jacobsen (6-4) in the front-line.

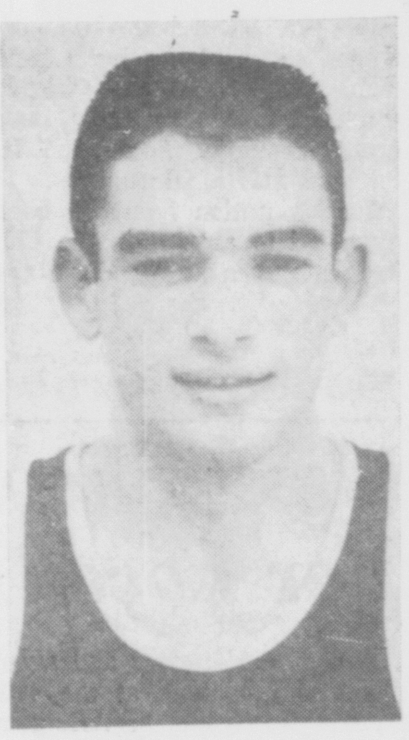
Jacobsen, a junior, is a transfer from Maine East who has shown promise.

Joining Mueller in the backcourt will be soph whiz Pat Dunnigan (6-2) and big things are expected from this talented youngster. The coaches thought enough of Dunnigan last year as a frosh to use him in the regional tourney.

Other leading candidates at Forest View are Russ Barger (6-1), Bob Benevides (5-10), Chip Julian (6-3), and John Pardee (6-3). Pardee is a transfer from Connecticut who could help out when he becomes more familiar with the Falcon system.



JOE MUELLER
Falcon Flash

Darryl Fenton, a 6-foot-2, 225-pounder transfer from West Aurora, will be eligible December 13.

FOREST VIEW will be meeting another all-veteran team Friday when Rich Central's Olympians come to town. Rich was in the same situation as the Falcons last year with a three-year school, and the Southeast Suburban entry posted 10 wins in 21 outings.

Coach Dick Dhabalt could field a starting quintet that averages 6-3 but is likely to stick with five veterans Friday. Probable starters are forwards Ron Ross (6-0) and Bill Blanchard (6-3), center Jim Williams (6-4), and guards Don Mahler (5-10) and Mark Stack (6-3).

Mahler was the squad's top scorer as a junior and Dhabalt is lavish in his praise of this clever playmaker. "Don could be the best guard in the south suburban area," Dhabalt stressed.

Rich Central edged Forest View in the season opener last winter, 43-38, but the Falcons were forced to operate for several minutes without floor leader Mueller. Joe chipped in 14 points but was plagued by fouls and eventually departed with five personals in the final stanza.

AN INEXPERIENCED Palatine team will host the Falcons Saturday evening. Dick Kolze lost the entire starting five from a club that posted a snappy 20-4 record last winter. Biggest loss was everyone's All-Stater, 6-foot-7 Ron Kozlicki.

Only 75 points returned to Kolze and 60 are found in guards Bill Petersen (6-0) and Danny Leimann (5-11). Other probable starters against the Falcons are Bob Wirsing (6-1), Craig Gaare (6-2), and Don Lewis (6-4).

Filling Guard Slots Still Major Problem For Arlington Coach

For three years Chuck Close and Gary Brodnan served as starting guards at Arlington High School.

They combined for 1519 points and earned all-league recognition. Close is the highest scorer in Arlington cage history.

It's no secret that their absence this season has Ted Wissen more than just a little concerned as he prepares his first Arlington team for the opener with Palatine on Thanksgiving Eve.

"Our guard problem is still unsettled," Wissen pointed out this week.

SENIOR KARME Klotz (5-9), junior Mike Frase (5-10), and sophomore Tom Sloan (5-8) currently serve as the leading backcourt candidates although Wissen has been experimenting with front-line letterman Paul Splittorff (6-3) at guard.

"One day one group will look good, and then it's another the next day," Ted commented. "Mike (Frase) still is bothered by an ankle injury and hasn't been able to go full steam. Sloan (Tom) is quick and could help, but remember he's only a sophomore."

Klotz saw extensive action in the regional tourney and did collect 22 points although he didn't letter in the 1962-63 season.

WITH SPLITTORFF back in his more familiar front-line position Wissen has four boys with good size under the boards. Joining Paul are letterman Dan Sherman (6-2) and juniors Bob Connors (6-4) and Chuck Lloyd (6-5).

Greg Buczynski, a 6-foot-4 senior, who lettered last winter on the varsity, transferred and Wissen hated to see this size and experience depart.

Lloyd hasn't played much basketball at Arlington, but could help out this winter. "He's working hard and has improved," Wissen said, "but he's still got a lot to learn. He didn't play basketball as a freshman and naturally was behind with the sophomores."

Four Races in Turkey Trot

Rain or snow, warm or cold, the second annual Thanksgiving Day Turkey Trot will be run Thanksgiving day at the Mount Prospect Country Club.

The races are sponsored by the Jaycee's in the village. President of the group, Jerry Svec said an extension of the mild weather is hoped for by the group.

The race has four categories: one for junior high school age girls at one-quarter mile; a second for junior high age boys of one-half mile; the third for senior high age boys over a two-mile course, and a four-mile marathon for men of college age and older.

There will be 15 winners in each category with trophies and ribbons presented to all who place.

INVITATIONS have been extended to 31 high schools and eight colleges in the Chicago suburban areas to enter their cross - country teams and interested individual runners.

The invitation has also been extended to anyone in the Chicagoland area in the above age categories who desire to participate.

Applications have been coming in at a steady pace representing some 10 or 12 surrounding communities, Bob Seeler, chairman of the Turkey Trot, said. He said there is still room for more applicants, but that prospective contestants are urged to submit their applications as soon as possible.

THE COURSES will be laid out at the country club. The racing will conculde about noon.

Featured at the "Trot" will be the resurrection of an old time friend of long standing — though obsolete these many years past —the nickel cup of coffee.

Applications can be obtained from the Mount Prospect Country Club, school track coaches, the Mount Prospect Jaycees or by calling chairman Bob Seeler at [illegible]

Bork Praised By St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, (UPI)—Coach Wally Lemm of the St. Louis Cardinals has commented favorably on passer George Bork of Northern Illinois, it became known today.

Lemm said Bork "has a chance" to become a pro football player. Lemm disclosed that he had watched Bork in practice before this season.

"He throws the ball good and gets it away fast," Lemm said.

Lemm said Bork's "biggest problem" would be to adjust to the pro style of play—dropping back into the pocket and looking for receivers."

Lemm said Bork has been working from a spread formation and gets the ball on a direct snap from center in passing position.

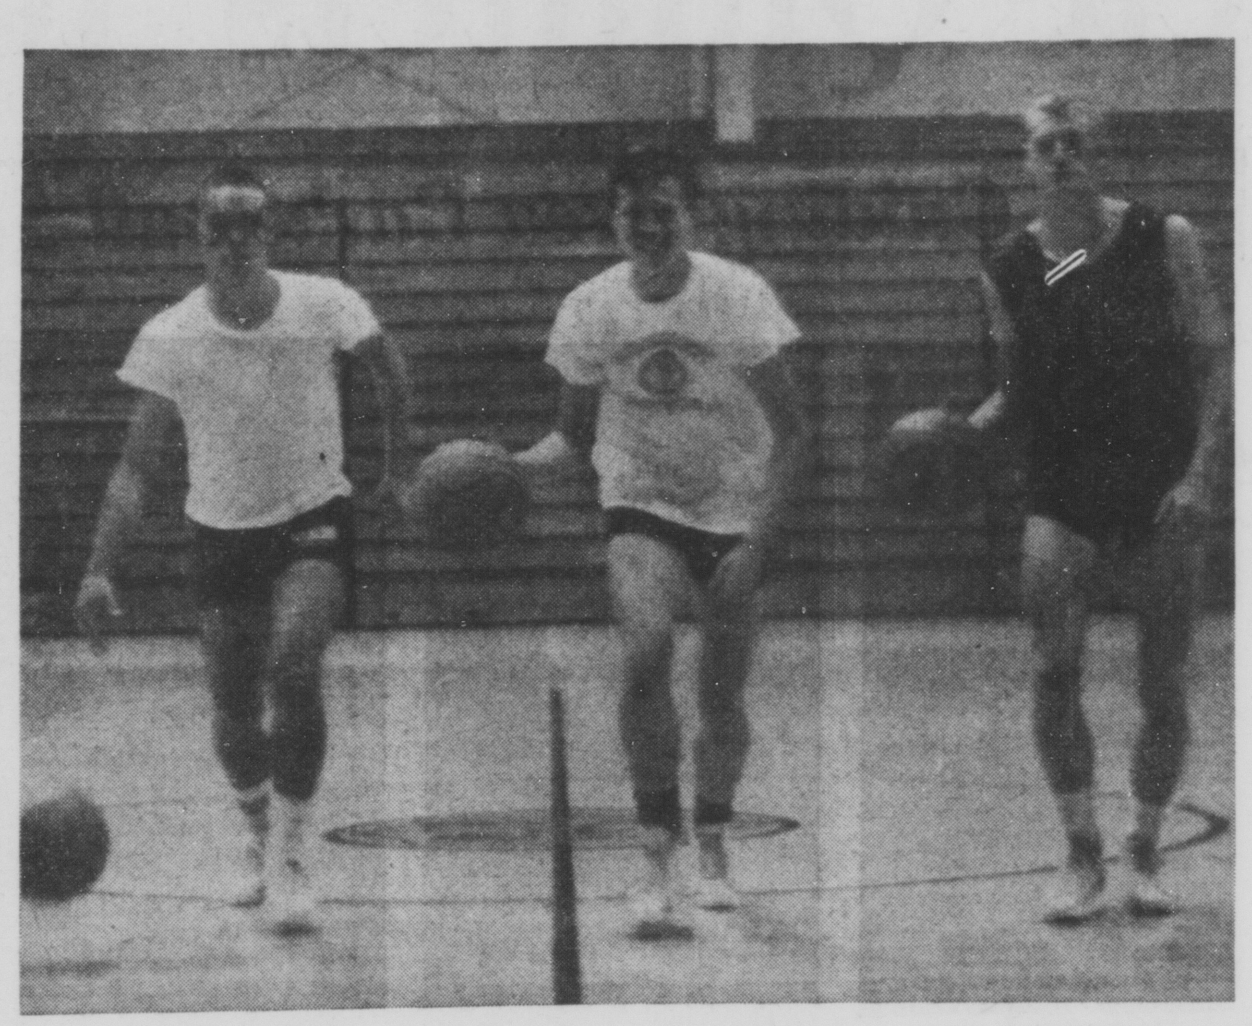
Awaiting Cage Opener



PROSPECT HIGH SCHOOL coach Dick Kinneman greeted lettermen (l. to r.) Dave White, Ron Moehling, and Rich Freyman when drills opened for the 1963-64 season, and the trio of seniors is expected to have a lot to say about the Knights' hardwood success. Prospect will launch its schedule tomorrow (Friday) with a home contest against Evanston's Wildkits of the Suburban League. (Staff Photo).

St. Viator Ends Named To All-Stars

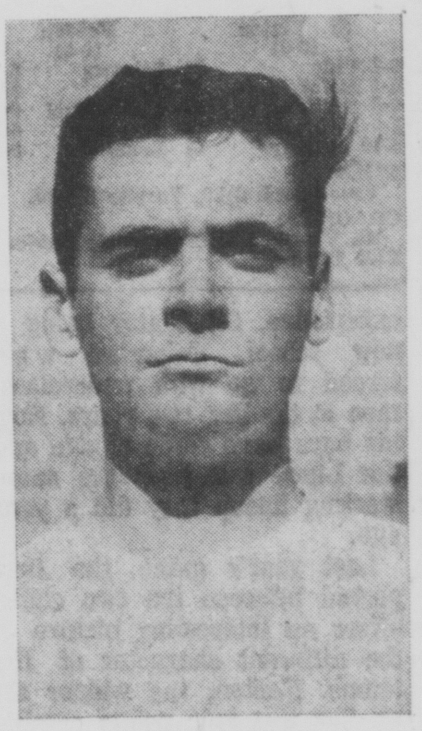
CHUCK HEINRICH



JIM VIDT

St. Viator's Chuck Heinrich and Jim Vidt, two of the finest high school ends in the area, landed positions on the Chicagoland Prep League all-star football team announced this week.

Heinrich, a 6-foot-3, 180-pound junior, was named to the right end slot on the offensive team, and Vidt, another junior, was selected at left end on the defensive unit.

The league named 12 boys on offense and 11 on defense with division champion St. Patrick dominating the squad. The Shamrocks filled seven of the 23 berths.

HEINRICH played both ways for St. Viator, working as safety on defense. He was the Lions' leading scorer both for the season and in conference competition.

Vidt didn't play on defense his fall but the all-star selector couldn't pass up this talented 6-foot-2, 185 pounder. He teamed with Heinrich to give the Lions two of the most gifted pass receivers on any team in the Chicago area.

"As far as I was concerned, there weren't any better ends around," St. Viator assistant Frank Mariani praised.

ALTHOUGH the Lions only placed two boys on the first teams, they did land three honorable mention spots with tackle John Kidd and backs Joe Heitz and Jim Murray.

Six seniors, five juniors, and one sophomore were named to the offensive team with four of the five backs third-year performers. Only soph was Frank Wagner, a 5-foot-10, 180-pounder from LaSalle. The defensive unit consists of six seniors and five juniors.

Prospect's Jayvees Eye Cage Opener

Warren Collier's Prospect jayvees will host Evanston High School Friday evening in the season opener.

Game time for the varsity preliminary is seven o'clock in the Prospect fieldhouse.

Evanston comes into the contest off an easy conquest of Maine East last week.

"We've looked a little ragged," Collier said, "but they'll come around. This is a fine bunch of boys."

Falcons' Sophs To Open Friday

Although two starters will be missing—one for a month or longer and the other for the season — Rog Steingraber still isn't that pessimistic as he prepares his Forest View sophomore basketball team for the opener with Rich Central Friday evening.

"I've been encouraged by what I've seen so far," Steingraber reported this week. "If these boys stayed together they could have a good season, but there's a chance some will be moved up to the junior-varsity before too long."

Steingraber already has lost Pat Dunnigan, a 6-foot-2 whiz who would have been the key man on the frosh-soph team.

"Pat's up with the varsity and looking very, very good," Rog praised.

JIM BAUMGARDT, a 6-foot-5, 190-pounder who would have opened in the pivot for the Falcon sophs, is on the sidelines with a back injury and probably won't return until after Christmas.

With Baumgart sidelined Steingraber will use Jeff Grismer, a 6-foot-1 soph, at center. John Lee, a 6-foot-1 transfer from Ohio, is backing up Grismer.

Leading forward candidates are Roger Mollenkamp (5-10), Steve Mueller (5-10), and Jim Rennhack (6-1). Heading the guards are Bryon Borgardt (5-9), Kurt Koentopp (5-8), and Bill Widinski (5-7).

Forest View's sophs will play the preliminary to games with both Rich Central and Palatine this weekend with 7 p.m. starting times.

"But we won't play a varsity preliminary again until February when we go to Lisle," Steingraber added. "The jayvees will play first in the other games."

Phillips is a 5-foot-10 junior guard with a lot of promise.

EVANSTON HIGH School coach Jack Burmaster is more optimistic than usual this winter.

"We should be better," he said on the phone at the outset of the week. "We have more depth than usual and some size. We didn't have any losses of note."

Burmaster will open with three regulars in forwards Jimmy Seward (6-1) and Bob Bost (6-3) and guard Roamy Taylor (5-10). Seward collected 11 points in the Kits' 32-30 loss to Prospect in the season opener last year.

MIKE WYNN, a 6-foot-3 junior, will work in the pivot with relief from senior Martin Campbell (6-4).

Taylor, an excellent football halfback, teams with Kenny Wideman (5-10) at the guard berths, and boy boys are quick.

Burmaster has two lettermen on the bench who should see extensive service. Bob Reece, a 6-foot-1 senior, lettered at forward last winter, and Arnold Moschin is another returning front-liner.

"We have about 15 boys of almost equal ability," Burmaster summed up. "And our offense should be much better than in the past three years."

Four Tied For Wheeling League Lead

Martin Metals and the Andersons gained victories last Wednesday evening to throw the Wheeling Park District League into a four way tie.

Bork Praised By St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, (UPI)—Coach Wally Lemm of the St. Louis Cardinals has commented favorably on passer George Bork of Northern Illinois, it became known today.

Lemm said Bork "has a chance" to become a pro football player. Lemm disclosed that he had watched Bork in practice before this season.

"He throws the ball good and gets it away fast," Lemm said.

Lemm said Bork's "biggest problem" would be to adjust to the pro style of play—dropping back into the pocket and looking for receivers."

Lemm said Bork has been working from a spread formation and gets the ball on a direct snap from center in passing position.

Lemm said Bork reminded him in physical appearance of Don Meredith of the Dallas Cowboys.

St. Viator Ends Named To All-Stars

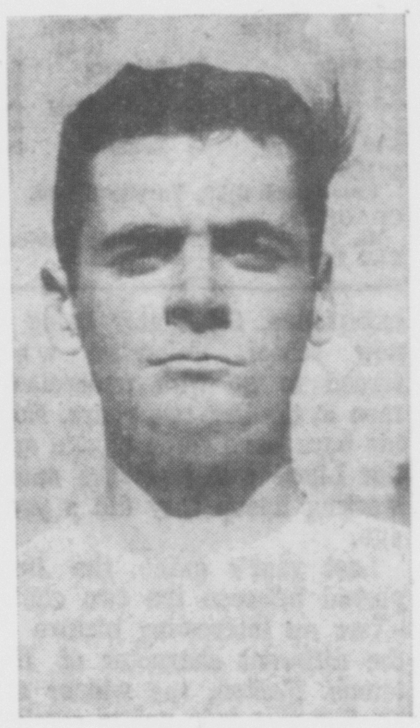
CHUCK HEINRICH



JIM VIDT

St. Viator's Chuck Heinrich and Jim Vidt, two of the finest high school ends in the area, landed positions on the Chicagoland Prep League all-star football team announced this week.

Heinrich, a 6-foot-3, 180-pound junior, was named to the right end slot on the offensive team, and Vidt, another junior, was selected at left end on the defensive unit.

The league named 12 boys on offense and 11 on defense with division champion St. Patrick dominating the squad. The Shamrocks filled seven of the 23 berths.

HEINRICH played both ways for St. Viator, working as safety on defense. He was the Lions' leading scorer both for the season and in conference competition.

Vidt didn't play on defense his fall but the all-star selector couldn't pass up this talented 6-foot-2, 185 pounder. He teamed with Heinrich to give the Lions two of the most gifted pass receivers on any team in the Chicago area.

"As far as I was concerned, there weren't any better ends around," St. Viator assistant Frank Mariani praised.

ALTHOUGH the Lions only placed two boys on the first teams, they did land three honorable mention spots with tackle John Kidd and backs Joe Heitz and Jim Murray.

Six seniors, five juniors, and one sophomore were named to the offensive team with four of the five backs third-year performers. Only soph was Frank Wagner, a 5-foot-10, 180-pounder from LaSalle. The defensive unit consists of six seniors and five juniors.

Prospect's Jayvees Eye Cage Opener

Warren Collier's Prospect jayvees will host Evanston High School Friday evening in the season opener.

Game time for the varsity preliminary is seven o'clock in the Prospect fieldhouse.

Evanston comes into the contest off an easy conquest of Maine East last week.

"We've looked a little ragged," Collier said, "but they'll come around. This is a fine bunch of boys."

Collier will select his starting alignment from among forwards Greg Kowal (6-1), Craig Thomas (6-1) and Greg Melzer (5-11); centers John McKay (6-3) and John Mader (6-2); and guards Bill Phillips (5-10), Bill Henry (5-9), and Steve Kerr (5-10).

Four Tied For Wheeling League Lead

Martin Metals and the Andersons gained victories last Wednesday evening to throw the Wheeling Park District League into a four way tie.

Martin edged the Air Force Raiders 48-44, while the Andersons bombed Illinois Lock, 49-19.

some solid experience. Dan, a rugged 185-pounder, is a fine rebounder and he can score. He popped in 26 points in Arlington's crushing victory over co-champ Riverside-Brookfield last winter.

Sherman dialed 205 points as a junior and Splittorff was right behind with 191.

Connors didn't letter although he did see some action with the varsity as a soph. Bob collected 38 points last winter and has the potential to develop into an excellent performer. He has some fine offensive moves and a nice touch.

Also working out with the varsity are Jeff Beckman (5-11), Jim Jakubiec (6-0), Jack Lindstrom (6-1), Steve Martin (6-0), Ray Merkel (6-0), and Phil Musser (6-3).

HOW WOULD YOU ORDER your opening day of pheasant season if you had a choice? Cold, a little snow perhaps, and a steady breeze for the dogs?

You could predict where they would be then, and probably they would be a bit easier to spot—flushing at the proper instant to provide easy shooting.

Perhaps that would be the day to order, but fortunately the weather is at no hunter's beck and call. There is no telling—only wishing.

So this year it happened. At 11:45 a. m. Saturday in a soil-bank field near Decatur there were six of us sitting on car fenders looking out on a 60 degree day with a "steady breeze" that would topple a shallow-rooted tree.

We had pointers—Brittany spaniels—and the ground and air were bone dry, filled with dust. They would have trouble working well in the strong wind.

Talk centered around where to locate the birds, how to keep them from running around us in more than 80 acres of good feed and cover.

The general comment was, "We could have had better hunting weather;" but then the hunt began.

We started down a drainage ditch with 15 feet of weeds on either side. The dogs were eager and frustrated. On a colder day many birds would have been on the sheltered banks.

Only a single hen flushed. The majority of the birds were obviously in the broad, flat fields, covered with machine-picked corn, wheat, pasture land, and what the local farmers call Kennedy fields (soil bank).

The hunting got harder; the drives were rough and long, but sport and excitement were undeniably at a peak. There was no telling where the next cock would flush, or how many would burst at once from sparse cover at the end of a field.

Two members of the party filled their limits—nobody went home that day without at least one bird. And the best part, it was a good half-day's hunting with hardly a dry run through any field, though many a cock bird got up beyond gun range.

The second day of the season, Sunday, found only two of the original party of six out in the field to greet the morning, and those two, including the writer, were a sorry lot of stiff muscles and sore feet.

But that second day in the same kind of weather over the same ground (with a couple of springer spaniels replacing the Brittanies) was good for just as many surprises and as much excitement.

The ideal hunting weather, cold and snow, will come sometime before the season ends Dec. 19, and by that time it will probably be more than welcome.

The game population will have been thinned by constant pressure from Illinois' avid bird hunters, and the beautiful cock pheasant will have learned to run, dodge, hide and fly a little better than he does now.

One thing is sure, though. There are few people around Decatur—or around Chenoa by all reports stemming from that area—who had anything to curse but their aim after this year's opening day.

The Department of Conservation had it pegged, it seems, in a pre-season report that the pheasant population has increased 25 per cent over a 1958 count, and stands the highest in that span of time.

And now comes a report that the Illinois quail population is up approximately 50 per cent over last year. W. D. Klimstra, director of the Southern Illinois University Cooperative Wildlife Research Laboratory, made the estimate and attributes the increase to greater hatching success last spring.

If this be the case, despite the expert's warning that the birds will flush wildly and be hard to find because of drought conditions, next weekend should mean a trip to southern Illinois to test the survey's validity.

Ormsbee Appointed Athletic Director For Wheeling High

Lester Coordinator of PE, Health and Safety

Elliott E. (Bus) Ormsbee, who has served in the District 214 system for 14 years, has been appointed athletic director of the new Wheeling High School.

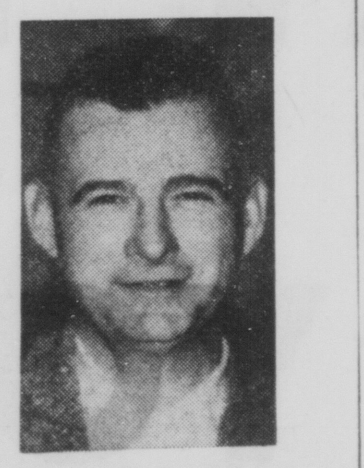
The selection of Ormsbee was approved Monday evening by the District 214 school board.

In other board action Howard Lester, Arlington Athletic Director, was named district coordinator of physical education, health and safety.

The two appointments will become effective in September, 1964.

ORMSBEE CAME to Arlington High School in 1949 and served two years as assistant to Curtis Larsen with the varsity football team. He took over as head man in 1951 as Arlington entered the West Suburban Conference.

Ormsbee coached four All-Staters in end Jack Weber, tackle Dan Striegel, and halfbacks Johnny Sujack and Mike Dundy and near-misses in quarterbacks Dick Winterbauer and George Bork.



HOWARD LESTER

Dundy (University of Illinois) and Bork (Northern Illinois) are standouts today, playing for nationally-ranked clubs in major and small college rankings.

An All-State halfback at Hamilton, Ill. High School in 1939, Ormsbee went on to achieve stardom in football, basketball, and baseball at Bradley University in Peoria. He lettered in the three sports in both his sophomore and junior years at Bradley and earned Little All-America honors as a halfback in 1941 and 1942.

FOLLOWING A stint of three and one-half years in the Navy's submarine service, "Bus" entered the professional football ranks as a defensive back for the Philadelphia Eagles. He played one year with the Eagles and then was shifted to the Bethlehem Bulldogs, an Eagle farm club and a member of the Eastern Pro League.

In the Eastern Division Ormsbee was a unanimous all-league selection in 1947 as he broke the scoring record.

An injury cut short a promising pro career with "Bus" sidelined at the outset of the 1948 season after working out with the San Francisco 49ers.

Ormsbee is married and the father of three girls and a boy. He has his B.S. degree from Bradley and his Master's from the University of Illinois.

During the fall he worked with the Wheeling freshman football team which was based at Forest View High School.

'BUS' ORMSBEE

LESTER IS IN his second year as athletic director at Arlington High School after serving three years in the same capacity at Prospect.

A graduate of Illinois State Normal, Lester came to Arlington High School in 1953. He had served as athletic director and football and basketball coach at Shelbyville from 1948 to 1953. He began coaching at Waterloo, Ill. and was athletic director at Batavia from 1942 to 1948.

Lester was varsity baseball and basketball coach at Arlington High School from the fall of 1953 to the spring of 1957.

Married and the father of two daughters, Lester has his B.S. in Physical Education and Masters in Education from Illinois State Normal.

Cards Face Bright Future After Four Losing Grid Seasons

The future is bright for Arlington High School football.

Three squads of underclassmen lost only one game in 21 outings this fall and that setback was by a single touchdown.

The freshmen were unbeaten at both levels, and the sophomores were co-champions of the rugged West Suburban Conference.

Talking in terms of the future, there's some definite optimism for a school that has gone four straight seasons without a winning varsity team and stands 27-60-4 in 13 years of league competition.

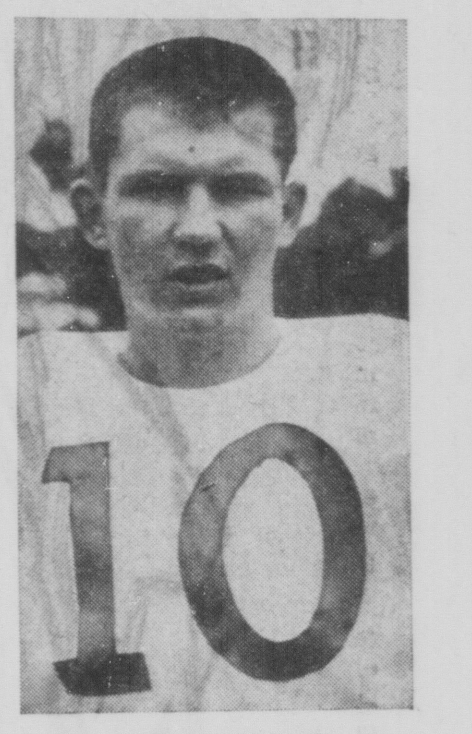
THE 1960'S haven't been too kind to Arlington High's varsity football teams. In the past four seasons the Cards have won only three West Suburban games. Twice Arlington has experienced winless campaigns.

Three weeks ago Arlington concluded another varsity grid season, saddled with eight straight setbacks and the unenviable cellar slot in the WSC.

Statistics, released this week by Paddock Publications, tell the story of 1963. In the major departments—first downs, total yards rushing, total yards passing, and points—the Cards trailed opponents by sizeable totals.

ARLINGTON yielded 90 first downs and 2231 total yards over eight games and was outscored 202-52. Opponents showed a 1403-642 advantage in rushing and 828-494 margin through the air lanes.

Two seniors and a junior were the statistical leaders at Arlington. Quarterback Jim Ewart was the leading ground gainer and scorer, junior quarterback Mike Frase headed the aerial attack, and senior halfback Tom Fagerson topped all pass receivers.



JIM EWART
Tops Rushing, Scoring

Ewart carried 97 times for 192 yards and a 1.9 average with his best game in the season finale against Riverside. A hard-running senior, Jim's rushing total suffered through losses on passing plays. Ewart also scored four touchdowns for the team leadership.

FRASE AND Ewart were close in total yardage on passes, but Mike had the advantage in percentage with 17 pitches finding the mark in 43 tries for 234 yards. Ewart connected on 13 of 49 for 221 yards.

Fagerson, an all-conference selection, pulled in 11 passes for 184 yards, a 16.7 per play average. Tim piled up 180 yards in 47 rushing plays for a 3.8 standard.

HEAD COACH Al Allen will lose some key performers by graduation, but he'll be greeted by several seniors with experience and some promising juniors when practice opens next fall.

And don't forget that impressive group of freshmen. It's possible there's some talent there that could help on a varsity level in 1964.

Arlington High School football fans haven't had much to cheer about since the late 1950's, but there's good reason to get excited about the future.

Reg Fleming To Address Skating Club

Black Hawks' Star in Mount Prospect Friday

Reg Fleming, the effective defense man and forward for Chicago's red-hot Black Hawks, will address the sixth annual kick-off meeting of the Mount Prospect Speed Skating Club.

The meeting will be held on Friday evening, Nov. 22, at 7:30 p.m., in Lions Memorial Park Fieldhouse, Mount Prospect.

Fleming, who is more at home on skates than in street shoes, has had a varied and colorful career on the ice. A spirited competitor, he likes plenty of action. With the Hawks since 1960, his professional career began with Shawinigan in 1956 and includes a season with the Montreal Canadiens.

COACH HERMAN Haenisch of the Mount Prospect Club expressed delight upon learning that Fleming would be on hand Friday night. A former speed skater, Haenisch carved a glittering niche for himself in the years just prior to World War II. His mastery of speed on ice won for him, among several honors, the National Indoor, Intermediate Silver Skates, St. Louis Silver Skates and New Tri-State championships.

Haenisch contends that good performance in any athletic endeavor, is a development resulting from consistent and diligent practice under competent coaching. The skater, according to Haenisch, must be superbly conditioned both physically and psychologically to compete effectively.

CLUB PRESIDENT William Sommers extended a cordial invitation to anyone from the Mount Prospect area who has an interest in speed skating to attend the kick-off meeting. "It won't cost a cent to learn a lot about the sport," stated Sommers. "Anyone, boy or girl, over seven years of age can earn a place on the Mount Prospect team," he added.

"We participate in all the major meets in the State and a few elsewhere. Our roster includes some of the finest skaters in the country and we are proud of the progress we have made in the five years of our existence. New faces will be welcomed."

Regular members of the Mount Prospect club are presently hard at work preparing for the season's first indoor meet to be held at the Polar Dome on Dec. 1, where they will compete against some of the outstanding indoor style speed skaters in the country.

JIM EWART
Tops Rushing, Scoring

Ewart carried 97 times for 192 yards and a 1.9 average with his best game in the season finale against Riverside. A hard-running senior, Jim's rushing total suffered through losses on passing plays. Ewart also scored four touchdowns for the team leadership.

FRASE AND Ewart were close in total yardage on passes, but Mike had the advantage in percentage with 17 pitches finding the mark in 43 tries for 234 yards. Ewart connected on 13 of 49 for 221 yards.

Fagerson, an all-conference selection, pulled in 11 passes for 184 yards, a 16.7 per play average. Tim piled up 180 yards in 47 rushing plays for a 3.8 standard.

HEAD COACH Al Allen will lose some key performers by graduation, but he'll be greeted by several seniors with experience and some promising juniors when practice opens next fall.

And don't forget that impressive group of freshmen. It's possible there's some talent there that could help on a varsity level in 1964.

Arlington High School football fans haven't had much to cheer about since the late 1950's, but there's good reason to get excited about the future.

Reg Fleming To Address Skating Club

Black Hawks' Star in Mount Prospect Friday

Reg Fleming, the effective defense man and forward for Chicago's red-hot Black Hawks, will address the sixth annual kick-off meeting of the Mount Prospect Speed Skating Club.

The meeting will be held on Friday evening, Nov. 22, at 7:30 p.m., in Lions Memorial Park Fieldhouse, Mount Prospect.

Fleming, who is more at home on skates than in street shoes, has had a varied and colorful career on the ice. A spirited competitor, he likes plenty of action. With the Hawks since 1960, his professional career began with Shawinigan in 1956 and includes a season with the Montreal Canadiens.

COACH HERMAN Haenisch of the Mount Prospect Club expressed delight upon learning that Fleming would be on hand Friday night. A former speed skater, Haenisch carved a glittering niche for himself in the years just prior to World War II. His mastery of speed on ice won for him, among several honors, the National Indoor, Intermediate Silver Skates, St. Louis Silver Skates and New Tri-State championships.

Haenisch contends that good performance in any athletic endeavor, is a development resulting from consistent and diligent practice under competent coaching. The skater, according to Haenisch, must be superbly conditioned both physically and psychologically to compete effectively.

CLUB PRESIDENT William Sommers extended a cordial invitation to anyone from the Mount Prospect area who has an interest in speed skating to attend the kick-off meeting. "It won't cost a cent to learn a lot about the sport," stated Sommers. "Anyone, boy or girl, over seven years of age can earn a place on the Mount Prospect team," he added.

"We participate in all the major meets in the State and a few elsewhere. Our roster includes some of the finest skaters in the country and we are proud of the progress we have made in the five years of our existence. New faces will be welcomed."

Regular members of the Mount Prospect club are presently hard at work preparing for the season's first indoor meet to be held at the Polar Dome on Dec. 1, where they will compete against some of the outstanding indoor style speed skaters in the country.

Morton, Pines Share Lead In Men's Division

Leaders Score 4-0 Wins To Overtake Pro Bowl

Saturday was a strange night in the Paddock Classic Traveling League. Casares Pro Bowl strolled on to the lanes at Jeffery Lanes holding down first place in the men's division. They proceeded to hammer the Brass Rail Restaurant 3-1. When they stowed their gear for the evening, they were in third place.

For in the meantime, Morton Pontiac rolled over the host Jeffery team; 4-0 and Pines Industries routed Pioneer Lanes by the same score.

The results left the Pontiacs and Pines straddled atop the wild PCTL standings with 28 points. Casares dropped into third place, just a half point back.

IN THE FINAL match of the night, Rolling Meadows Bowl and Hamms Beer rolled to a 2-2 deadlock.

Morton's march back to the top was largely the result of simmering performances by Bill Radunz and Ed Duff.

Radunz dialed a 235-230-247 — 712. His final game was tops for the night, his series total tops for the season. Duff wasn't exactly idle, going 200-191-244 — 635.

Bob Rogers set the pace in Pines' rout of Pioneer with a 217-214-202 — 633.

Lobby Lobinsky was again the leader for Pro Bowl with a 210-204-192 — 606, but had to yield match honors to Ted Zimmerman of the Brass Rail. Zimmerman wrapped a 235 and a 204 around a 198 for a 637 series.

A big night by Bill Heerdt enabled Hamm's to edge Rolling Meadows 2793 - 2778 in total pins to gain their split. Heerdt manufactured the only 600 series in the match with a 231-210-203 — 644.

This week the action moves to Rolling Meadows where two of the three teams contending for the lead, Pro Bowl and and Morton Pontiac meet. The third contender, Pines takes on the hosts, while the Brass Rail tries to fatten up on Jeffery Lanes and Pioneer Lanes battles Hamm's Beer.

Meet The Sponsor

Two Classic Entries for Mort Kantoff

(This is the third in a series of articles on team sponsors in the Paddock Classic Traveling League.)

Business is good, and his entry in the Paddock Classic Traveling League is back in first place.

Morton Kantoff, owner of Morton Pontiac in Arlington Heights, has reason to smile this week.

Thanks to a four-point swep Saturday evening Morton Pontiac now enjoys a first place tie in the men's division. Things aren't as encouraging in the gals' league, but the season still is young.

Morton Kantoff keeps a close check on his Classic teams. He is the only sponsor with entries in both divisions. Morton Pontiac joined the men's competition last season and is in its third year with the gals.

Mort proudly points out that his Morton Pontiac entry won the women's championship in the 1961-62 season.

Kantoff feels there is a definite advertising value in sponsoring bowling teams, particularly in the highly regarded Paddock divisions where public exposure is greater.

Kantoff came to Arlington Heights in late 1955 after closing his own and his father's automobile dealership in Chicago.

STARTING IN an old white garage which has since been razed for the National Tea's parking lot on S. Evergreen, Kantoff started building a Pontiac dealership.

"The most wonderful thing about our suburban operation," Mort admits, "is that we can be interested in the customer as a person, not just as a quick sale. And the customer regards us as a neighbor in the same mutual confidence.

"In our Arlington Heights operation," he continued, "people are more apt to become friendly with you, and if they are properly treated—which we aim to do—then they will send their friends to us."

Morton Pontiac, Inc., is located at 710 E. Northwest Highway in Arlington Heights.

Leaders Score 4-0 Wins To Overtake Pro Bowl

Saturday was a strange night in the Paddock Classic Traveling League. Casares Pro Bowl strolled on to the lanes at Jeffery Lanes holding down first place in the men's division. They proceeded to hammer the Brass Rail Restaurant 3-1. When they stowed their gear for the evening, they were in third place.

For in the meantime, Morton Pontiac rolled over the host Jeffery team; 4-0 and Pines Industries routed Pioneer Lanes by the same score.

The results left the Pontiacs and Pines straddled atop the wild PCTL standings with 28 points. Casares dropped into third place, just a half point back.

IN THE FINAL match of the night, Rolling Meadows Bowl and Hamms Beer rolled to a 2-2 deadlock.

Morton's march back to the top was largely the result of simmering performances by Bill Radunz and Ed Duff.

Radunz dialed a 235-230-247 — 712. His final game was tops for the night, his series total tops for the season. Duff wasn't exactly idle, going 200-191-244 — 635.

Bob Rogers set the pace in Pines' rout of Pioneer with a 217-214-202 — 633.

Lobby Lobinsky was again the leader for Pro Bowl with a 210-204-192 — 606, but had to yield match honors to Ted Zimmerman of the Brass Rail. Zimmerman wrapped a 235 and a 204 around a 198 for a 637 series.

A big night by Bill Heerdt enabled Hamm's to edge Rolling Meadows 2793 - 2778 in total pins to gain their split. Heerdt manufactured the only 600 series in the match with a 231-210-203 — 644.

This week the action moves to Rolling Meadows where two of the three teams contending for the lead, Pro Bowl and and Morton Pontiac meet. The third contender, Pines takes on the hosts, while the Brass Rail tries to fatten up on Jeffery Lanes and Pioneer Lanes battles Hamm's Beer.

Meet The Sponsor

Two Classic Entries for Mort Kantoff

(This is the third in a series of articles on team sponsors in the Paddock Classic Traveling League.)

Business is good, and his entry in the Paddock Classic Traveling League is back in first place.

Morton Kantoff, owner of Morton Pontiac in Arlington Heights, has reason to smile this week.

Thanks to a four-point swep Saturday evening Morton Pontiac now enjoys a first place tie in the men's division. Things aren't as encouraging in the gals' league, but the season still is young.

Morton Kantoff keeps a close check on his Classic teams. He is the only sponsor with entries in both divisions. Morton Pontiac joined the men's competition last season and is in its third year with the gals.

Mort proudly points out that his Morton Pontiac entry won the women's championship in the 1961-62 season.

Kantoff feels there is a definite advertising value in sponsoring bowling teams, particularly in the highly regarded Paddock divisions where public exposure is greater.

Kantoff came to Arlington Heights in late 1955 after closing his own and his father's automobile dealership in Chicago.

STARTING IN an old white garage which has since been razed for the National Tea's parking lot on S. Evergreen, Kantoff started building a Pontiac dealership.

"The most wonderful thing about our suburban operation," Mort admits, "is that we can be interested in the customer as a person, not just as a quick sale. And the customer regards us as a neighbor in the same mutual confidence.

"In our Arlington Heights operation," he continued, "people are more apt to become friendly with you, and if they are properly treated—which we aim to do—then they will send their friends to us."

Morton Pontiac, Inc., is located at 710 E. Northwest Highway in Arlington Heights.

An Arlington Heights woman is a member of one of eight special task committees which are working between meetings of the Commission on Brotherhood Restructure of the International Convention of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ).

SHE IS Mrs. O. Ivan Cole, 221 S. Stratford Road, who sits on the committee concerned with ecumenical relationships of the brotherhood.

Mrs. Cole is president of the International Christian Women's Women's Fellowship of the Christian Churches.

The 126-member commission on brotherhood is studying the denomination's organized life and recommending structural improvements. Most of the special task committees will make interim reports to the commission's central committee in February.

THEIR WORK will be considered more fully when the entire commission meets June 29 to July 2 in Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. Cole, her husband and daughter, Rozanne, moved to Arlington Heights recently from Cincinnati, Ohio. Cole is associated with American Telephone and Telegraph in Chicago.

Diabetic Kits at Lohr's Drug

Diabetic detection kits may be obtained through the remainder of this week at Lohr's Pharmacy, 210 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

The free kits are being distributed by area druggists in a national campaign to make persons aware of diabetes and detect possible diabetes cases.

The kits contain a small strip of treated paper which is to be mailed to the Diabetes Association. Only persons whose test is positive for sugar will be notified of the results.

This is the fourth year independent druggists in the area have made the free diabetes detection kits available to residents, according to Joe Lohr, owner of Lohr's Pharmacy. (A

Church Dedication Scheduled Sunday

Dedication services will be held at 4 p.m. this Sunday for the new Congregational Church of Arlington Heights, 1001 W. Kirchoff Road.

The dedication sermon will be delivered by Dr. Henry Damm of the Board of Homeland Ministries, United Church of Christ. Subject of the sermon will be "A Growing Church in a Changing Culture."

Other special guests sharing in the service will be the Rev. John Queen, associate superintendent of the Illinois Conference of Congregational Churches; Walter A. Kroeber, architect for the new building, and Raymond Lantz, general contractor.

Mail Cards Early, Mrs. Dodge Urges

Faced with a certainty that this Christmas will set an all-time record for mailings of Christmas cards and gifts, Arlington Heights Postmaster Virginia F. Dodge today requested residents' cooperation in the annual "Mail Early for Christmas" campaign.

"Here are the things to watch to be sure that every Christmas card and gift package will be delivered before Christmas Eve," Mrs. Dodge says:

First check over your Christmas card and gift list carefully to be certain each address is complete with full name, street and number, state and zone or ZIP code number.

SECOND, stock up soon on sturdy packing materials for your gift packages, including heavy wrapping paper, corrugated cartons, strong cord and paper adhesive tape.

Fourth, procure free labels from the post office which read "All for local delivery" and "All for out-of-of-town delivery," so you can sort your Christmas cards into two groups, with addresses all facing one way, thus insuring fast delivery.

Fifth, be sure that your full name and address is on all of your Christmas card envelopes and shipping labels, and be sure to include your ZIP code number in return address.

THE POSTMASTER specially requests that residents schedule Christmas mailings so that all cards and gift packages going to most distant points are mailed by Dec. 10.

She also recommends that those headed for local destinations be mailed at least a week before Christmas.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

Fall has been a busy time for girls in the 'O Tao Wa Ki' Camp Fire group. After fly-up ceremony these former Bubbling Blue Birds, under the direction of their leader, Mrs. Charles Ryckaert, worked on the selection of their new name which means friendly, singing, adventurous maidens. They are studying Indian symbolism and are working individually on craft honors in preparation for their first council fire in December.

Officer and committee responsibilities have been shared and as a group they have completed a Trail Seeker Rank requirement by planning and taking a one-mile hike along the trails in Allison Woods which included lunch they had prepared. Social activities they have held include a Halloween party and a trip to the Sugar Bowl.

Although members of the Ta Cin Ca Junior High Camp Fire group are concentrating on earning Individual Torch Bearer Awards, they plan to hold meetings as often as possible. Mrs. Gloria Vogel and Mrs. Barbara Rubenking are guardians.

A potluck dinner consisting of both foreign and American dishes, was prepared and served by the girls Nov. 11. Gail Whiteside and Rosemary Saidikowski were hostesses and the dinner was held in the basement playroom of Gail Whiteside's home. (A

They spent most of their time visiting with Drake relatives, then went on to Las Vegas where they attended the fall roundup golf tournament at the Desert Inn. As is their custom in Vegas, they saw the show at the Lido, a must when they're in that city.

MRS. DRAKE'S mother, Mrs. Robert Porter, from Dearborn, Mich., stayed with Debby and Brian during their parents' absence.

Last week the Drakes were off again, this time to Detroit where they attended the council meeting of Lincoln-Mercury dealers. Mr. Drake was chairman of the group.

During high school days at Arlington, the Al Aspengrens' daughter, Mary Lou, enjoyed her extra curricular activities on the "Heights" yearbook and applied for similar duties now that she is at the University of Illinois. Mrs. Thomas Loftus of N. Dryden Avenue celebrated doubly this year for her Nov. 11th birthday. Sunday, members of her family - the Jim Rogers, the Bernard Majewskis of Barrington and the J. Mareks of Chicago - all arrived with gifts and best wishes and stayed to enjoy a family dinner.

ON MONDAY, her actual birth date, Mrs. Loftus was guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Majewski, for lunch at the Mid-America Club in the Prudential Building.

The Jack Andersons' daughter, Dawne, is directing one of the acts in the Oklahoma College for Women's annual water show in December. Along the Camp Fire Trail

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

Fall has been a busy time for girls in the 'O Tao Wa Ki' Camp Fire group. After fly-up ceremony these former Bubbling Blue Birds, under the direction of their leader, Mrs. Charles Ryckaert, worked on the selection of their new name which means friendly, singing, adventurous maidens. They are studying Indian symbolism and are working individually on craft honors in preparation for their first council fire in December.

Officer and committee responsibilities have been shared and as a group they have completed a Trail Seeker Rank requirement by planning and taking a one-mile hike along the trails in Allison Woods which included lunch they had prepared. Social activities they have held include a Halloween party and a trip to the Sugar Bowl.

Although members of the Ta Cin Ca Junior High Camp Fire group are concentrating on earning Individual Torch Bearer Awards, they plan to hold meetings as often as possible. Mrs. Gloria Vogel and Mrs. Barbara Rubenking are guardians.

A potluck dinner consisting of both foreign and American dishes, was prepared and served by the girls Nov. 11. Gail Whiteside and Rosemary Saidikowski were hostesses and the dinner was held in the basement playroom of Gail Whiteside's home. (A

Friends and neighbors offered condolences to Mrs. Lyle Taylor of E. Clarendon Avenue after the death of her father, A. C. Placer. The Taylors motored up to Petoskey, Mich. to attend the funeral. Their four-day stay ended on Monday of last week.

TERRY JO Testa of N. Beverly Lane celebrated her 10th birthday last Wednesday. A trip to the Loop, a tour of Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry followed by dinner observed the occasion for her. On Saturday the family greeted great-grand-aunt, Ethel Van Middlesworth from Placentia, Calif., to begin her several weeks' holiday in the midwest.

A two-week visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Woehlck in the Owl Lake home near Webster, ended early in November for Ken of N. Pine Court. Besides visiting relatives he took advantage of the duck hunting season in Wisconsin.

The Gene Ryan family of E. Oakton returned last Monday from a four-day motor trip to Cincinnati, where they visited the grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Ryan.

Richard Johnson of E. Olive celebrated his 11th birthday on Nov. 8. Guests at his overnight party were Bruce Kelly, John and Jim Preib, Mark Jacoby and Scott Whitney. The party was held in the Sandor home in Chicago.

Eastwood Events

Newly settled in the former William Kasper residence at 302 N. Lincoln Lane is the Jerry Schoendorf family from Minneapolis. The two oldest children, Tim, 9, and Dan, 6, are attending Windsor School, and pre-schooler, Kari, 2, is keeping Mother Avis company at home. Mr. Schoendorf is district sales manager for General Mills. The Eastwood Community extends a warm welcome to the newcomers.

The whole west coast from Seattle to Los Angeles, with time out in San Francisco, was all included in Mr. and Mrs. James Drake's recent western junket. They spent most of their time visiting with Drake relatives, then went on to Las Vegas where they attended the fall roundup golf tournament at the Desert Inn. As is their custom in Vegas, they saw the show at the Lido, a must when they're in that city.

MRS. DRAKE'S mother, Mrs. Robert Porter, from Dearborn, Mich., stayed with Debby and Brian during their parents' absence.

Last week the Drakes were off again, this time to Detroit where they attended the council meeting of Lincoln-Mercury dealers. Mr. Drake was chairman of the group.

During high school days at Arlington, the Al Aspengrens' daughter, Mary Lou, enjoyed her extra curricular activities on the "Heights" yearbook and applied for similar duties now that she is at the University of Illinois. Recently Mary Lou was honored by being named to the business staff of the Illio yearbook. Congratulations, Mary Lou.

MR. AND MRS. Paul Petersen of 710 E. St. James St., were hosts to many of their neighbors at a party last week.

The Jim Rogers' daughter, Nancy, reigned as queen over the recent homecoming celebrations at Notre Dame High School for boys, in Niles. A senior at Regina Dominica High School, Nancy and Thomas Joyce, homecoming king, lead the homecoming parade on Friday and attended the game against Immaculate Conception and the ball on Saturday night.

Mrs. Thomas Loftus of N. Dryden Avenue celebrated doubly this year for her Nov. 11th birthday. Sunday, members of her family - the Jim Rogers, the Bernard Majewskis of Barrington and the J. Mareks of Chicago - all arrived with gifts and best wishes and stayed to enjoy a family dinner.

ON MONDAY, her actual birth date, Mrs. Loftus was guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Majewski, for lunch at the Mid-America Club in the Prudential Building.

The Jack Andersons' daughter, Dawne, is directing one of the acts in the Oklahoma College for Women's annual water show in December. Each year the Seals Club, an organization for skilled swimmers, produces the show, and Dawne, as one of the directors, wrote the act and selected the music and the costumes. Dawne also recently appeared in a water show televised on the college's educational TV station.

Seventeen years ago Mrs. Carl Bastion came to the United States from her native France and just several weeks ago returned for her first visit home. It was her husband's first trip to Europe and was the first time Grandmother, Mrs. Marguerite Lapaix, saw her 2½-year-old granddaughter and namesake, Margaret.

THE BASTIONS flew to New York and traveled across the ocean via the USS United States. They spent three weeks visiting all Mrs. Bastion's relatives in and around Paris, and also journied to Versailles.

Notes from Arlington Acres

Marie Marshall CLearbrook 5-2936

Arlington Acres extends a welcome to its most recent newcomers, Mr. and Mrs. William Jahnke, their high-school age daughters, Lynne and Pamela, and Mrs. Jahnke's mother, Mrs. Vye Donahue, at 2024 E. Park. The family moved from California but spent a little more than a year in Mount Prospect before deciding to make the former Carroll home their permanent address.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Kleinhuizen, 512 S. Phelps, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Saturday at a party given by their daughter and son, Janet and Ray. Among the 45 or more guests were Barney's 91-year-old mother, Mrs. Sarah Kleinhuizen of Chicago, and Alice's twin sisters, Mrs. Harvey Oquist and Mrs. Irene Fitch of Pell Lake, Wis., and another sister, Mrs. Grace Buche of Joliet, as well as an aunt, Mrs. Mayme Sanz of Garden Grove, Calif. An elaborate buffet was served late in the evening highlighted by "His and Hers" wedding cakes.

BARBARA Jenko, 440 S. Prindle, celebrated her 11th birthday, Nov. 18, a little early, when her parents, the Frank Jenkos, took her and her brother, Dennis, to a performance of the Russian Circus on Nov. 10. Last weekend the celebration was resumed with a luncheon Saturday for Greta Hermanson, Margi Knutsen and Anitra Lindquist, a former neighbor, now of Plum Grove Countryside, who was an overnight guest. The weekend festivities reached their finale Sunday afternoon with the serving of cake and ice cream to the Lynn Lemons family of Prindle Avenue, neighbors and good friends.

Margi Knutsen's 10th birthday Nov. 12 was the occasion for a party given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Knutsen, 432 S. Prindle, that evening. Joining the other Knutsen girls, Kristi, Karen and Konni, in wishing Margi a happy birthday were their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Huber, an uncle, Jack Huber, and a family friend, Mrs. Loretta Silka, all of Chicago.

Equal Housing Is Topic for Parley

A regional institute concerned with equal housing opportunities will be conducted under auspices of the United Citizens Committee for Freedom of Residence (FOR) at Wagon Wheel Inn in Rockton, Ill., this Saturday.

The program will be an informal discussion on developing responsible voluntary action programs to achieve equal housing opportunities.

SPEAKERS FOR the all-day meeting include John Hageboeck, Rock Island - Moline; Hon. Abner Mikva, Chicago, and Rabbi Sholom Singer, Highland Park. There also will be workshops during the morning and afternoon sessions and a noon luncheon.

The institute is one of several regional meetings being held throughout Illinois by the citizens committee, whose goal is to obtain housing rights for all persons regardless of race, religion or national origin.

THESE INSTITUTES have been indorsed by such public officials as Secretary of State Charles Carpentier, Sen. Everett Dirksen and Gov. Otto Kerner.

In urging citizens to attend one of the institutes, Gov. Kerner said, "The meetings offer an opportunity for clear-thinking men of all beliefs to explore programs that will uphold the principle that all men are created equal and deserve equal opportunities, regardless of race, creed or color."

Additional information may be obtained by contacting the FOR office, 1514 Elmwood Ave., Evanston, 60201. Fee is $5.

New Group Shines Light on Health Careers for Youth

The critical shortage of professional people who care for the ill and injured in Illinois has brought into existence a new organization, the Health Careers Council of Illinois. Its objective is to insure trained health professionals of sufficient quantity and quality to staff the hospitals and other health-care institutions of our state.

These objectives and the program of the new organization were outlined last week by Leif Thorne-Thomsen, its executive director, at the 41st annual meeting of the Illinois Hospital Association in Chicago.

The HCCI was organized and developed by the Illinois Hospital Association as a statewide, not-for-profit organization, after a series of surveys it conducted revealed the acute shortage of health professionals.

The council is co-sponsored by the Illinois State Medical and Dental Societies; the Illinois Society of Hospital Pharmacists; the Illinois Stae Society of X-Ray Technicians; the Illinois Chapter, American Physical Therapy Association; the Illinois Occupational Therapy, Medical Technologists and Dietetic Associations; the Illinois Association of Medical Record Librarians; Chicago Area Chapter, National Association of Social Workers; the Illinois League for Nursing and the Illinois Nurses' Association; and the Woman's Auxiliary to the Illinois State Medical Society.

"ALL OF THESE organizations do recruiting and counseling for their individual professions and will continue to do so," Thorne-Thomsen said. "The HCCI will operate on a much broader basis than that implied by the word 'recruitment' and will represent the entire field of health careers. To meet its objective, the HCCI program will have to:

(1) attract more of the student talent in our state into health careers,

(2) create new programs in professional schools to meet the needs of our expanding population,

(3) fill the professional schools we now have—some of the schools in our state in most of these fields are unable to fill their classes,

(4) concern itself with matching students to appropriate careers,

(5) coordinate, correlate and consolidate information about scholarships and loan funds to make it more attractive for worthwhile students to undertake the long and expensive training in some of these fields,

(6) disseminate complete and accurate information about health careers to students, high school guidance counselors and the general public,

(7) coordinate the recruiting activities of the individual professional groups, and

(8) enlist the cooperation of schools, health-care institutions, medical and hospital auxiliaries and other public-service groups to carry out this program."

"LUTHERAN General Hospital is planning a program which will expose young people to health careers in a hospital environment," Robert W. Hampton, the hospital's personnel director told the assembled audience. "Hospitals neither can nor intend to rest and relax now that they have formed the HCCI through their state association. At Lutheran General the launching of the council just made us scratch our heads over how we would cooperate. I think we've found a few ways.

In the first place," he stated, "we are going to work with the council in presenting a Health Careers Day program to the combined student audience of the high schools in the area served by our hospital. As a follow-up we will work with the guidance counselors of the schools and offer 'Candy Stripe' appointments to fifteen-year-old students; and summer employment, with paid wages, to sixteen- and seventeen-year-old students. We will ask the guidance counselors to screen the students for interest and aptitude. Of course, the students will perform special tasks within the range of their abilities.

"We anticipate the program will expose them to a hospital environment and help them decide if one of the health careers is for them. We will then continue to help the members of these groups that select health careers, continuing vacation employment where we can, offering on-the-job training and attempting to integrate academic knowledge with practical experience."

ANOTHER UNIQUE plan which "actually demonstrates to students what the practice of medicine is really like" was outlined by Dr. Maynard I. Shapiro, who represents the state medical society on the council. The program which is conducted at Jackson Park Hospital, Chicago, according to Dr. Shapiro, its chairman, is "the only one of its kind in the country." It is designed for selected young people to interest them in medicine.

The students work in the hospital, and have the benefit of the teaching and association of practicing physicians. The project is a nine-weeks course. It starts with a week's orientation to hospital life. Then the groups settle into a five day (40 hour) week of in-hospital work, including a 90-minute weekly seminar. The young people receive the same rate of pay as other hospital employees.

Each week each trainee has an additional full day of preceptorship with a different physician. On this day the trainee follows the doctor through a typical day—sees his patients within the hospital, on house calls and during office hours. He observes the doctor in surgery and often accompanies him to his home for dinner and the evening.

Equal Housing Is Topic for Parley

A regional institute concerned with equal housing opportunities will be conducted under auspices of the United Citizens Committee for Freedom of Residence (FOR) at Wagon Wheel Inn in Rockton, Ill., this Saturday.

The program will be an informal discussion on developing responsible voluntary action programs to achieve equal housing opportunities.

SPEAKERS FOR the all-day meeting include John Hageboeck, Rock Island - Moline; Hon. Abner Mikva, Chicago, and Rabbi Sholom Singer, Highland Park. There also will be workshops during the morning and afternoon sessions and a noon luncheon.

The institute is one of several regional meetings being held throughout Illinois by the citizens committee, whose goal is to obtain housing rights for all persons regardless of race, religion or national origin.

THESE INSTITUTES have been indorsed by such public officials as Secretary of State Charles Carpentier, Sen. Everett Dirksen and Gov. Otto Kerner.

In urging citizens to attend one of the institutes, Gov. Kerner said, "The meetings offer an opportunity for clear-thinking men of all beliefs to explore programs that will uphold the principle that all men are created equal and deserve equal opportunities, regardless of race, creed or color."

Additional information may be obtained by contacting the FOR office, 1514 Elmwood Ave., Evanston, 60201. Fee is $5.

New Group Shines Light on Health Careers for Youth

The critical shortage of professional people who care for the ill and injured in Illinois has brought into existence a new organization, the Health Careers Council of Illinois. Its objective is to insure trained health professionals of sufficient quantity and quality to staff the hospitals and other health-care institutions of our state.

These objectives and the program of the new organization were outlined last week by Leif Thorne-Thomsen, its executive director, at the 41st annual meeting of the Illinois Hospital Association in Chicago.

The HCCI was organized and developed by the Illinois Hospital Association as a statewide, not-for-profit organization, after a series of surveys it conducted revealed the acute shortage of health professionals.

The council is co-sponsored by the Illinois State Medical and Dental Societies; the Illinois Society of Hospital Pharmacists; the Illinois Stae Society of X-Ray Technicians; the Illinois Chapter, American Physical Therapy Association; the Illinois Occupational Therapy, Medical Technologists and Dietetic Associations; the Illinois Association of Medical Record Librarians; Chicago Area Chapter, National Association of Social Workers; the Illinois League for Nursing and the Illinois Nurses' Association; and the Woman's Auxiliary to the Illinois State Medical Society.

"ALL OF THESE organizations do recruiting and counseling for their individual professions and will continue to do so," Thorne-Thomsen said. "The HCCI will operate on a much broader basis than that implied by the word 'recruitment' and will represent the entire field of health careers. To meet its objective, the HCCI program will have to:

(1) attract more of the student talent in our state into health careers,

(2) create new programs in professional schools to meet the needs of our expanding population,

(3) fill the professional schools we now have—some of the schools in our state in most of these fields are unable to fill their classes,

(4) concern itself with matching students to appropriate careers,

(5) coordinate, correlate and consolidate information about scholarships and loan funds to make it more attractive for worthwhile students to undertake the long and expensive training in some of these fields,

(6) disseminate complete and accurate information about health careers to students, high school guidance counselors and the general public,

(7) coordinate the recruiting activities of the individual professional groups, and

(8) enlist the cooperation of schools, health-care institutions, medical and hospital auxiliaries and other public-service groups to carry out this program."

"LUTHERAN General Hospital is planning a program which will expose young people to health careers in a hospital environment," Robert W. Hampton, the hospital's personnel director told the assembled audience. "Hospitals neither can nor intend to rest and relax now that they have formed the HCCI through their state association. At Lutheran General the launching of the council just made us scratch our heads over how we would cooperate. I think we've found a few ways.

In the first place," he stated, "we are going to work with the council in presenting a Health Careers Day program to the combined student audience of the high schools in the area served by our hospital. As a follow-up we will work with the guidance counselors of the schools and offer 'Candy Stripe' appointments to fifteen-year-old students; and summer employment, with paid wages, to sixteen- and seventeen-year-old students. We will ask the guidance counselors to screen the students for interest and aptitude. Of course, the students will perform special tasks within the range of their abilities.

"We anticipate the program will expose them to a hospital environment and help them decide if one of the health careers is for them. We will then continue to help the members of these groups that select health careers, continuing vacation employment where we can, offering on-the-job training and attempting to integrate academic knowledge with practical experience."

Liberal Arts Education Is Key to Better Jobs

by SHERWOOD ROSS
(Fourth of a Series)

When 150,000 Negro pupils boycotted the Chicago public schools recently, the nation was put on notice that their parents recognize fully the importance of a sound education.

Mothers who kept their children out of class on "Freedom Day," did so in protest of Jim Crow educational conditions. Chicago's schools appear to be as racially segregated as those in Dixie.

What kind of tutoring can a child get from uncertified and substitute teachers day after day, in overcrowded classrooms, short of books, laboratories, and other teaching materials?

The fantatic number of dropouts in Chicago—reported to be about 18,000 a year—is a stunning indictment of the public school system's failure to stimulate pupils with enrichment programs. The biggest enrichment program is integration. The U.S. Supreme Court made this point in 1954, when it declared that segregated education is inherently unequal.

Minority children desperately need enrichment programs. They need the finest educations, not the poorest, to make up for hundreds of years of academic poverty.

According to Joseph P. Lyford, former staff director of New York's Public Education Assn., the public schools must give the child from an underprivileged background a massive dose of quality education. Writing in a recent edition of the Saturday Review, he says: "Our emphasis on vocational training programs in the high schools themselves should not be increased; if anything, it should be de-emphasized in order to concentrate much more heavily on the general intellectual development of the child and on his reading, writing and mathematical skills. The miserable failure of so many job training programs out of school can be directly traced to the trainees' inability to read and write."

Ring up a score for Mr. Lyford. Too many times training programs educate young persons for jobs that are shrinking or which plain do not exist. But a child who learns how to read, write, spell and absorb all the math and scientific courses available is one headed for a bright horizon in industry or the professions.

Most important, the child who can understand philosophy and physics, math and literature and language, will have been trained in mental flexibility and curiosity. If he gets knocked out of one job by automation, he will be able to learn a new position rapidly because, basically, he knows how to think for himself, and how to learn for himself.

Training is important. Retraining—for the man who has been bounced by automation—is important. But a basic liberal arts education, in high school and college, is the key to the better jobs.

The public school systems in our large cities, which get away with murder in the manner in which they treat Negro pupils, must be made to do a better job.

Their failure to teach fundamental courses well enough to prevent the tragedy and waste of drop-outs was described ably by Thomas J. Watson, chairman of the board of International Business Machines, who said:

"The U.S. today has 800,000 teenagers out of school and out of work—a number approximately equal to the population of San Francisco. Many of these are Negroes, who, in addition to youth and lack of skill, have the further burden of racial discrimination to bear in their search for work—a burden which helps make their rate of joblessness double the national average.

"To continue this kind of discrimination is eventually to invite violence, such as we have witnessed in Birmingham and Nashville in recent weeks, and not only in the cities of the South, but in the slums of the North."

Mr. Watson concluded, "If present trends continue, by 1970 the U.S. will have in its cities more than a million and one-half young people untrained, unemployed and frustrated to the point of danger. This fact constitutes an indictment of our society—we have somehow failed in our educational responsibilities." (A-14

Goldwater to Talk At Lincoln Dinner

U.S. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Arizona, will be guest speaker at the $100-a-plate annual Lincoln Day dinner of the United Republican Fund of Illinois, Feb. 8, at the International Amphitheater, Chicago.

Lester G. Porter, president of Borg-Warner Corp. will be general dinner chairman.

In making these announcements, Fred M. Gillies, Fund president, said the dinner assumes uusual significance because of the 1964 elections when Illinois citizens must vote for a President and Congress, governor, and legislature, and other important state, county, and local offices.

"As a matter of fact," said Gillies, "the dinner will kick off the 1964 campaign in Illinois, and if it is the success we hope, it should provide us with an important part of the funds needed for the campaign." (A14

Ask Cancer Warning On Cigarette Packs

by CLAUDE BACHAND
United Press International

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI) — The Illinois division of the American Cancer Society, supported by six other organizations, asked Tuesday that all packages of cigarettes sold in Illinois bear warning labels.

A committee representing the groups called upon Joseph J. Healey, director of the division of narcotics control of the Department of Public Safety, and presented evidence to support its request.

The evidence was both medical and legal. Medically, "We feel we have conclusive proof that there is a link between cigarette smoking and cancer deaths," said Dr. Warren H. Cole, head of the department of surgery at the University of Illinois College of Medicine in Chicago.

Legally, the committee pointed to an Illinois statute on the misbranding of drugs. The committee said it felt that under the statute tobacco would be considered a drug and must bear a warning as being a danger to health.

HEALEY OF the narcotics division said, "We don't know about this yet. We'll have to check the medical books because we've never considered tobacco a drug before."

Healey said he would take the matter up with Public Safety Director Joseph E. Ragen, who he said would "probably consult with the attorney general on this."

After the meeting with Healey, the committee members said they were "encouraged with the conference."

Cole said that if the state departments took no action on the request of the cancer committee, "We may take this to the courts."

HE POINTED out that in cases in other states, courts have held that cigarette smoking has been the cause of two deaths by cancer. He said that tobacco is a drug and he felt that under Illinois statutes the courts would rule so.

Dr. Charles L. Leonard of Rockford was among the committeemen who today supported the request of the cancer society. Leonard heads the governor's Advisory Committee on Cancer Control, and he said the committee recommended the warning labels be required on cigarettes.

Among the members of the governor's advisory committee is Dr. Franklin D. Yoder, director of public health.

ALSO SUPPORTING the cancer society in its campaign are the American College of Chest Physicians, which today was represented at the conference by Dr. W. E. Adams, chairman of the department of surgery at the University of Chicago; the Illinois Tuberculosis Association, the Chicago Institute of Medicine, the Illinois Heart Association and the Chicago Heart Association.

Cole said the seven associations had about one-half million members and workers in Illinois. (A-14

Says Tax Protests Must Be Public

Taxpayer protests to proposed assessments of state sales and use taxes will henceforth be heard in open hearing.

Harry L. Hulman, Illinois director of revenue, recently announced that such hearings would be made public because of a ruling by Atty. Gen. William G. Clark that they fall under the law relating to public meetings of public agencies.

SINCE enactment of the Revenue Act in 1933 and under every subsequent act, Hulman said, taxpayer protest hearings have been confidential. Assurance that information would be held confidential was necessary to obtain evidence, he explained.

Under the new ruling, protest hearings must be open to the public, but department records of past hearings will remain confidential, Hulman said.

The revenue director said that in all future hearings, the hearing officer will first announce it will be conducted as a public hearing. Unless the taxpayer objects, the hearing will begin. However, copies of federal income tax returns produced at such hearings will not be open to public inspection, he said.

IF A TAXPAYER wishes to press his objection that a public hearing violates his constitutional safeguard against unreasonable search and seizure, it will be up to him to do so in the courts, Hulman said.

Assessments are made, Hulman explained, when auditors and investigators believe additional tax is owed the state by the taxpayer. Hearings are held when the taxpayer disagrees with the proposed assessment.

If the taxpayer still is dissatisfied with the final assessment, he may take his case to court where the record of the protest hearing will be reviewed, Hulman said. (A-14

The miserable failure of so many job training programs out of school can be directly traced to the trainees' inability to read and write."

Ring up a score for Mr. Lyford. Too many times training programs educate young persons for jobs that are shrinking or which plain do not exist. But a child who learns how to read, write, spell and absorb all the math and scientific courses available is one headed for a bright horizon in industry or the professions.

Most important, the child who can understand philosophy and physics, math and literature and language, will have been trained in mental flexibility and curiosity. If he gets knocked out of one job by automation, he will be able to learn a new position rapidly because, basically, he knows how to think for himself, and how to learn for himself.

Training is important. Retraining—for the man who has been bounced by automation—is important. But a basic liberal arts education, in high school and college, is the key to the better jobs.

The public school systems in our large cities, which get away with murder in the manner in which they treat Negro pupils, must be made to do a better job.

Their failure to teach fundamental courses well enough to prevent the tragedy and waste of drop-outs was described ably by Thomas J. Watson, chairman of the board of International Business Machines, who said:

"The U.S. today has 800,000 teenagers out of school and out of work—a number approximately equal to the population of San Francisco. Many of these are Negroes, who, in addition to youth and lack of skill, have the further burden of racial discrimination to bear in their search for work—a burden which helps make their rate of joblessness double the national average.

"To continue this kind of discrimination is eventually to invite violence, such as we have witnessed in Birmingham and Nashville in recent weeks, and not only in the cities of the South, but in the slums of the North."

Mr. Watson concluded, "If present trends continue, by 1970 the U.S. will have in its cities more than a million and one-half young people untrained, unemployed and frustrated to the point of danger. This fact constitutes an indictment of our society—we have somehow failed in our educational responsibilities." (A-14

U.S. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Arizona, will be guest speaker at the $100-a-plate annual Lincoln Day dinner of the United Republican Fund of Illinois, Feb. 8, at the International Amphitheater, Chicago.

Lester G. Porter, president of Borg-Warner Corp. will be general dinner chairman.

In making these announcements, Fred M. Gillies, Fund president, said the dinner assumes uusual significance because of the 1964 elections when Illinois citizens must vote for a President and Congress, governor, and legislature, and other important state, county, and local offices.

"As a matter of fact," said Gillies, "the dinner will kick off the 1964 campaign in Illinois, and if it is the success we hope, it should provide us with an important part of the funds needed for the campaign." (A14

Ask Cancer Warning On Cigarette Packs

by CLAUDE BACHAND
United Press International

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI) — The Illinois division of the American Cancer Society, supported by six other organizations, asked Tuesday that all packages of cigarettes sold in Illinois bear warning labels.

A committee representing the groups called upon Joseph J. Healey, director of the division of narcotics control of the Department of Public Safety, and presented evidence to support its request.

The evidence was both medical and legal. Medically, "We feel we have conclusive proof that there is a link between cigarette smoking and cancer deaths," said Dr. Warren H. Cole, head of the department of surgery at the University of Illinois College of Medicine in Chicago.

Legally, the committee pointed to an Illinois statute on the misbranding of drugs. The committee said it felt that under the statute tobacco would be considered a drug and must bear a warning as being a danger to health.

HEALEY OF the narcotics division said, "We don't know about this yet. We'll have to check the medical books because we've never considered tobacco a drug before."

Healey said he would take the matter up with Public Safety Director Joseph E. Ragen, who he said would "probably consult with the attorney general on this."

After the meeting with Healey, the committee members said they were "encouraged with the conference."

Cole said that if the state departments took no action on the request of the cancer committee, "We may take this to the courts."

HE POINTED out that in cases in other states, courts have held that cigarette smoking has been the cause of two deaths by cancer. He said that tobacco is a drug and he felt that under Illinois statutes the courts would rule so.

Dr. Charles L. Leonard of Rockford was among the committeemen who today supported the request of the cancer society. Leonard heads the governor's Advisory Committee on Cancer Control, and he said the committee recommended the warning labels be required on cigarettes.

Among the members of the governor's advisory committee is Dr. Franklin D. Yoder, director of public health.

ALSO SUPPORTING the cancer society in its campaign are the American College of Chest Physicians, which today was represented at the conference by Dr. W. E. Adams, chairman of the department of surgery at the University of Chicago; the Illinois Tuberculosis Association, the Chicago Institute of Medicine, the Illinois Heart Association and the Chicago Heart Association.

Cole said the seven associations had about one-half million members and workers in Illinois. (A-14

Says Tax Protests Must Be Public

Taxpayer protests to proposed assessments of state sales and use taxes will henceforth be heard in open hearing.

Harry L. Hulman, Illinois director of revenue, recently announced that such hearings would be made public because of a ruling by Atty. Gen. William G. Clark that they fall under the law relating to public meetings of public agencies.

SINCE enactment of the Revenue Act in 1933 and under every subsequent act, Hulman said, taxpayer protest hearings have been confidential. Assurance that information would be held confidential was necessary to obtain evidence, he explained.

Under the new ruling, protest hearings must be open to the public, but department records of past hearings will remain confidential, Hulman said.

The revenue director said that in all future hearings, the hearing officer will first announce it will be conducted as a public hearing. Unless the taxpayer objects, the hearing will begin. However, copies of federal income tax returns produced at such hearings will not be open to public inspection, he said.

IF A TAXPAYER wishes to press his objection that a public hearing violates his constitutional safeguard against unreasonable search and seizure, it will be up to him to do so in the courts, Hulman said.

Assessments are made, Hulman explained, when auditors and investigators believe additional tax is owed the state by the taxpayer. Hearings are held when the taxpayer disagrees with the proposed assessment.

If the taxpayer still is dissatisfied with the final assessment, he may take his case to court where the record of the protest hearing will be reviewed, Hulman said. (A-14

Says High IQs Needed in Blue Collar Jobs

Teacher Explains Vocational Effort

Staff Editor

"A mechanic has a chance to kill me three or four times a month, while a doctor has a chance to kill me only about once a year," said C. Derrell Darling, coordinator of vocational education at Arlington High School.

Darling made the statement in support of his theory that students with high intelligence quotients are needed as badly in service areas, such as auto mechanics, as they are in professional areas like medicine.

"I don't think it is a waste of talent to channel people with high IQ's into blue collar jobs," he said.

Darling pointed out that a poorly machined bolt at Cape Canaveral may be the reason for failure in some areas of space technology. He cited that as an additional example of why intelligent people are needed as badly in service fields as professional.

This was in support of the special Vocational Education program at the three high schools in District 214. A total of 82 students are enrolled in the district's program, with 21 at Prospect High School; 25 at Arlington High School and 36 at Forest View School.

A STUDENT enrolled in the program, who graduates from an accredited high school, as these three are, is eligible to enter college. Darling said a vocational education graduate is subjected to no more college entrance examinations than any other student.

The coordinator admitted that students sometimes apply for the course because of laziness or because they feel they would rather build hot-rods than take out gall bladders.

Statewide success of students who participated in the program is 86 per cent, while the local success ratio is 75 per cent. Darling said "Uncle Sam takes a good percentage into his service."

Although the course is listed in the high school handbook, the program is not pushed onto students.

DARLING SAID the students must find out about the program through advertising and then ask their counselor for an application form. He said the form is similar to that used by businesses in hiring workers.

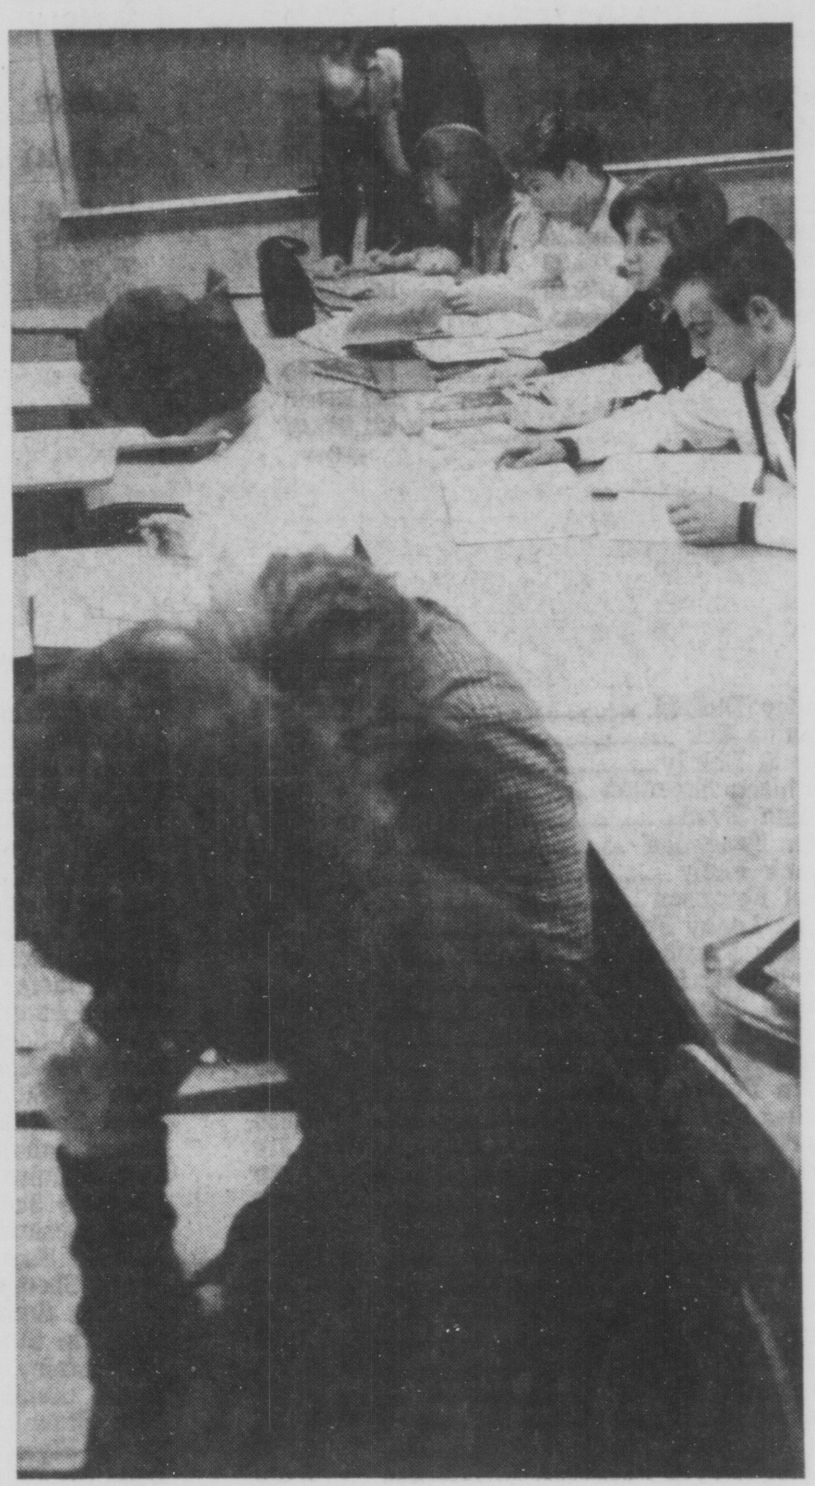
After the application is completed and signed by the student's parents, it is given to Darling for processing and screening.

The application contains two choices. In other words the student must designate his first and second job choice. Part of the screening includes individual tests as to aptitude for his choices.

For example, if a student designates auto mechanics first, and refrigeration work second, he is given an aptitude test to determine if he is fitted to be a mechanic. If he passes the exam a job is found for him and his training begins.

IF HE FAILS tests for auto mechanics and refrigeration, then he is asked for his next two choices, and so forth.

THE LEARNING SESSION—Bill Johann, a student-participant in the vocational educational program at Arlington High School, plies his trade at Winkleman's Bike Shop during the learning portion of his day. The students divide their day between classroom studies and on-the-job training.



THE STUDY SESSION—Students in a special vocational education class at Arlington High School pursue the learning portion of their studies prior to spending the rest of their day at their respective businesses. These students and several others in Forest View and Prospect high schools, are participating in a program which allows them to learn while they earn.

The training program in-pay.
cludes a half-day school study The school portion of the day and on-the-job training withis divided between prescribed high school courses and to a study of the related and technical information of the occupation for which he is being trained on the job.

Darling said that although there is a wide variety of jobs awaiting applicants, including washer and dryer repair, electrical appliance work and air conditioning work for example, the reaction to the program by businessmen is "not what it should be."

HE SAID HE and the other coordinator, Avon Reeves at Forest View, find themselves "selling" the program to the businessmen. He said the fact that businessmen are afraid of losing the people after their training period is possibly the biggest barrier.

The program is open for students of both sexes. The girls seem to be primarily interested in becoming beauticians and dental assistants, Darling said.

Some of the other jobs available for girls include lab technicians and operators with the telephone company.

Darling reiterated his opinion that society operates under a false philosophy, that if a student can't handle life academically then he should be trained to work with his hands.

HE SAID TRADES are almost dying because of this philosophy which pushes low IQ individuals into the trades. He said a person of low IQ can become a competent mechanic through experience, but can make a lot of mistakes while acquiring the experience that can lead to loss of life, or other tragedies.

Some of the advantages of the program are:

It trains a student for a specific trade; permits a student to learn while in high school as well as earn a minimum wage of $1 per hour; provides training in theory and practice; offers an organized plan of on the job training and the student receives his regular diploma upon graduation from high school.

A student cannot enter the program until his junior year, and participation in the program does not extend the time in high school. He still graduates after four years. (B9

3 Catholics Head Birth Control Study

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI) — Three Roman Catholics were elected Tuesday as officers of the new Illinois commission to study a state-financed birth control program.

Named as chairman of the commission was Sen. Morgan Finley, D-Chicago, sponsor of legislation to outlaw the birth control program put into effect early this year by the state public aid commission. Rep. Robert Austin, R-East Moline, was named vice chairman and Rep. Paul Elward, D-Chicago, was selected as secretary.

The group decided to hold its next meeting Dec. 11 in Chicago. At that time it will call as its first two witnesses state public aid director Harold O. Swank and Cook County public aid director Raymond Hilliard.

FINLEY said after the meeting he had not been aware that all three of the officers selected today were Roman Catholics and he said at the group's next meeting he would ask if the members wanted to reconsider their choices.

Catholic church leaders actively opposed the birth control policy established by the old IPAC. After the commission to study the issue was formed, the public aid department, which succeeded the IPAC, restricted its program of free birth control information and devices to married women living with their husbands.

The birth control commission is to report back to the 74th General Assembly in 1965.

Baptists Exceed Million Mark In Fund Drive

A recent check for $6,273.90 pushed the capital funds drive of the Baptist General Conferenc over the $1,000,000 mark, according to Robert A. Featherstone, director of stewardship.

The check was from the largest church in the confernce, First Baptist Church of Lakewood, Calif. With this gift, about one third of the total amount pledged has been paid, Featherstone said.

The fund drive, called Living Investment Forward Thrust (LIFT), is a missionary campaign for capital expansion above basic budget needs, Featherstone explained. Chief recipient is Bethel College and Seminary, St. Paul, Minn., which will move to a new campus next spring.

Frank Dietz, Wilmette, is chairman of LIFT. (A14

Love of Neighbor

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself"
—Leviticus 19:18

Obedience to the second commandment is not always easy. Sometimes our neighbor offends. He may be difficult. He may be uncooperative in community affairs. He may oppose us, politically, or in some other manner. How can we feel the same regard for him that we feel for ourselves—when he is so different?

Our neighbor is "different" because he is an individual. He is a human being—with human strength and human weaknesses. Because we, too, are human beings, sometimes we tend to look for faults in our neighbor at the same time we ignore our own shortcomings.

We can respect our neighbor, even though we cannot always agree with him. We can obey the second commandment by observing the "golden rule."

As Christians, we can remember that Christ died, not filled with bitterness, but with concern for both friends and persecutors.

Love of Neighbor

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself"
—Leviticus 19:18

Obedience to the second commandment is not always easy. Sometimes our neighbor offends. He may be difficult. He may be uncooperative in community affairs. He may oppose us, politically, or in some other manner. How can we feel the same regard for him that we feel for ourselves—when he is so different?

Our neighbor is "different" because he is an individual. He is a human being—with human strength and human weaknesses. Because we, too, are human beings, sometimes we tend to look for faults in our neighbor at the same time we ignore our own shortcomings.

We can respect our neighbor, even though we cannot always agree with him. We can obey the second commandment by observing the "golden rule."

As Christians, we can remember that Christ died, not filled with bitterness, but with concern for both friends and persecutors.

The Way We See It

State Board Key To Clean Streams

Public attention this month was dramatically directed to the perils of stream pollution by the dumping of cyanide into Kickapoo Creek in downstate Illinois.

A few days later, Atty. Gen. William G. Clark announced he had launched a campaign to end pollution of Illinois streams. "The pollution of Illinois streams has reached the point where drastic action must be considered to stop it," Clark said. "Day after day, reports of pollution by this or that corporation or city reach the Sanitary Water Board."

Clark announced a new technique which he predicted would be effective: making offenders post bond to guarantee they will end pollution by an agreed-upon date.

Most of the cases Clark seemed to be referring to are the simplest and crudest types of pollution — such as dumping industrial chemicals into streams. There are also more subtle and insidious types of stream pollution. Unfortunately, these types seem to be the big problem in the Des Plaines River and Salt Creek, the streams that flow through much of the northwest suburban area.

Among these insidious sources of pollution are:

—Sewage treatment plants which are inadequate to meet the demands made upon them.

—The presence in many communities of combined sanitary and storm sewers.

—The great number of septic tanks.

—Chemical pollution from agricultural fertilizers and pesticides which reaches the streams via farm tiles.

And the bad effects of all this pollution are compounded when we have an extended dry spell, such as we have had this fall, causing stream levels to decline until their flow is just a trickle.

It is quite apparent that putting an end to all this pollution is far more complicated than compelling a factory to plug up a pipe which is dumping chemical wastes into a river. It will take time and effort to correct all the bad conditions.

Fortunately, public opinion is becoming aroused on matters affecting the environment. For example, Cook County recently adopted its first air pollution law. Perhaps stream pollution is no worse than it was a decade or two ago; the difference may be that the public is beginning to protest.

Public concern is the chief lever which will renovate and protect our streams.

There is one situation which needs straightening out if a clean streams program in the metropolitan area is to have maximum effect.

At present, the Metropolitan Sanitary District area is not under the jurisdiction of the State Sanitary Water Board in matters of pollution.

Thus, the Des Plaines River in Lake County is under the authority of the Sanitary Water Board, when the river enters Cook County the Metropolitan Sanitary District has authority, and when it flows into DuPage County, the Sanitary Water Board is in charge again.

Obviously, even with the best of intentions by both agencies, such a set-up hinders the most effective solutions to the problem. The Sanitary Water Board should be given jurisdiction over all the streams in the state.

That would be the essential first step toward cleaner streams.

Scouting Keeps Pace

The five operating districts of the Northwest Suburban Boy Scout Council this month are holding their annual Recognition Dinners, a time to publicly honor those volunteer leaders who have contributed to the growth of the Scouting movement.

Something else has been added to the dinners this year, however. The explosive population growth of northwest suburbs has similarly affected the local Scout council, and the present five districts are being expanded to seven. To implement the enlarged program, two additional professional Scout executives have been employed by the council, bringing its staff to 10 persons.

Boy Scouts came to northwest suburbs in December, 1919 — only nine years after establishment of the movement in the United States. This was Troop 1, still operating at the Methodist Church in Park Ridge.

The council itself was established in 1926; today it serves more than 35 area communities, extending the Scout program to 12,500 boys between the ages of 8 and 16. More than 3,800 adults are presently volunteering their services in the local council.

As the northwest area becomes increasingly urbanized, our suburbs can be grateful for such a strong organization to serve the needs of our youth. In the field of character building and leadership training, it is doubtful if the Boy Scouts have any peer. Aside from the churches and synagogues, few organizations can equal Scouting's achievement in providing young men with a high moral code as expressed in the Scout Oath and the 12 points of the Scout Law.

We find it both refreshing and reassuring to see the Boy Scouts honor the symbols of our national pride and purpose. Certainly it is no accident that all but two of our original 16 astronauts were Boy Scouts during their formative years.

Scouting is a dynamic, expanding movement in northwest suburbs. Unfortunately, however, it is reaching only a third of our boys. More volunteer leaders, more organized packs, troops, and posts are needed if we are to extend the advantages of Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, and Explorers in the northwest area.

We congratulate the busy volunteers of the Scout movement; we are confident we express the gratitude of the entire area community in paying recognition to this unselfish service.

The Value of Reading

by COLLEEN AMUNDSON
Schaumburg Township Librarian

The curious child asks, "How does fog come?" The educated parent answers, "Fog comes on a mixture of warm air that has much moisture in it and cool air beneath it." The intelligent parent answers:

" 'The fog comes on little cat feet.
It sits looking over harbor and city
On silent haunches and then moves on.' "

(After answering, this parent silently thanks Carl Sandburg.)

AMUNDSON

The latter answerer understands that the questioner sees all reality in terms of his measured world, thus the awkward situation of a small child asking a big question has been answered adequately. He further understands while factual information is necessary to learn, creative literature, or that body of words existing because an imagination produced, is necessary to live.

Living, as opposed to existing, depends upon an awareness, an experiencing of life. An individual can know, can understand the people, things, siutations of life through actual experience, necessarily limited because of the human condition, or through vicarious experience, the reporting of another. Into this latter category falls creative literature. The gas lights harboring a cluster of carolers before frost-paned windows charm many Christmas card receivers. Without Dickens, the comfortable image might be lost. The splendor of ancient Rome, yes, the beauty of Cleopatra, the mystery of a Mogul court — because of imagination, these live.

A tragic Anna Karenina, an aspiring Dick Whittington, the typical Bennett family — within each the reader sees a bit of himself and perhaps is better for it. If maturity is partially a result of experience, perhaps pre-living some of these experiences will make maturity come more quickly; to the young son who now drives the family car, or the little sister who has blossomed into a date-able young lady, maturity is an attractive characteristic to possess.

The "factualist," (as opposed to the "imaginer") not to be undaunted, asks "So what?" or "I'm getting along aren't I" or "Ours is a scientific world, so when in Rome . . ." The narrowness of the first two makes a reply a waste. The last thought is perhaps the most prevalent — science, first and foremost. No civilization, however, can progress without imagination.

Able technicians can keep a civilization functioning adequately, perhaps handsomely, but without the gift of absorbing a fact, viewing it through imagination, then seeing it differently, no technician can invent tomorrow's improvements. It is no waste for the budding scientist to spend some time reading. Contrary to popular thought, hard science courses are not the epitome of intellectual thinking.

According to tests conducted by psychologist Liam Hudson of Cambridge University, (as reported in Time) the theory that " 'hard' sciences [are] an automatic proof of intellectual superiority 'is false' if the criterion is a capacity for imaginative thinking," and, according to Webster, it should be.

Results of the test found this imaginative thinking to be lurking beneath history and English literature exteriors! If this capacity for imaginative thinking is a necessity for a progressive civilization, the humanities, hence, creative literature, has scored a quantative point worthy of a "factualist's" vote! FURTHER, according to Hudson, "Young scientists 'tend to be less intellectually flexible than young arts specialists, and more restricted emotionally.' "

Ah! the emotions! Machines can compute, machines can dig ditches, but machines and army sergeants (so I'm told) have no emotions; only man, wonderful, limited, human man, can feel. How sad to smell burning leaves and think only of dry, still weather-laws! How materialistic to view a December family addition first as an income tax deduction! How wasteful to see a family-tied mother stagnate!

If creative literature offers no more than an escape, that it does, but if depths of compassion, heated anger, or wonder are sought, creative literature has them.

For one who lacks personality, universality, vocabulary or dept (as did Alan Shepherd when he said of outer space according to Newsweek, "What a beautiful view," of the lady friend who interrupted a conversation on "the time element of segregation" with "I remember when I was in school . . . ," or the budding executive who could only smile blankly at the reference, "Wat Tyler's campaign was more successful than this will ever be,"), a "broadened" scope gained from reading creative literature could benefit. To see analagously or to experience deeply is to imagine, to mature, to progress, to feel, to live.

"To make a prairie it takes a clover and one bee—
And revery.
The revery alone will do
If bees are few."
Emily Dickinson.

Says Poverty Will Not Be Tolerated

MADISON, WIS., (UPI)— While man in the past has accepted poverty and suffering, "people today no longer consider it tolerable," one of the nation's top economists said during a debate at the University of Wisconsin.

Leon Keyserling, top economic adviser to Pres. Harry Truman and presently working with the Kennedy Administration, discussed economic issues with Milton Friedman from the University of Chicago.

KEYSERLING said the world is in the midst of a great struggle to end poverty and suffering on the face of the earth. 'There is a new spirit in the West which sees the need for responsible free enterprise working with responsible free government as manifested in Scandinavia, France and Germany," he said.

Nations will make the greatest progress, Keyserling said, "when working under leadership supplied by the government," not through voluntary munificence of corporations.

Opposing this view, Prof. Friedman said the government has failed in nearly all of its economic planning. He cited the farm surplus program, calling it a "free lunch program for mice."

"CONCENTRATED interests are able to gain advantages at the expense of taxpayers," he said, contending "capitalism is the only system which keeps down the power of the capitalists."

It can not be done through governmental regulatory agencies, he said.

Friedman claimed progress is most dramatic in places where there is less dependence on central planning. He cited Hong Kong and Malaya and contrasted their relative prosperity to Indonesia and India where he said much central planning is used.

Keyserling conceded that some government programs were not perfect, but maintained that "in the balance, people are better off" with the government programs.

Claims Press Hinders U.S. Foreign Policy

MADISON, WIS., (UPI) — A University of Wisconsin specialist in international relations believes that international news confereage by the nation's press is a barrier to the development of a coherent U.S. foreign policy.

Prof. Bernard Cohen of the UW political science department, in his new book "The Press and Foreign Policy," claims that the nation's papers, by giving prominence to one dramatic international development, often force top state department policy makers to concentrate their attention on that issue and put aside most other problems temporarily.

"The press is significantly more than a purveyor of information and opinion," said Cohen. "It may not be successful much of the time in telling people what to think, but it is stunningly successful in telling its readers what to think about."

NEWS AIMED to provide for the small group of readers that care about foreign news would be a substantial benefit to policy planners, according to Cohen.

This would enable policy planners in providing information and in keeping various aspects of important international issues in somewhat of a balance in the nation's press, and help minimize sudden flareups of public interest in one foreign occurrence that force the State Department to make special efforts to meet them.

However Cohen did not place all of the blame on the press. Perhaps equally to blame, said Cohen, are State Department efforts to keep news from the press. At times, this forces reporters to turn to the dramatic and obvious for their stories.

Candidates Ready

Double Talk For Voters

by BOB CUMMINS
Associate Editor

For the next year, a good part of the population will be engaged in a battle of wits.

On the attack will be the candidates for political office. Defending themselves as best they can will be the uncommitted voters.

The weapons of the candidates will be their speeches, their platform planks, and their replies to questions on television programs.

Although their speeches and pamphlets will be titiled "What I Believe" or "I Take My Stand" these will seldom, if ever, be accurate titles.

CUMMINS

In almost every case the accurate title would be "What I Think I Should Say in Order to Get the Most Votes."

THE TECHNIQUE of drafting pamphlets, speeches and statements on this theme has advanced remarkably in recent years.

In the old unsophisticated days I suppose a candidate could woo votes simply by saying opposite things in different places. If Brown County was full of bird lovers he could say, "In order to preserve the traditional American bird-loving way of life, it is imperative that the next legislature enact a law to bell cats."

Then he could go to Blue County at the other end of the state, which was full of cat lovers, and declare, "The belling of cats would be an intolerable infringement on their personal liberty entirely out of keeping with traditional American concepts and I will vote against it."

BUT TODAY communications are so efficient that voters would quickly be informed of such duplicity. So new techniques have had to be developed.

A real breakthrough in solving this problem was the discovery that a candidate must never say how he will vote. But he must give the impression to his listeners, both cat lovers and bird lovers, that he will vote the way they want him to.

One way to achieve this is to sing the praises of birds when speaking in Brown County. The candidate should speak lyrically of the beauty of the plumage of birds and the inspiration man derives from listening to their songs. He may also note their economic value in controlling crop-destroying insects. But he must never, never say he will vote to bell cats.

NATURALLY, when speaking in Blue County, the candidate will praise cats. He will note the companionship they give and their gentility. He may also cite their economic value in controlling grain-eating mice and rats. But he must never, never say he will vote against belling cats.

Now, if the candidate wants to hit a little harder, he can include a criticism of cats when speaking in Brown County and a derisive reference or two to birds when talking in Blue County.

All this is quite simple. Now, what does a candidate do when he takes the rostrum in Green County before a huge audience of uncommitted voters evenly divided between bird-lovers and cat-lovers?

IN THE past, many candidates have cracked up in this situation, but techniques have been developed to help them overcome the difficulty. There are two chief techniques.

One is the filibuster technique. The candidate will talk for about five minutes on the merits of cats, then about five minutes on the merits of birds, then five minutes more on the merits of persons who love cats, then five minutes on the sterling character of persons who love birds. About this time he will sense that both wings of his audience have become quite bored with the subject and, without having given an answer to the question, he will then turn to the next one.

The second technique is a little more polished. It is to advocate a study commission. The candidate will pledge himself to appoint a blue ribbon commission composed of such persons as Audubon and cat society people, as well as businessmen, educators, clergymen, and perhaps even a labor leader to investigate the cat belling proposal. How can you blame a man for wanting to get all the facts?

But this double talk doesn't change things greatly. After all, won't most persons make up their minds by the way the different candidates smile on television?

Leon Keyserling, top economic adviser to Pres. Harry Truman and presently working with the Kennedy Administration, discussed economic issues with Milton Friedman from the University of Chicago.

KEYSERLING said the world is in the midst of a great struggle to end poverty and suffering on the face of the earth. 'There is a new spirit in the West which sees the need for responsible free enterprise working with responsible free government as manifested in Scandinavia, France and Germany," he said.

Nations will make the greatest progress, Keyserling said, "when working under leadership supplied by the government," not through voluntary munificence of corporations.

Opposing this view, Prof. Friedman said the government has failed in nearly all of its economic planning. He cited the farm surplus program, calling it a "free lunch program for mice."

"CONCENTRATED interests are able to gain advantages at the expense of taxpayers," he said, contending "capitalism is the only system which keeps down the power of the capitalists."

It can not be done through governmental regulatory agencies, he said.

Friedman claimed progress is most dramatic in places where there is less dependence on central planning. He cited Hong Kong and Malaya and contrasted their relative prosperity to Indonesia and India where he said much central planning is used.

Keyserling conceded that some government programs were not perfect, but maintained that "in the balance, people are better off" with the government programs.

Claims Press Hinders U.S. Foreign Policy

MADISON, WIS., (UPI) — A University of Wisconsin specialist in international relations believes that international news confereage by the nation's press is a barrier to the development of a coherent U.S. foreign policy.

Prof. Bernard Cohen of the UW political science department, in his new book "The Press and Foreign Policy," claims that the nation's papers, by giving prominence to one dramatic international development, often force top state department policy makers to concentrate their attention on that issue and put aside most other problems temporarily.

"The press is significantly more than a purveyor of information and opinion," said Cohen. "It may not be successful much of the time in telling people what to think, but it is stunningly successful in telling its readers what to think about."

NEWS AIMED to provide for the small group of readers that care about foreign news would be a substantial benefit to policy planners, according to Cohen.

This would enable policy planners in providing information and in keeping various aspects of important international issues in somewhat of a balance in the nation's press, and help minimize sudden flareups of public interest in one foreign occurrence that force the State Department to make special efforts to meet them.

However Cohen did not place all of the blame on the press. Perhaps equally to blame, said Cohen, are State Department efforts to keep news from the press. At times, this forces reporters to turn to the dramatic and obvious for their stories.

Candidates Ready

by BOB CUMMINS
Associate Editor

For the next year, a good part of the population will be engaged in a battle of wits.

On the attack will be the candidates for political office. Defending themselves as best they can will be the uncommitted voters.

The weapons of the candidates will be their speeches, their platform planks, and their replies to questions on television programs.

Although their speeches and pamphlets will be titiled "What I Believe" or "I Take My Stand" these will seldom, if ever, be accurate titles.

CUMMINS

In almost every case the accurate title would be "What I Think I Should Say in Order to Get the Most Votes."

THE TECHNIQUE of drafting pamphlets, speeches and statements on this theme has advanced remarkably in recent years.

In the old unsophisticated days I suppose a candidate could woo votes simply by saying opposite things in different places. If Brown County was full of bird lovers he could say, "In order to preserve the traditional American bird-loving way of life, it is imperative that the next legislature enact a law to bell cats."

Then he could go to Blue County at the other end of the state, which was full of cat lovers, and declare, "The belling of cats would be an intolerable infringement on their personal liberty entirely out of keeping with traditional American concepts and I will vote against it."

BUT TODAY communications are so efficient that voters would quickly be informed of such duplicity. So new techniques have had to be developed.

A real breakthrough in solving this problem was the discovery that a candidate must never say how he will vote. But he must give the impression to his listeners, both cat lovers and bird lovers, that he will vote the way they want him to.

One way to achieve this is to sing the praises of birds when speaking in Brown County. The candidate should speak lyrically of the beauty of the plumage of birds and the inspiration man derives from listening to their songs. He may also note their economic value in controlling crop-destroying insects. But he must never, never say he will vote to bell cats.

NATURALLY, when speaking in Blue County, the candidate will praise cats. He will note the companionship they give and their gentility. He may also cite their economic value in controlling grain-eating mice and rats. But he must never, never say he will vote against belling cats.

Now, if the candidate wants to hit a little harder, he can include a criticism of cats when speaking in Brown County and a derisive reference or two to birds when talking in Blue County.

All this is quite simple. Now, what does a candidate do when he takes the rostrum in Green County before a huge audience of uncommitted voters evenly divided between bird-lovers and cat-lovers?

IN THE past, many candidates have cracked up in this situation, but techniques have been developed to help them overcome the difficulty. There are two chief techniques.

One is the filibuster technique. The candidate will talk for about five minutes on the merits of cats, then about five minutes on the merits of birds, then five minutes more on the merits of persons who love cats, then five minutes on the sterling character of persons who love birds. About this time he will sense that both wings of his audience have become quite bored with the subject and, without having given an answer to the question, he will then turn to the next one.

The second technique is a little more polished. It is to advocate a study commission. The candidate will pledge himself to appoint a blue ribbon commission composed of such persons as Audubon and cat society people, as well as businessmen, educators, clergymen, and perhaps even a labor leader to investigate the cat belling proposal. How can you blame a man for wanting to get all the facts?

But this double talk doesn't change things greatly. After all, won't most persons make up their minds by the way the different candidates smile on television?

Donkey Steals Role In Children's Play

A donkey plays a major role in Village Theatre's next production. Hud-Hud, the donkey, along with Morjana, the slave girl, saves Ali Baba from 40 robbers hidden in oil jars.

"Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" will be presented on Sunday, Dec. 8 at 1:30, 3:30 and 5 p.m. in Prospect High School Little Theatre.

In reality, the donkey is Vivian Meyer and the slave girl Carolyn Burkett. Scheherazade, the story-telling queen, will be played by Dorothy Watkins, who just completed a role as a playwright in "Critic's Choice."

MEL FREEMAN is Ali Baba, a wood cutter who loves everyone; his wife Foo-Mee-Ya., Betty Randolph, understands but nevertheless loves a life of riches. Al Estrella, who lost the girl in Village Theatre's last play, wins her in his part of Hassan, son of Ali Baba.

The villains in the story are the robbers. Their wicked chief is Dave Dove. The apprentice robber is played by Gene Good. Others in the band are Bruce Meyer, Dick Baker and Tom Plant.

Jack Andreani's part as Khazzim, brother of Ali, is cut short when he is caught plundering the robbers' cache.

TICKETS ARE available for all performances by calling Village Theatre box office, CL 9-3200 between 9 a.m. and noon, or at the door the day of the performances. (Bill

Proceeds of Show Going To Hospital

Proceeds from the sale of tickets to the Sherman Hospital benefit performance of Ice Vogues at the Polar Dome, Dundee, Dec. 17 will be used to help defray the expenses of furnishing patients' rooms in the new wing of the Elgin Hospital.

Mrs. Ray Divan, general chairman of the Benefit Committee, said that $75,000 had to be secured and that the money raised through the Ice Vogues benefit would give the combined women's auxiliaries a hefty boost on the road to accomplishing their objective.

ALL FOUR auxiliaries, the women's, junior, Barrington and Roselle groups, have joined together in the promotion of the opening performance of the ice show.

The show is produced by Morris Chalfen, one of the foremost ice show impressarios in America at the present time. It has just recently returned to America from Europe, and after the stand at the Polar Dome will head for Mexico City, Mexico.

It stars many outstanding skaters including Joan Hyldoft, the great comic Ben Dova, the LaLonde family featuring two great young stars, Robbi and Tanni, six and 10 years old.

Air Defenders Drill Daily To Be Ready in Emergency

The civilian citizen seldom hears about it, but several North American and United Kingdom areas are "attacked" by missiles every day.

These missile strikes are simulated attacks, based on realistic data and realistic possibilities.

An international organization comprised of a three-service force armed with sky-scanning radars, supersonic jet interceptors and nuclear-capable missiles is responsible for maintaining an aerospace defense over millions of North Americans living in the Great Lakes area and along stretches of the Mississippi River.

IT'S CALLED the 30th NORAD Region, and it is a part of the U. S. - Canadian North American Air Defense Command. The U. S. Army's 45th Air Defense Artillery Brigade, headquartered in Arlington Heights, is, in part, responsible for the aerospace defense of the Chicago - Gary area.

U. S. Army Col. James P. Strauss, commanding officer of the 45th and the Chicago-Gary defense complex, directs the actions that insure the Nike Hercules missile batteries in this area are combat ready.

The big Nike birds travel at three times the speed of sound, have a range of more than 75 miles and can strike down the highest flying bombers. They have intercepted targets at altitudes ranging from less than 1,000 to more than 150,000 feet.

FOR AIRCRAFT intercept, Colonel Strauss turns to Air Force Maj. Gen. Frederick R. Terrell, a West Pointer who commands the 30th NORAD Region from his headquarters at Traux Field, Wis. The region's No. 2 man is a Canadian officer, Air Commodore William Weiser. Army Maj. Gen. Robert A. Hewitt, commanding general of the 5th Region of the U. S. Army Air Defense Command, is also deputy commander of the 30th NORAD Region with headquarters at Fort Sheridan.

The 45th is subdivided into three battalions, each situated to afford the greatest amount of protection for its area of responsibility. Two battalions are manned by active Army people while the third is operated by the Illinois Army National Guard.

The 6th Missile Battalion, 3rd Artillery, headquartered at Montrose Beach Park in Chicago, is commanded by Lt. Col. Blaine E. Twitchell. The 1st Missile Bn., 60th Artillery, headquartered at Gary, is headed by Lt. Col. Gordon D. Rood. The 1st of the 202nd is a National Guard battalion headquartered in Arlington Heights and commanded by Lt. Col. Julius Schwartz.

ONE NERVE center for monitoring the aerospace defense situation in the 45th's battalions is called Missile Master, manned continuously by air surveillance men and weapons controllers.

Although each Army air defense firing battery is a self-contained unit with all the capabilities to permit independent action, each is effectively linked with the entire air defense system through a central coordinating center — Missile Master. Master.

Missile Master provides each firing battery commander with the information he needs to plan his action. Each target appearing on his radar scopes is identified by electronic symbols.

BY THIS means, he knows whether his battery is engaging a hostile target or whether another battery is engaging that target. It also tells him to stop tracking targets which have been positively identified as friendly. And above all, it insures that each target will be engaged by the firing battery in the best position to destroy the target at maximum range.

Men and weapons of the 45th air Defense Brigade, linked with other NORAD and U.S. Air Defense Command units, regularly engage in realistic exercises to perfect the roles they would play during an emergency. (WUS

Navy Reserve Test Deadline Nov. 22

High school seniors and graduates have until Friday, Nov. 22, to apply for the Navy's Reserve Officer Training Corps. Applicants will take the nationwide competitive examination on Dec. 14 as the first step toward an appointment as midshipman.

The NROTC program enables a young man to earn a regular commission while studying at one of 52 civilian colleges with an NROTC unit.

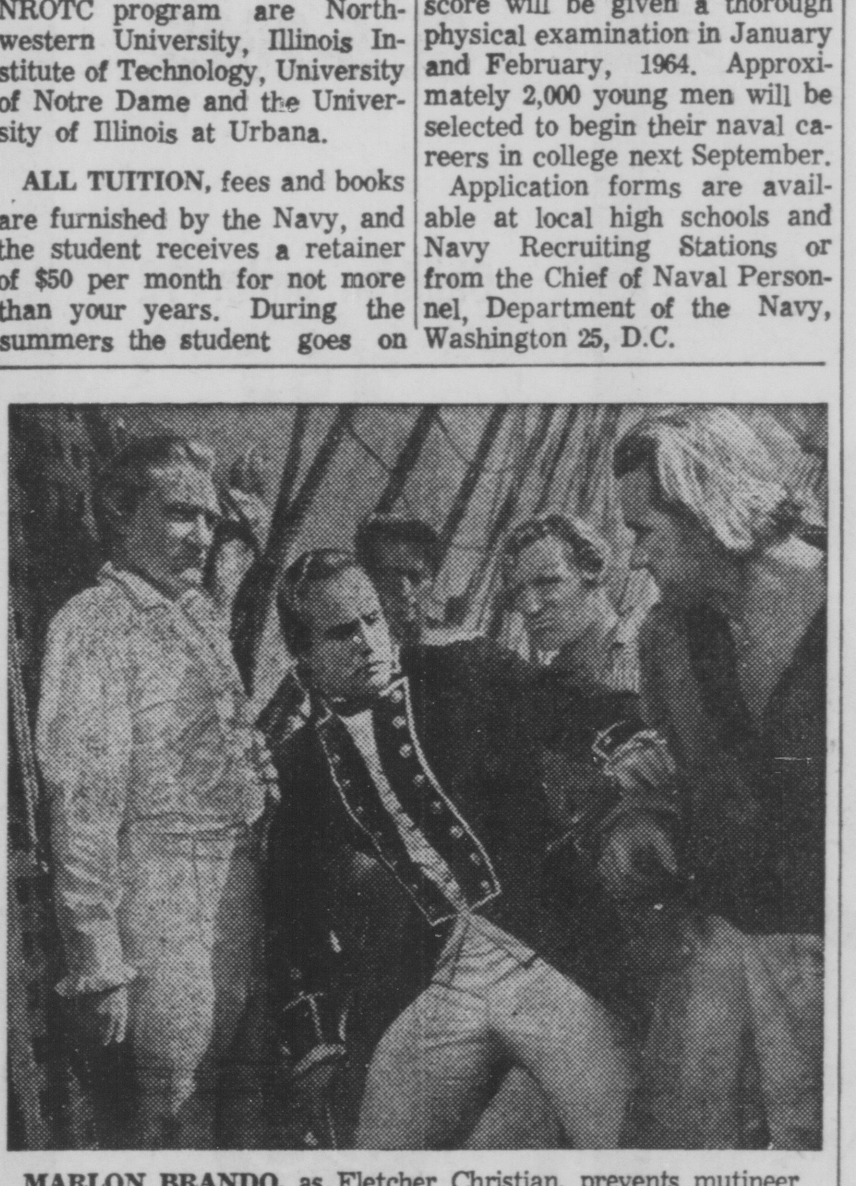
Area colleges offering an NROTC program are Northwestern University, Illinois Institute of Technology, University of Notre Dame and the University of Illinois at Urbana.

ALL TUITION, fees and books are furnished by the Navy, and the student receives a retainer of $50 per month for not more than your years. During the summers the student goes on training cruises to many parts of the world.

After completing a four-year college course, he is commissioned in the regular Navy or Marine Corps and goes on active duty as a career officer in the naval service. He receives the same promotional opportunities, duty assignments and benefits as Naval Academy graduates.

HIGH SCHOOL seniors and graduates who will be at least 17 but not 21 years of age on June 30, 1964, may apply for the Navy College Aptitude Test. Those who make a qualifying score will be given a thorough physical examination in January and February, 1964. Approximately 2,000 young men will be selected to begin their naval careers in college next September.

Application forms are available at local high schools and Navy Recruiting Stations or from the Chief of Naval Personnel, Department of the Navy, Washington 25, D.C.



MARLON BRANDO, as Fletcher Christian, prevents mutineer Richard Harris from flogging Captain Bligh (Trevor Howard) in this scene from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Mutiny on the Bounty." The spectacular picture was filmed in Ultra Panavision and Technicolor in Bora-Bora, Moorea and fabled Tahiti with a cast of thousands. Opens Friday at the Des Plaines Theatre.

Hospital Players Ready

The Northwest Community Hospital Players will produce "More Than Meets the Eye" by Fred Carmichael on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 22, 23 and 24, and Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 1.

Director of the play is Mrs. Helen Bodelson, who is employed as a surgical technician at Northwest Community Hospital. It was the original hope of Mrs. Bodelson to help in some way to raise money for the hospital expansion program.

After many weeks and months of planning and much faith that a players group could be successful, the first play was presented on Jan. 18, 1963.

So successful was the play that the players were encouraged to produce another this fall.

See Billboard Calendar for details. (Bill

"Four Poster," the Jan De Hartog comedy on marriage, will open Tuesday, Nov. 26, at the Country Club theatre of the Old Orchard Country Club, Rand and Euclid, Prospect Heights, for six weeks.

Starring Patricia Ferris and Ralph Foody, the "Four Poster" is a two character comedy about a bed and a happy couple's marriage over 35 years.

THE PLAY is titled the "Four Poster" because the action is centered around a big double bed that dominates the stage setting and symbolizes the ecstasy and pain, romance and heartache that punctuates a happy marriage.

Performances are nightly except Monday with curtain time 8:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

TERRY GIBBS, his vibraphone and quartet are appearing through Sunday at the London House, Michigan Avenue and Wacker Drive, Chicago.

Hospital Players Ready

The Northwest Community Hospital Players will produce "More Than Meets the Eye" by Fred Carmichael on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 22, 23 and 24, and Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 1.

Director of the play is Mrs. Helen Bodelson, who is employed as a surgical technician at Northwest Community Hospital. It was the original hope of Mrs. Bodelson to help in some way to raise money for the hospital expansion program.

After many weeks and months of planning and much faith that a players group could be successful, the first play was presented on Jan. 18, 1963.

So successful was the play that the players were encouraged to produce another this fall.

Plaza Presenting Exhibit of Art

An art collection intended to encourage public interest in original painting and provide a gallery for unknown artists will be displayed in Mount Prospect Plaza Shopping Center starting today, Thursday.

The exhibit is sponsored by Arts International, an organization founded in January, 1963, by two art loving Chicago area men who believe more people than ever want to own paintings.

The show will run through Sunday. Visitors may browse and buy at their leisure from the more than 500 paintings by some 200 artists, most of whom are working in France, Holland, Italy, Spain, Mexico, Belgium and England.

SOME WORKS by Americans and artists working in the Caribbean area also are included.

Arts International was started by Frederick W. C. Haddad, an investment analyst before he became a full-time art exhibitor, and Jack Solomon Jr., a Chicago attorney who has gained recognition for his knowledge of the legal aspects of hypnotism.

Their gallery is a former service station at 748 N. Michigan Ave., more reminiscent of the Paris Left Bank than the usual plush art gallery. The works they display are by unknown artists, ranging in price from $5 to $75 with the median price around $35.

HADDAD'S interest in art dates back to childhood. While in college, he worked summers as a merchant seaman and began buying paintings for himself and friends when in port in France. Even after graduation he continued to buy art and display it for sale in his home.

Eventually his informal exhibits became so popular, he rented a small shop in Highland Park. In January of this year he teamed up with Solomon, who is a partner in the firm of Stiefel, Greenburg, Burns and Baldrige specializing in civil practice and other business law, to open Le Garage on North Michigan.

Their exhibit at Mount Prospect Plaza is one of series that have aroused interest in such cities as Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis, Cleveland and Kansas City. (Bili

What The Lutheran Church Believes About Hell

For one thing they believe it is a place to stay out of! For another, they know that isn't easy!—not if a man is trying to do it by his own good conduct medals.

Sound odd to you? Here's why it is true. To escape hell and reach heaven a man must be perfect.

Perfect! Does that word describe you? You can fool some of the people some of the time, but you can't fool yourself about this. And God can be fooled even less!

But there is a way to escape hell and reach heaven. Even this way is easy only for men—not for God.

God has to give His beloved Son—and Jesus Christ went to the cross to make it possible. God suffered the punishment of our sin. Believe it and you accept God's forgiveness. Then you are perfect before Him!

That's what your Lutheran friends believe about hell. Oh, they believe there is such a place. Men who do not want to live with God need some place for eternity. And it will be awful—to be forever separated from the love of God!

But now the important thing about hell is that you acknowledge your own inability to be perfect and turn to the forgiving mercy of God, so you don't have to go there.

The Lutheran pastor in your community can help you get in touch with God who has so much to offer! See him—to meet Him!

This year's model shows an Alpine village in full color, flashing with glitter snow and peopled with characters and animals.

Beginning Dec. 1, children may each day open one of the 25 numbered doors and windows to reveal Yuletide preparations, ending with the Nativity scene.

The cards with accompanying verse and mailing envelope are available at $1 each at the reception desk of Paddock Publications, 217 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, or for $1 (plus 10 cents for handling and postage) from National Epilepsy League, 203 N. Wabash, Chicago. (B9

Now, Thanks To You,
Someone Somewhere
Can See Better!

Hundreds and hundreds of pairs of old, no-longer-needed eyeglasses have been donated by local residents to our campaign for New Eyes For The Needy — a non-profit, charitable organization which redistributes these glasses to the needy all over the world. On behalf of all those who will be able to see better because of your generosity, we say, "Thank you from the bottom of our hearts."

We will continue to accept donations of unused eyeglasses for as long as there is a need for them, and we earnestly ask your support of this charitable cause. If you have glasses which you no longer wear that you'd like to donate to the needy, you may bring them to our office, and we, in turn, will ship them to New Eyes For The Needy. Your generosity will be remembered always by someone who wants and deserves better vision — truly, one of life's most precious possessions.

For your convenience, your discarded eyeglasses may be dropped off at the reception desk at Paddock's newspaper office, 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights or the Drake Funeral Home in Park Ridge.

What The Lutheran Church Believes About Hell

For one thing they believe it is a place to stay out of! For another, they know that isn't easy!—not if a man is trying to do it by his own good conduct medals.

Sound odd to you? Here's why it is true. To escape hell and reach heaven a man must be perfect.

Perfect! Does that word describe you? You can fool some of the people some of the time, but you can't fool yourself about this. And God can be fooled even less!

But there is a way to escape hell and reach heaven. Even this way is easy only for men—not for God.

God has to give His beloved Son—and Jesus Christ went to the cross to make it possible. God suffered the punishment of our sin. Believe it and you accept God's forgiveness. Then you are perfect before Him!

That's what your Lutheran friends believe about hell. Oh, they believe there is such a place. Men who do not want to live with God need some place for eternity. And it will be awful—to be forever separated from the love of God!

But now the important thing about hell is that you acknowledge your own inability to be perfect and turn to the forgiving mercy of God, so you don't have to go there.

The Lutheran pastor in your community can help you get in touch with God who has so much to offer! See him —to meet Him!

Now, Thanks To You,
Someone Somewhere
Can See Better!

Hundreds and hundreds of pairs of old, no-longer-needed eyeglasses have been donated by local residents to our campaign for New Eyes For The Needy — a non-profit, charitable organization which redistributes these glasses to the needy all over the world. On behalf of all those who will be able to see better because of your generosity, we say, "Thank you from the bottom of our hearts."

We will continue to accept donations of unused eyeglasses for as long as there is a need for them, and we earnestly ask your support of this charitable cause. If you have glasses which you no longer wear that you'd like to donate to the needy, you may bring them to our office, and we, in turn, will ship them to New Eyes For The Needy. Your generosity will be remembered always by someone who wants and deserves better vision — truly, one of life's most precious possessions.

For your convenience, your discarded eyeglasses may be dropped off at the reception desk at Paddock's newspaper office, 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights or the Drake Funeral Home in Park Ridge.

625 BUSSE HIGHWAY
IN PARK RIDGE

Mother Tells Reasons for Asking School Bus Service

Now that my petition to continue bus service to Walt Whitman, for my son and my neighbor's son, has become a matter of public consideration, I would consider myself negligent if I did not endeavor to set the record straight.

Bus service was discontinued on the basis that a crossing guard had been hired for Milwaukee Avenue and sidewalks installed along Manchester Drive, insuring the safety of all children required to travel this route. A school crossing sign has been erected along Milwaukee Avenue, 235 feet beyond our driveway but as yet no speed limit has been posted. The board stated, they would have to hire another bus to transport all the children from this area, an added expense to already overburdened taxpayers. I am definitely against this . . .but it is my contention, only our two boys are hazardously affected by the new bus ruling. Milwaukee Avenue is a dual state highway, Routes 21 and 45, heavily traveled by interstate trucks as well as being a main artery for commuters. It has a 45 miles per hour speed limit, rarely observed. The majority of drivers do not even stop for school buses loading or unloading students. (As my numerous complaints to the Cook County Police Department will testify.) Manchester Drive is a residential street with a 20 m.p.h. speed limit. A gravel walk was installed along Manchester, covering a shorter distance than that which our boys are required to walk to reach the crossing guard. The trailer camp's north driveway exits directly across from the Manchester-Milwaukee intersection. When snow is plowed off Milwaukee Avenue into banks, the boys will have to walk, not on the shoulder of the highway but on the highway proper. Snow plows do not plow the shoulders, that's where they pile the snow.

I SUGGESTED, during the period when Milwaukee Avenue would have the added hazardous conditions, i.e.; snow banks, dubious driver control, limited visibility, etc. the boys be permitted to board, if not the original bus, then an alternative bus, which transports Walt Whitman kindergarten and Jack London Junior High students. This would deposit them at school safely, but a bit too early for supervisory purposes.

One of the board members inquired: Would I assume responsibility for my youngster during the period when supervision was not available? As parents we are bound by a moral obligation to assume responsibility for our children, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, whether they conduct themselves as angels (I hope) or demons (possible). Their physical safety is also our obligation and facts elicit our claims Although this is the first year all of our children are in public schools, we have accumulated 23 years of parochial school education, we unhesitatingly trust our school districts with seven very precious lives every school day of the year.

The respective schools of District 21 and 214, Arlington High, and Forest View High of Arlington Heights, Jack London Junior High and Walt Whitman kindergarten of Wheeling, Ira Rupley of Elk Grove Village and Central School of Rolling Meadows, each hold a share in the education, safety and welfare of our children. But we refuse to relinquish our rights to final responsibility for their conduct and safety. Too much parental responsibility has been handed to or assumed by our educational institutions, creating a situation detrimental to their primary purpose, that of education.

THE SAME board member suggested the boys cut across open fields to reach the trailer camp, to utilize their driveways to enter Milwaukee Avenue safely. This, at best, is a dubious alternative. Disregarding the legal technicalities, i.e., the combined efforts of the school board and an individual to utilize private property, the boys would be snow packed and soaked by the time they reached their first objective, the crossing guard. The board members retort to this was: If the boys arrived at school early, they might be just as soaked by the time school convened. Possible, yes, but much less likely. Here they would have a choice, to get wet and face punishment or stay dry and avoid the inevitable. Across open fields, "wet boys" is a certainty.

Still another board member stated: If we open the door here, consider what we would be opening the door to. I say, yes, let's consider for a moment, the coliseums, sporting events, a movie, bus, train or plane. Yes, even the Pearly Gates. The world and eternity at a draw, held fast by the assumption, someone without the proper credentials might try to pass. Held fast by the object reluctance to examine and judge on an individual basis.

WITH THIS in mind, I feel the decision of the board was clouded, distorted by the shadow of the multitude of parents, complete with petitions, from the trailer camp and the two apartment buildings, affected by the new bus ruling. I cannot, in good conscience, accept the board's decision. I cannot abide with the possibility of tragedy, beside my son's crushed body on Milwaukee Avenue or at his hospital bedside, while he fights for his life, in an oxygen tent against pneumonia, all the while, clutching the proper ticket to get in through "The Door."

I will endeaver to be back on the agenda of a board meeting when these hazardous conditions actually exist, requesting a field survey and relying on the integrity and courage of the board members to reconsider my petition on an individual basis.

Claims Paper Overemphasizes Arlington News

I am renewing my subscription against my better judgment (for the supposedly Mount Prospect Herald). It is actually the Arlington Heights Herald with a different front page.

You people are so obsessed with Arlington Heights news you don't bother much with any other town, especially Mount Prospect. Your paper is greatly in need of improvement as far as local news is concerned and your little pink slip (survey) has given me the urge to sound off.

We're tired of reading all about Arlington Heights. We know more about what goes on out there than what goes on here, and would much rather read about Mount Prospect, as that is where we live.

So why don't you grant a visa to one of your reporters so he can journey out here (we're the next town east of you) and gather some news other than what goes on at the village board meetings. You manage to fill up the weekly paper with several articles of things taken up at the board meeting, and things must really be rough the weeks when they don't have a meeting. (Yes, I have attended board meetings.)

My final plea, let's quit being so one-sided and admit there are other towns besides the great Arlington Heights. Your circulation would be greatly improved, I am sure. Most of my neighbors won't bother with your paper for the reason I have set forth here and I tolerate it as some news, however inadequate, is better than none and the advertising is quite good.

Also, I would like to mention one thing regarding real estate advertising. Many realtors just show a street address or mention a certain area and neglect to mention in which town the house is located. There is quite a lot of this and how can a newcomer looking for homes in this area figure this out? Your ads reach many towns and if all the ad says is "Pioneer Park," if you do not live in Arlington Heights you don't know where this is. Try to set your advertisers straight as this would help a lot of people.

Wants Racial Decisions Left To Each State

A few weeks ago Bruce Ladd wrote an editorial denouncing the Birch Society in terms which proved he really knows nothing about it and broadly categorizing its members as impatient, intolerant, and lacking faith in democracy.

Impatient and intolerant of what? He doesn't bother to say but I would imagine it is because of the fantastic federal waste of money here and handouts all over the world; continual concessions to a group whose only definition of "peace" is a communist world where there will be no one to oppose them; and to a frantic plunge down into socialism. (Frantic because so many good citizens are awakening to the fact that all is not right in Washington and may try to stop these fuzzy-thinking liberals before they have completely destroyed the country.)

Space prevents correcting so much of Mr. Ladd's editorial but for those people interested enough to look a bit further and come to their own conclusions, may I suggest the Congressional Record of Tuesday, June 12, 1962 and Thursday, June 14, 1962, both by the Honorable John H. Rousselot of California; the printed investigation of the JBS by the California Senate Fact-finding Sub-Committee and the JBS's Blue Book. These are only a few references but will suffice for a primer.

Another recent issue which could be enlarged upon is the Administration's so-called "civil rights" program (called by distinguished members of the American Bar Association as 10 per cent civil rights and 90 per cent Federal executive power) which is a good contemporary example of why there is impatience and intolerance of a governing group that does not represent the people, the law, or the best interests of the country.

The Birch Society is only one of many groups opposing this legislation as being a flagrant violation of the 10th amendment to the Constitution. They assert that many actions being taken under the "civil rights" banner are a direct threat to both the person and property of every individual American, of whatever race, color or creed. The Federal government is strictly forbidden by the Constitution from either making decisions involving racial problems within the states, or from using military compulsion to enforce them. The 10th amendment is very explicit and the Constitution would never have been adopted without this guarantee against the very usurpation of power in which the Federal Government is now engaged. Only the people can repeal the 10th Amendment and I haven't heard of this being done.

Every patriotic American should be urged to reread the Constitution carefully for himself and to start insisting on a return to a government of law; not of men, rules, and decrees. One doesn't have to be a member of the Birch Society to be informed, impatient and aroused at the trend toward national suicide.

An awakening conservative,
W. W. Grosche
Arlington Heights.

Register 'Just Right,' Reader Says

In regards to the pink slip and in regards to paper—I enjoy this paper very much. I think it's worded right and also paged right. I don't have any complaints, in fact, I can't wait until Friday, when I receive mine.

Having been a resident of Bensenville for many, many years and then moving to Westchester, my heart is still there when I receive this paper. I feel like I'm back in my home town again.

Believe me, I read it from page one to the last. I think all sections are fine—just right. And, also, I think what's nice is when a mistake is made, retractions are in the following week.

As far as I'm concerned, The Register is A-I.

Urge Keeping Party Politics Out of Schools

Last week's Fence Post carried a letter from Mr. Gerald Moe, Wheeling Township School Trustee which is very disturbing to those who are interested in good school government.

In his letter Mr. Moe made reference to the national party politics of two school board members. When these school board members sought office, they did not seek it as members of a national political party, but as citizens interested in good school government.

FOR MANY years it has been the hope and aim of citizens in this community to keep national party politics from entering into local school governing bodies. The selection of candidates for school boards should be based on community interests, educational qualifications and occupational background; not on national political party affiliation.

When Mr. Moe sought his office last spring, many of those supporting him did so because of his position "that economies can be made in the treasurer's office"; not on his well-known national political party affiliation. Many people who shared Mr. Moe's approach to the improvement of the township school treasurer's office must find it difficult to accept his recent letter which so repeatedly emphasized national political party ties.

Good school government in Wheeling Township can best be continued by keeping national party politics out of the picture. Most of us who serve as voters have been able to do this. We urge Mr. Moe to take a similar position in the future.

American Way 'Inspiring Name'

We feel the American Way is the most appropriate name for Commuter St. Such a name would serve as a symbol and quiet reminder that we are enjoying the benefits of the American Way which is the voice of freedom and free enterprise.

It has been said, it is better to light one candle than to curse the darkness.

We urge the planning commission to adopt this most inspiring name.

Thanks Police For Help at Accident Scene

The following is a copy of a letter sent to the Arlington Heights Police Chief:

"On Oct. 25 our daughter, Jean, was involved in an accident at Miner and State Road.

"MY HUSBAND and I would like to thank you and your men for all the help and care given her at the time. It was a great comfort to know that your help came so fast and that she was taken care of promptly.

"We would also like to extend our thanks to all the other people who helped, the one who called for help, the ambulance people and the people at the hospital."

Homemaker Finalist Has Fond Memories

Just a short note to say how grateful I am to you and to my friends for permitting me to participate in the Homemaker contest.

The review of the 40 participants was most stimulating. How humble we feel when we look upon the unselfish deeds that so many women have combined with their everyday homemaking chores. Through their vigorous activity they maintain home, family, and community. Your efforts to bring a little glory to these gals, and at the same time give other women an inspiration, do not go unnoticed.

Your judges were cordial and certainly efficient.

Naturally, enough just can't be said for the paper's Hester Kline. Whether my position had been last or first, I would have to say it's always a pleasure to deal with Mrs. Kline.

I shall always look at my certificate and relish dish with fond memories and pride at my sincere friends.

Favors Naming Commuter St. 'American Way'

As a resident of Arlington Heights, I would like to cast my vote for naming Commuter Street "The American Way." The street may be only one block long, but taking into consideration that the street will be used, and the flag viewed daily by our many commuters, it is an important street.

A patriotic name seems very appropriate considering that many of these same commuters, not too long ago, fought for all the things that our flag stands for so that they oculd live and raise families in a community like ours, which is truly the American way of life.

In our busy lives, we sometimes need a reminder that the freedom that we take for granted was won for us by patriotic citizens down through the years.

I hope that Mr. Brennan's suggestions will become a reality. It will give us an opportunity to show our pride in our Country, our Flag, and in the Community in which we live.

Says Rolling Meadows GOP Apathetic, Needs Good Leader

I am sorry that a certain Rolling Meadows alderman sought publicity for himself by his article in the Rolling Meadows Herald, Nov. 14 issue. There are some things like hatred, resentment and wrath that are never cured by publicity.

But let us get the facts straight . . . (altho, I don't approve) a precinct captain may be chosen from any willing person in the township. THAT IS THE LAW. The reason, I believe, that Dr. Justin Fleischman was given the job was his willingness to work as a precinct captain.

Let's also be fair and acknowledge the fact that no willing Rolling Meadows Republican came forth to serve as precinct captain when the former one resigned.

Also, let it be known that the political organization chooses the precinct captains and not the voters. We do not elect precinct captains in Cook County. They are appointed by the party organization from voluntary workers.

The name "Township Republicans" was given to an organization formed by regular Republicans for one purpose. The name was suggested and approval was given by the Chairman of the Central Committee at that time. There were some, not so regular, that asked to join. When that purpose was accomplished, the regulars withdrew their support and the "remains" are not recognized by the Central Committee as Republicans. If the "remains" still exist as a group, it is for only one purpose and a selfish one at that.

It is true and for once I agree with the alderman that a Palatine Village resident does not know the problems of Rolling Meadows. But the precinct captain does not have to be interested in the problems of the city, he is only interested in getting the people in his precinct out to the polls.

BUT IF THE apathy of the Rolling Meadows Republicans keep them from doing voluntary work for their political organization, I do not believe that it is quite fair to blame the committeeman. There is apathy as far as working is concerned. There is even apathy in registering so that a resident can vote. There is apathy in voting or everyone would come out to vote.

Again the alderman has proven himself verbose with abusive adjectives. If he really was concerned with the welfare of Rolling Meadows and the Republican party he would let "the past bury its dead." These matters are not settled by fists or by publicity.

I have worked in the Regular Republican organization long enough to know residents of Palatine. Also to know that all the hatred and resentment was fostered by a few. Why continue to remember these people? Let's cultivate the friendship of the whole and forget the few.

I believe that Rolling Meadows has proven itself and I believe that residents of the township believe us to be a definite part of the Township and also good neighbors. At least they will if the few in Rolling Meadows will cease to remind them of things best forgotten.

I know that the Regular Republican Organization has done and is doing its best to foster a better feeling in the township by having its meetings at least half the time in Rolling Meadows. Were Rolling Meadows Republicans there?

I SUGGEST THE aldermen re-read the Palatine Township Republican Challenge again. If he is truthful, he will admit the word "Palatine" was used only once as the name for the Village of Palatine. The rest of the time the name referred to the township of which Rolling Meadows is a part. The announcement of the Goldwater-Robertson Headquarters could not be told in any other manner as it gave the street address in the village.

The organization to which the alderman claims to be a membership chairman should change their name (I have one that I would like to submit). Good Republicans who believe in the party (and there are many of us in Rolling Meadows) are not members of the alderman's organization. There is not, at this time, a recognized Regular Republican Club in Rolling Meadows. My hope is that the future will take care of this matter and soon. The Rolling Meadows Republicans need a good Republican leader.

I dislike very much that a Paddock editor chose the words "Republican Flare-Up" as a heading for the alderman's article. The alderman is not and never has been a true Republican nor is his organization Republican. He is a rebel from his own party.

Enjoyed Part In Search for Homemaker

It has often been said that nothing is "deader than yesterday's newspaper." However, to those of us who were so honored by Paddock Publications and by Hester Kline as the Homemaker of the Year editor, it is not a dead issue!

I want again to thank you and to tell you how nice it was to be a part of the wonderful experience we all had during the Homemaker Search. The party at the YMCA on the 13th was of much enjoyment to me and to my family.

THE WINNER, Mrs. Manos, is a lovely person (determined by myself, of course, upon a few moments acquaintance) and I am sure that she will enjoy the gifts and her family and friends must be quite proud of her.

I believe that the comment made by Mrs. Kline in the paper that "Mrs. Morgan posesses the qualities of universal motherhood" was one of the greatest thrills to me personally about the whole thing. I was thrilled with my daughter's feeling as she does and also about "Tommie's sentiments; however, they DO know me and know me well, and again I must say your comments were so sweet and wonderful, upon which short acquaintance that I too, like Nancy Manos, "almost cried a little!"

Thanks again to Mrs. Kline and to Larry Cameron and all of fine people at Paddock Publications.

Wants Paper To Cover Only Mount Prospect

I would like to see the Mount Prospect Herald become a Mount Prospect paper only. Our village seems to be allotted two pages with other items scattered through 30 pages of advertising and news items of people and affairs of towns surrounding us for miles.

I'm sure there would be enough news from the churches, schools, village, township, park district, "Y" and hospital to fill a small paper, plus editorial comment, a woman's page, weddings and local news items.

This would make a paper we'd read from cover to cover, and not just thumb through after reading two pages to be sure we haven't missed some local news of importance.

Mother Tells Reasons for Asking School Bus Service

Now that my petition to continue bus service to Walt Whitman, for my son and my neighbor's son, has become a matter of public consideration, I would consider myself negligent if I did not endeavor to set the record straight.

Bus service was discontinued on the basis that a crossing guard had been hired for Milwaukee Avenue and sidewalks installed along Manchester Drive, insuring the safety of all children required to travel this route. A school crossing sign has been erected along Milwaukee Avenue, 235 feet beyond our driveway but as yet no speed limit has been posted. The board stated, they would have to hire another bus to transport all the children from this area, an added expense to already overburdened taxpayers. I am definitely against this . . .but it is my contention, only our two boys are hazardously affected by the new bus ruling. Milwaukee Avenue is a dual state highway, Routes 21 and 45, heavily traveled by interstate trucks as well as being a main artery for commuters. It has a 45 miles per hour speed limit, rarely observed. The majority of drivers do not even stop for school buses loading or unloading students. (As my numerous complaints to the Cook County Police Department will testify.) Manchester Drive is a residential street with a 20 m.p.h. speed limit. A gravel walk was installed along Manchester, covering a shorter distance than that which our boys are required to walk to reach the crossing guard. The trailer camp's north driveway exits directly across from the Manchester-Milwaukee intersection. When snow is plowed off Milwaukee Avenue into banks, the boys will have to walk, not on the shoulder of the highway but on the highway proper. Snow plows do not plow the shoulders, that's where they pile the snow.

I SUGGESTED, during the period when Milwaukee Avenue would have the added hazardous conditions, i.e.; snow banks, dubious driver control, limited visibility, etc. the boys be permitted to board, if not the original bus, then an alternative bus, which transports Walt Whitman kindergarten and Jack London Junior High students. This would deposit them at school safely, but a bit too early for supervisory purposes.

One of the board members inquired: Would I assume responsibility for my youngster during the period when supervision was not available? As parents we are bound by a moral obligation to assume responsibility for our children, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, whether they conduct themselves as angels (I hope) or demons (possible). Their physical safety is also our obligation and facts elicit our claims Although this is the first year all of our children are in public schools, we have accumulated 23 years of parochial school education, we unhesitatingly trust our school districts with seven very precious lives every school day of the year.

The respective schools of District 21 and 214, Arlington High, and Forest View High of Arlington Heights, Jack London Junior High and Walt Whitman kindergarten of Wheeling, Ira Rupley of Elk Grove Village and Central School of Rolling Meadows, each hold a share in the education, safety and welfare of our children. But we refuse to relinquish our rights to final responsibility for their conduct and safety. Too much parental responsibility has been handed to or assumed by our educational institutions, creating a situation detrimental to their primary purpose, that of education.

THE SAME board member suggested the boys cut across open fields to reach the trailer camp, to utilize their driveways to enter Milwaukee Avenue safely. This, at best, is a dubious alternative. Disregarding the legal technicalities, i.e., the combined efforts of the school board and an individual to utilize private property, the boys would be snow packed and soaked by the time they reached their first objective, the crossing guard. The board members retort to this was: If the boys arrived at school early, they might be just as soaked by the time school convened. Possible, yes, but much less likely. Here they would have a choice, to get wet and face punishment or stay dry and avoid the inevitable. Across open fields, "wet boys" is a certainty.

Still another board member stated: If we open the door here, consider what we would be opening the door to. I say, yes, let's consider for a moment, the coliseums, sporting events, a movie, bus, train or plane. Yes, even the Pearly Gates. The world and eternity at a draw, held fast by the assumption, someone without the proper credentials might try to pass. Held fast by the object reluctance to examine and judge on an individual basis.

WITH THIS in mind, I feel the decision of the board was clouded, distorted by the shadow of the multitude of parents, complete with petitions, from the trailer camp and the two apartment buildings, affected by the new bus ruling. I cannot, in good conscience, accept the board's decision. I cannot abide with the possibility of tragedy, beside my son's crushed body on Milwaukee Avenue or at his hospital bedside, while he fights for his life, in an oxygen tent against pneumonia, all the while, clutching the proper ticket to get in through "The Door."

I will endeavor to be back on the agenda of a board meeting when these hazardous conditions actually exist, requesting a field survey and relying on the integrity and courage of the board members to reconsider my petition on an individual basis.

Claims Paper Overemphasizes Arlington News

I am renewing my subscription against my better judgment (for the supposedly Mount Prospect Herald). It is actually the Arlington Heights Herald with a different front page.

You people are so obsessed with Arlington Heights news you don't bother much with any other town, especially Mount Prospect. Your paper is greatly in need of improvement as far as local news is concerned and your little pink slip (survey) has given me the urge to sound off.

We're tired of reading all about Arlington Heights. We know more about what goes on out there than what goes on here, and would much rather read about Mount Prospect, as that is where we live.

So why don't you grant a visa to one of your reporters so he can journey out here (we're the next town east of you) and gather some news other than what goes on at the village board meetings. You manage to fill up the weekly paper with several articles of things taken up at the board meeting, and things must really be rough the weeks when they don't have a meeting. (Yes, I have attended board meetings.)

My final plea, let's quit being so one-sided and admit there are other towns besides the great Arlington Heights. Your circulation would be greatly improved, I am sure. Most of my neighbors won't bother with your paper for the reason I have set forth here and I tolerate it as some news, however inadequate, is better than none and the advertising is quite good.

Also, I would like to mention one thing regarding real estate advertising. Many realtors just show a street address or mention a certain area and neglect to mention in which town the house is located. There is quite a lot of this and how can a newcomer looking for homes in this area figure this out? Your ads reach many towns and if all the ad says is "Pioneer Park," if you do not live in Arlington Heights you don't know where this is. Try to set your advertisers straight as this would help a lot of people.

Wants Racial Decisions Left To Each State

A few weeks ago Bruce Ladd wrote an editorial denouncing the Birch Society in terms which proved he really knows nothing about it and broadly categorizing its members as impatient, intolerant, and lacking faith in democracy.

Impatient and intolerant of what? He doesn't bother to say but I would imagine it is because of the fantastic federal waste of money here and handouts all over the world; continual concessions to a group whose only definition of "peace" is a communist world where there will be no one to oppose them; and to a frantic plunge down into socialism. (Frantic because so many good citizens are awakening to the fact that all is not right in Washington and may try to stop these fuzzy-thinking liberals before they have completely destroyed the country.)

Space prevents correcting so much of Mr. Ladd's editorial but for those people interested enough to look a bit further and come to their own conclusions, may I suggest the Congressional Record of Tuesday, June 12, 1962 and Thursday, June 14, 1962, both by the Honorable John H. Rousselot of California; the printed investigation of the JBS by the California Senate Fact-finding Sub-Committee and the JBS's Blue Book. These are only a few references but will suffice for a primer.

Another recent issue which could be enlarged upon is the Administration's so-called "civil rights" program (called by distinguished members of the American Bar Association as 10 per cent civil rights and 90 per cent Federal executive power) which is a good contemporary example of why there is impatience and intolerance of a governing group that does not represent the people, the law, or the best interests of the country.

The Birch Society is only one of many groups opposing this legislation as being a flagrant violation of the 10th amendment to the Constitution. They assert that many actions being taken under the "civil rights" banner are a direct threat to both the person and property of every individual American, of whatever race, color or creed. The Federal government is strictly forbidden by the Constitution from either making decisions involving racial problems within the states, or from using military compulsion to enforce them. The 10th amendment is very explicit and the Constitution would never have been adopted without this guarantee against the very usurpation of power in which the Federal Government is now engaged. Only the people can repeal the 10th Amendment and I haven't heard of this being done.

Every patriotic American should be urged to reread the Constitution carefully for himself and to start insisting on a return to a government of law; not of men, rules, and decrees. One doesn't have to be a member of the Birch Society to be informed, impatient and aroused at the trend toward national suicide.

An awakening conservative,
W. W. Grosche
Arlington Heights.

Register 'Just Right,' Reader Says

In regards to the pink slip and in regards to paper—I enjoy this paper very much. I think it's worded right and also paged right. I don't have any complaints, in fact, I can't wait until Friday, when I receive mine.

Having been a resident of Bensenville for many, many years and then moving to Westchester, my heart is still there when I receive this paper. I feel like I'm back in my home town again.

Believe me, I read it from page one to the last. I think all sections are fine—just right. And, also, I think what's nice is when a mistake is made, retractions are in the following week.

As far as I'm concerned, The Register is A-I.

Urge Keeping Party Politics Out of Schools

Last week's Fence Post carried a letter from Mr. Gerald Moe, Wheeling Township School Trustee which is very disturbing to those who are interested in good school government.

In his letter Mr. Moe made reference to the national party politics of two school board members. When these school board members sought office, they did not seek it as members of a national political party, but as citizens interested in good school government.

FOR MANY years it has been the hope and aim of citizens in this community to keep national party politics from entering into local school governing bodies. The selection of candidates for school boards should be based on community interests, educational qualifications and occupational background; not on national political party affiliation.

When Mr. Moe sought his office last spring, many of those supporting him did so because of his position "that economies can be made in the treasurer's office"; not on his well-known national political party affiliation. Many people who shared Mr. Moe's approach to the improvement of the township school treasurer's office must find it difficult to accept his recent letter which so repeatedly emphasized national political party ties.

Good school government in Wheeling Township can best be continued by keeping national party politics out of the picture. Most of us who serve as voters have been able to do this. We urge Mr. Moe to take a similar position in the future.

American Way 'Inspiring Name'

We feel the American Way is the most appropriate name for Commuter St. Such a name would serve as a symbol and quiet reminder that we are enjoying the benefits of the American Way which is the voice of freedom and free enterprise.

It has been said, it is better to light one candle than to curse the darkness.

We urge the planning commission to adopt this most inspiring name.

Homemaker Finalist Has Fond Memories

Just a short note to say how grateful I am to you and to my friends for permitting me to participate in the Homemaker contest.

The review of the 40 participants was most stimulating. How humble we feel when we look upon the unselfish deeds that so many women have combined with their everyday homemaking chores. Through their vigorous activity they maintain home, family, and community. Your efforts to bring a little glory to these gals, and at the same time give other women an inspiration, do not go unnoticed.

Your judges were cordial and certainly efficient.

Naturally, enough just can't be said for the paper's Hester Kline. Whether my position had been last or first, I would have to say it's always a pleasure to deal with Mrs. Kline.

I shall always look at my certificate and relish dish with fond memories and pride at my sincere friends.

Favors Naming Commuter St. 'American Way'

As a resident of Arlington Heights, I would like to cast my vote for naming Commuter Street "The American Way." The street may be only one block long, but taking into consideration that the street will be used, and the flag viewed daily by our many commuters, it is an important street.

A patriotic name seems very appropriate considering that many of these same commuters, not too long ago, fought for all the things that our flag stands for so that they oculd live and raise families in a community like ours, which is truly the American way of life.

In our busy lives, we sometimes need a reminder that the freedom that we take for granted was won for us by patriotic citizens down through the years.

I hope that Mr. Brennan's suggestions will become a reality. It will give us an opportunity to show our pride in our Country, our Flag, and in the Community in which we live.

Says Rolling Meadows GOP Apathetic, Needs Good Leader

I am sorry that a certain Rolling Meadows alderman sought publicity for himself by his article in the Rolling Meadows Herald, Nov. 14 issue. There are some things like hatred, resentment and wrath that are never cured by publicity.

But let us get the facts straight . . . (altho, I don't approve) a precinct captain may be chosen from any willing person in the township. THAT IS THE LAW. The reason, I believe, that Dr. Justin Fleischman was given the job was his willingness to work as a precinct captain.

Let's also be fair and acknowledge the fact that no willing Rolling Meadows Republican came forth to serve as precinct captain when the former one resigned.

Also, let it be known that the political organization chooses the precinct captains and not the voters. We do not elect precinct captains in Cook County. They are appointed by the party organization from voluntary workers.

The name "Township Republicans" was given to an organization formed by regular Republicans for one purpose. The name was suggested and approval was given by the Chairman of the Central Committee at that time. There were some, not so regular, that asked to join. When that purpose was accomplished, the regulars withdrew their support and the "remains" are not recognized by the Central Committee as Republicans. If the "remains" still exist as a group, it is for only one purpose and a selfish one at that.

It is true and for once I agree with the alderman that a Palatine Village resident does not know the problems of Rolling Meadows. But the precinct captain does not have to be interested in the problems of the city, he is only interested in getting the people in his precinct out to the polls.

BUT IF THE apathy of the Rolling Meadows Republicans keep them from doing voluntary work for their political organization, I do not believe that it is quite fair to blame the committeeman. There is apathy as far as working is concerned. There is even apathy in registering so that a resident can vote. There is apathy in voting or everyone would come out to vote.

Turkey Is Holiday Menu Tradition

"In gratitude for the plenteous harvest of 1621," writes an authority on the first Thanksgiving celebration, "Gov. Bradford, the first governor of Massachusetts Colony, proclaimed a day of thanksgiving. In practical furtherance of his edict, he at once sent out four men in search of game. Thus, early in the history of the day, does the turkey make his appearance."

The four sportsmen, it seems, were remarkably successful in their quest, and returned, "struggling under a burden of wild fowl, principally turkeys, sufficient to meet the wants of the little colony for a week."

MARKED BY the unexpected attendance of 90 friendly Indians, the celebration was lengthened to three days, and featured not only repeated rounds of feasting, but singing, war dances, military drills and a variety of sports and games. From that first Thanksgiving to our present one, the occasion has undergone many changes, but two things have remained intact: the spirit of things and the turkey.

The noble bird has come a long way from the wild birds the four sportsmen bagged in the forest, and our knowledge of how to cook him for the tenderest, juciest meat with the fullest flavor has likewise increased with the years.

HOUSEWIVES of the Massachusetts Colony would have been delighted to learn, for example, that modern-day cooks roast their turkeys to a remarkable succulence by using a superb seasoning, Ac'cent. The culinary aid adds no flavor of its own, but brings out the delicate sweetness of the white meat and the rich, full flavor of the dark

This Thanksgiving feature corn bread stuffing with your roast turkey. It not only honors this once-a-year feast, but resolves a by-gone feud: the turkey, traditionally from the North, gets along beautifully with traditional Southern stuffing.

ROAST TURKEY

Wash turkey in cold running water. Pat inside dry with paper towels; leave outside moist. Use ½ teaspoon Ac'cent per pound of turkey ready to stuff. Set aside half the total amount for the dressing and gravy; divide the remainder between skin and body cavities. Sprinkle cavities also with salt and pepper. Stuff turkey. Fasten neck skin to body with skewer; push legs under band of skin at tail, or tie to tail.

Place turkey, breast side up, on rack in shallow open roasting pan. If desired, cover with a loose covering or "tent" of aluminum foil. Roast turkey in a slow oven (325°F.) according to timetable.

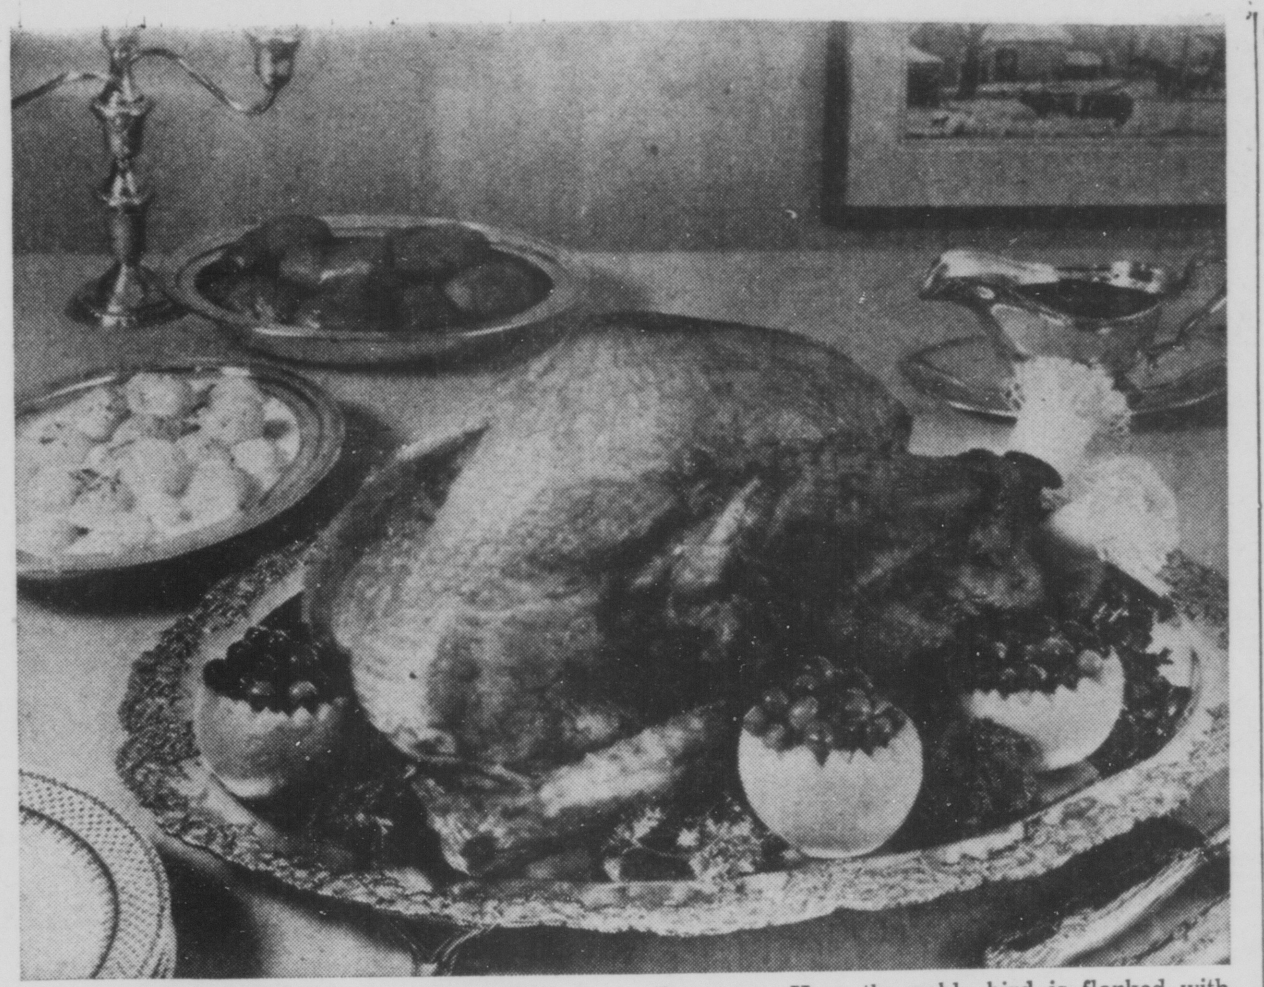
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
¼ cup boiling water or stock

Melt butter in saucepan or skillet. Add onion, celery, salt, poultry seasoning and Ac'cent. Cook until onion is tender, but not brown. Add to corn bread crumbs, bread crumbs and parsley. Add water or stock; toss lightly with a fork until well mixed.

Yield: Enough stuffing for a 12-pound turkey.

Chicken Dinner

Americans ate 38 pounds of poultry per capita last year, and a total of 62½ billion eggs.



A MODERN THANKSGIVING table little resembles the Pilgrims' table of 1621, but the traditional foods, especially the turkey, remain the same. Here the noble bird is flanked with vivid color-cranberries in orange nests and parsley flowerettes.

Holiday Food Tips

Thanksgiving is the holiday when meal planning is most important.

As the nation's feast time and meal time for the year, Thanksgiving honors the pantry. It is a time of turkey, cranberry sauce, and pumpkin . . . of brown gravy, wishbones, and mince meat. Thanksgiving is the mealtime holiday . . . warm remembrance, family and friends.

To help suburban homemakers plan their Nov. 28 menus, Paddock Publications Food Editor Beth Weir has prepared a host of helpful hints and recipes to add a surprise or two to your holiday fare as well as brighten your traditional dishes. Additional Thanksgiving food features also will be found inside this week's Suburban Living section.

IT'S PUMPKIN PIE TIME all year around, but especially traditional on Thanksgiving. A dash of pure vanilla extract (plus the usual spices) gives this mouth-watering delicacy extra goodness.

Thanksgiving 'Twins' Paragon in Desserts

Just as "clothes make the man," a delectable crust makes the chiffon pie. One of the best ideas yet for holding the airy light filling is a crust made of crisp Brazil nuts, now on the market in happy abundance.

Evoke cheers from your family and guests this Thanksgiving by gracing the table with the ultimate in desserts-chiffon pie. Here, two new versions are intensified with the flavors of taffy and mocha. And thanks to the presence of unflavored gelatin in the filling, you can be certain your pie will emerge from the refrigerator at just the perfect, fluffy consistency.

BRAZIL NUT TAFFY PIE
(Crust)

¼ cup butter
¼ cup sugar
1 cup ground Brazil nuts
1 cup ground coconut

Cream together butter and sugar in mixing bowl. Work in Brazil nuts and coconut with the back of wooden spoon or with fingers. Press firmly over bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) 12 to 15 minutes, or until lightly browned. Cool thoroughly before filling. Fill with *Taffy Rum Filling, or any desired chiffon filling.

Taffy Rum Filling:

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup sugar, divided
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
1 cup milk
1/3 cup unsulphured molasses
1½ teaspoons rum flavoring
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Mix together gelatin, 2 tablespoons of the sugar and salt in top of double boiler. Beat together egg yolks and milk; add to gelatin mixture with molasses. Cook over boiling water, stirring often, until mixture is slightly thickened. Remove from heat; stir in rum flavoring. Chill until slightly thicker than consistency of unbeaten egg white.

Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Gradually add remaining 6 tablespoons sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold in gelatin mixture; fold in whipped cream. Turn into baked Brazil nut crust and chill. If desired, garnish with whipped cream and shaved chocolate. Yield: one 9-inch pie.

BRAZIL NUT MOCHA PIE
(Crust)

1/4 cup sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
1½ cups ground Brazil nuts
1 egg white

Grease 9-inch pie plate with butter or margarine; line bottom with waxed paper, then grease paper. Add sugar and salt to ground nuts; mix well. Beat egg white until it holds soft peaks; add to nut mixture; combine thoroughly.

Turn mixture into prepared
1 teaspoon vanilla

pan and press firmly over bottom and sides. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) 12 to 15 minutes, or until lightly browned. Remove from oven and carefully loosen sides of crust from pan with thin bladed knife. Cool 10 minutes; then lift crust from pan.

Remove waxed paper; replace crust in plate. Cool thoroughly before filling. Fill with *Mocha Filling, or any desired chiffon filling.

Mocha Filling:

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon instant coffee
1 tall can (1-2/3 cups) evaporated milk, divided
1 6-ounce package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels

Mix together gelatin, sugar, salt and instant coffee in top of double boiler. Stir in 2/3 cup evaporated milk; add morsels. Place over boiling water, stirring until gelatin and sugar are dissolved and morsels are melted. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla.

Chill, stirring frequently, until mixture is cold and thickened. While gelatin is chilling, pour remaining 1 cup evaporated milk into freezer tray of refrigerator until ice crystals form around edges. Turn into chilled bowl and whip with rotary beater or on high speed of electric mixer until stiff.

Fold gelatine mixture into whipped evaporated milk. Turn into baked Brazil nut crust. Chill until firm. Yield: one 9-inch pie.

TWO FOR THE SHOW—Please your holiday guests with delectable chiffon pies made in Brazil nut crumb crusts. Choose either Mocha Chiffon Pie or Taffy Rum Chiffon Pie — they are both delectable!

'Sum Punkins' Pie Is Traditional

"Enny man who don't luv punkin pie," wrote Josh Billings, 19th Century humorist, "wants watching cluss, for he means to do sumpin' mean the fust good chance he kan git!" There just isn't anybody so mean he wouldn't love this delectable pumpkin pie. One of its surprises is a somewhat unusual dash of pure vanilla extract which creates a wonderfully rich flavor.

VANILLA PUMPKIN PIE

1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon ground mace
3 large eggs
1½ cups mashed cooked pumpkin
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
1 cup milk
Pastry for one-crust 9-inch pie
Vanilla Whipped Cream, optional

Combine the first 5 ingredients. Beat in eggs. Stir in pumpkin and pure vanilla extract. Add milk. Mix well. Turn mixture into a 9-inch pie plate, lined with unbaked pastry. Bake in a preheated hot oven (400 degrees) 50 minutes or until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Serve cold, garnished with Vanilla Whipped Cream, if desired.

Vanilla Whipped Cream: Add 1 tablespoon sugar and ¼ teaspoon pure vanilla extract to ½ cup heavy cream. Beat with a rotary or electric beater until soft, stiff peaks form. Yield: One 9-inch pie.

Give Turkey Crisp Skin

Before placing turkey in the oven to roast, brush all over with Spanish olive oil, using a pastry brush, being careful to moisten legs, wings and breast thoroughly.

Sprinkle very lightly with salt and place a large sheet of aluminum foil loosely over the pan. The oil not only helps the skin to brown evenly, but the turkey meat will retain its moistness.

Sweet Potatoes En Casserole

One of the most complete foods known is the sweet potato. It is a high energy, high vitamin food which contains excellent quantities of minerals. And it can be cooked easily in a variety of ways.

One recipe which enchances its sweetness is the Sweet Potato Casserole. To prepare, cook, mash and place sweet potato pulp in greased baking dish; top with halved marshmallows and broil at low heat until topping is golden brown.

Florida Grapefruit Is Perky Appetizer

Something new has been added in recent decades to the traditional Thanksgiving menu since the Pilgrims celebrated the first holiday in 1621, and that is fresh Florida grapefruit.

The fruit is the perfect choice as a first course at the Thanksgiving table which, in most American homes, is likely to be generously spread with a rich dressing, creamy gravy, several vegetables, and probably more than one pie for dessert. (If you keep up with menus in the news, you will have noted that the grapefruit has been part of the presidential family's Thanksgiving dinner for a number of years.)

A grapefruit half contains so few calories, and its tart-sweet refreshing flavor perks up your taste buds for the variety of foods to follow. Florida's grapefruit crop matured early this year, and the fruit is larger in size than last year.

The halves can be tastefully decorated for holiday appetizers as shown in the photo. Simply dip a small bunch of grapes in unbeaten egg white and shake to remove excess. Roll grapes in a cinnamon-sugar mixture, chill until dry, and place in center of grapefruit half.

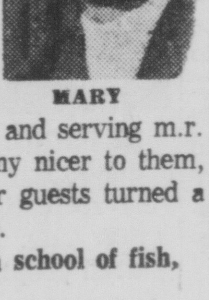
Food Foibles Are Funny

People certainly have peculiar eating habits. Maybe habits isn't the word I am seeking. What I mean is, people certainly have some odd likes and dislikes when it comes to edibles. I don't mean those way out characters who munch on dirt or eat chalk and library paste. Just plain lovable old people.



MARY

Take roast beef and who wouldn't. All my friends, relatives and I belong to the medium rare school. It wouldn't occur to any of us to cook the living daylights out of a sirloin tip or a prime rib. Just once over lightly and let the nice red juice flow where it may. Preferably on mashed potatoes. Consequently when a friend of mine arrounced that she was having dinner guests and serving m.r. roast beef, I thought she just hardly couldn't be any nicer to them, nohow. Imagine her consternation when one of her guests turned a bright green and averted her eyes from the table.

Then there is the fish school. I don't mean a school of fish, I mean those who think fish is a delicacy. Everyone I know likes fish. Except for those whose religion precludes their eating meat on Friday. These people, to a man, hate and detest fish. Personally, I think it is all in their minds. They aren't really facing up to things. Just think, I had a daughter who hated spaghetti so much that she used to hide her plateful in a suitcase. Which, may I say, made for a very messy suitcase when found some weeks later. First time I ever saw moss green spaghetti. It will never catch on. Spaghetti is now her favorite dish. She says staunchly.

There is absolutely no reason for my young to get upset when I have spareribs and sauerkraut. It's good for them. I've tried to bring them up right. They love salad and fruits and casserole dishes and anything with ground beef. Many a meal starts by sauteing an onion and throwing in some ground beef. I just hope that when they are out on their own they don't begin to wonder at the lack of cooked cereal and liver in their formative years.

Debut Dates Back to 1621

Turkey Is Holiday Menu Tradition

"In gratitude for the plenteous harvest of 1621," writes an authority on the first Thanksgiving celebration, "Gov. Bradford, the first governor of Massachusetts Colony, proclaimed a day of thanksgiving. In practical furtherance of his edict, he at once sent out four men in search of game. Thus, early in the history of the day, does the turkey make his appearance."

The four sportsmen, it seems, were remarkably successful in their quest, and returned, "struggling under a burden of wild fowl, principally turkeys, sufficient to meet the wants of the little colony for a week."

MARKED BY the unexpected attendance of 90 friendly Indians, the celebration was lengthened to three days, and featured not only repeated rounds of feasting, but singing, war dances, military drills and a variety of sports and games. From that first Thanksgiving to our present one, the occasion has undergone many changes, but two things have remained intact: the spirit of things and the turkey.

The noble bird has come a long way from the wild birds the four sportsmen bagged in the forest, and our knowledge of how to cook him for the tenderest, juciest meat with the fullest flavor has likewise increased with the years.

HOUSEWIVES of the Massachusetts Colony would have been delighted to learn, for example, that modern-day cooks roast their turkeys to a remarkable succulence by using a superb seasoning, Ac'cent. The culinary aid adds no flavor of its own, but brings out the delicate sweetness of the white meat and the rich, full flavor of the dark.

This Thanksgiving feature corn bread stuffing with your roast turkey. It not only honors this once-a-year feast, but resolves a by-gone feud: the turkey, traditionally from the North, gets along beautifully with traditional Southern stuffing.

ROAST TURKEY

Wash turkey in cold running water. Pat inside dry with paper towels; leave outside moist. Use ½ teaspoon Ac'cent per pound of turkey ready to stuff. Set aside half the total amount for the dressing and gravy; divide the remainder between skin and body cavities. Sprinkle cavities also with salt and pepper. Stuff turkey. Fasten neck skin to body with skewer; push legs under band of skin at tail, or tie to tail.

Place turkey, breast side up, on rack in shallow open roasting pan. If desired, cover with a loose covering or "tent" of aluminum foil. Roast turkey in a slow oven (325°F.) according to timetable.

South India Has Unique Charm

Tourists Neglect An Exciting Area

by JEAN GREGOR

MADRAS, INDIA — India's southland has long been neglected by tourists, yet it holds some of the most exciting and varied attractions anywhere, from 1000-year-old temples to close-up views of wild game in their natural habitat. In language, food, customs, dress, landscape, art and architecture, the south differs so from the north that even a northern Indian finds it unique. For the tourist, the most immediately impressive physical aspect of this area are the great temples, of which there are more to the square mile than anywhere else in the country.

Comparable in a way to the religious and artistic zeal that created the medieval cathedrals of Europe, these are products of a period of building activity that lasted in India from 600 to 1600 A. D.

THE EAST COAST city of Madras is the cultural gateway to the south, linked to all major cities by air, sea and rail. stretching eight miles along the sea, the spacious Marina here boasts the second best beach in the world. Most striking among the many temples is the Kapaliswarar Koil in the suburb of Mylapore, "the abode of peacocks." Legend has it that the goddess Parvati transformed herself into a peacock and worshipped the Hindu god Shiva at this spot to obtain deliverance.

The oldest and most popular form of Indian classical dancing, the Bharata Natyam, had its origin in Madras, and this is still the prime place for visitors to see all forms of dance art. Recitals and concerts are scheduled nearly every weekend, and during the Christmas season, a special art festival draws the best talent from all over the south for competitions. The Bharata Natyam is usually accompanied by the South Indian style of classical music, called Carnatic.

Special sidetrips from Madras are to Mahabalipuram and Kancheepuram. The former is best known for its monolithic rock-hewn monuments of the Pallava dynasty which ruled the state of Madras from the sixth to ninth centuries A. D.

THE SCULPTURES are spread over a wide area, and form some of the most important architectural remains of south India. They should be seen before the midday heat. Kancheepuram, the Golden City, is one of the seven sacred cities of India, with several imposing temples. Only 45 miles southwest of Madras, it is also reputed for its beautiful handwoven silk fabrics which are available in the local shops at reasonable prices.

Historic Mysore, with its attractive wide roads and fine buildings lies to the west and south of Madras. The Palace of the Maharaja alone makes the trip worthwhile, for it is generally conceded to be one of the most beautiful buildings in India. From this city it is convenient to visit Krishnaraj Sagar, with its 40 square mile reservoir adjacent to famed Brindaban Gardens, a fairyland of lawns, shady walks, fragrant flowers and shrubs, and lovely fountains. Numerous other sidetrips provide close-up views of ancient Indian art and ageless scenery.

A striking contrast to southeastern scenery is the tropical garden state of Kerala, encompassing the southernmost west coast of India. Sprinkled with palm-fringed lagoons against a backdrop of green mountains and high jungles, it faces the Arabian Sea with the cities of Cochin and Trivandrum as focal points. Cochin emanates a medieval atmosphere with its narrow twisting streets and crooked houses. The harbor is one of the prettiest in the world, with a view of wooded islands before the sea. From here, excursions along the backwaters of the Malabar Coast give visitors an exciting familiarization with Kerala tropical scenery.

THE MOST unique game sanctuary in the world is located in central Kerala. Known as Periyar, or Thekkady, it is located on the shores of Lake Periyar, with its many hills and promontories rising above the water level and forming a sort of water-course.

Specially appealing here is the method of sightseeing, for tourists are transported through this land of elephants, bison, bears, leopards, tigers, deer, wild boar and others on a comfortable motor launch.

Winding its way past startling, close views of nature in its rawest form, the trip is long, but no one can be immune to its impressiveness. Periyar is easily accessible from Madurai, Cochin and Trivandrum. Accommodations at the sanctuary are fine, so guests can plan to spend the night.

SCENE IN INDIA — When tourists visit the Somnathpur Temple,they're seeing something out of the ordinary. It is merely a sample about 30 miles from Mysore in the south of India, they realizeof the astonishing sights to be seen throughout the country.

Plan Study Of Rivers

WASHINGTON, (UPI)—Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., announced this week that the St. Croix is among 12 rivers with outstanding recreational potential selected for detailed study and possible development.

The Namekagon River which flows from near Trego, Wis., to its confluence with the St. Croix is part of the same study.

A nationwide system of free-flowing rivers would protect and maintain certain streams with high recreation value in their freeflowing state so that unique fishing, canoeing, floating, and other outdoor recreation opportunities will be retained, the senators said.

A JOINT Departments of Interior and Agriculture wild rivers study team will investigate the St. Croix from near Gordon, Wis., downstream along the Wisconsin-Minnesota border to St. Croix Falls.

The study team's final report, due in about a year, could result in recommendations for congressional designation of a national system of rivers.

Umbrella Houses Exhibit at Fair

A building resembling a giant red umbrella floating on a circular wall of water — this description isn't from the pages of science fiction. It is about how visitors will describe the "Triumph of Man" exhibit now almost ready on the site of the 1964 World's Fair in New York.

Staged by The Travelers Insurance Companies to mark the Red Umbrella's centennial, the exhibit will be as striking inside as out. Completely free of inside supporting columns, the giant umbrella-shaped dome soars to form a 63-foot-high ceiling.

UNDER THE Travelers Red Umbrella, visitors will travel through millions of years in only 18 minutes. Ingenious lighting and sound effects will take them from prehistoric times through man's cliff-hanging adventures with many cultures and civilizations to show how growing intelligence and skills have helped him survive in an increasingly complex world. To top it off, the exhibit will wind up with fascinating scientific glimpses of the space age.

Making the "Triumph of Man" exhibit both entertaining and authentic is the job of Harry L. Shapiro, head of the anthropology department of New York's famed Museum of Natural History. In his opinion, "The public is ready for this exhibit—to understand it, to learn from it, to be entertained by it — and this is what a Fair should do."

A fair should also awe visitors—and there is no doubt at all that The Travelers' dramatic umbrella will do just that!

Freighter Can Be Travel Fun

by JEANNE WELCH
Travel Editor

Perhaps many of the so-called facts which this column is about to cite about freighter travel can be contradicted by isolated exceptions, but of two things I can be reasonably dogmatic. Freighters carry no more than 12 passengers (that is governed by law) and freighter travel is, by and large, for people who have more time than money.

Unless you are a gambler at heart, freighter travel is not for you who have only two or three weeks to spend. Freighter travel, obviously, is not for those who want organized entertainment, elaborate meals and luxury accommodations. On the other hand, freighter travel is not exactly spartan. Many freighters boast swimming pools, staterooms are spacious and modern and meals more than ample in quantity if not in variety. I must confess that meals on foreign lines seem to me superior to those of American ships. Dutch, German and Scandinavian lines often offer quite lavish menus.

Since the one category of person most likely to have unlimited time is the retired, freighter travel seems a natural for such. If, however, you can take your purchases with you or have them delivered to your ship, you not only save money but avoid delays and possible damage in shipment.

Even if you do not have unlimited time there is a way to sample freighter travel. That's to take a freighter one way and plan to fly home from whatever port you may find yourself in a few days before your time is up. This method is, of course, more expensive than round trip by freighter. If, however, retirement or unlimited vacation time is years away for you and the leisurely life of a freighter lures you, that method is worth, at least, an investigation.

Investigation and planning, long-range, are integral parts of a freighter trip. Reservations need to be made four to six months in advance, as a rule. Since planning and anticipation are ingredients of all travel, however, make "research" on freighter travel an early winter project. Find out which steamship lines operate in the areas in which you are interested. Most of them have Chicago offices which will be helpful.

Stylist Says Roof Color Comes First

When a woman dresses herself to make a big impression, she usually finishes at the top—with her hat. But when she dresses up her house, it's just the opposite, if she's smart. She starts at the top—with the roof.

There are two good reasons for this, according to color authority William Manker:

1. Since the roof is usually the largest unbroken surface on a house, the choice of roofing color has a major effect on the impression the house makes.

2. Durable roofing such as UL labeled asphalt shingles will give long years of service. Trim and siding will require painting long before a roof needs replacement.

MANKER stresses the importance of coordinating roof, siding and trim colors with architectural style.

"A ranch - type house looks attractive when sidewalls and trim are painted with stained colors of soft gray-green, gray, tan-beige or cream. A brown asphalt single roof goes well with this house," he says.

'A Regency - style home is often painted in subtle colors—soft graygreen, or a gray blend. The roofing should be slate gray.

"A COLONIAL house is usually white with black or dark colored shutters and a slate gray or dark brown roof," Manker says.

"The contemporary modern home," he adds, "can be practically any exterior color. It often has a white or sand - colored low-pitch roof."

by JEAN GREGOR

MADRAS, INDIA — India's southland has long been neglected by tourists, yet it holds some of the most exciting and varied attractions anywhere, from 1000-year-old temples to close-up views of wild game in their natural habitat. In language, food, customs, dress, landscape, art and architecture, the south differs so from the north that even a northern Indian finds it unique. For the tourist, the most immediately impressive physical aspect of this area are the great temples, of which there are more to the square mile than anywhere else in the country.

Comparable in a way to the religious and artistic zeal that created the medieval cathedrals of Europe, these are products of a period of building activity that lasted in India from 600 to 1600 A. D.

THE EAST COAST city of Madras is the cultural gateway to the south, linked to all major cities by air, sea and rail. stretching eight miles along the sea, the spacious Marina here boasts the second best beach in the world. Most striking among the many temples is the Kapaliswarar Koil in the suburb of Mylapore, "the abode of peacocks." Legend has it that the goddess Parvati transformed herself into a peacock and worshipped the Hindu god Shiva at this spot to obtain deliverance.

The oldest and most popular form of Indian classical dancing, the Bharata Natyam, had its origin in Madras, and this is still the prime place for visitors to see all forms of dance art. Recitals and concerts are scheduled nearly every weekend, and during the Christmas season, a special art festival draws the best talent from all over the south for competitions. The Bharata Natyam is usually accompanied by the South Indian style of classical music, called Carnatic.

Special sidetrips from Madras are to Mahabalipuram and Kancheepuram. The former is best known for its monolithic rock-hewn monuments of the Pallava dynasty which ruled the state of Madras from the sixth to ninth centuries A. D.

THE SCULPTURES are spread over a wide area, and form some of the most important architectural remains of south India. They should be seen before the midday heat. Kancheepuram, the Golden City, is one of the seven sacred cities of India, with several imposing temples. Only 45 miles southwest of Madras, it is also reputed for its beautiful hand-woven silk fabrics which are available in the local shops at reasonable prices.

Historic Mysore, with its attractive wide roads and fine buildings lies to the west and south of Madras. The Palace of the Maharaja alone makes the trip worthwhile, for it is generally conceded to be one of the most beautiful buildings in India. From this city it is convenient to visit Krishnaraj Sagar, with its 40 square mile reservoir adjacent to famed Brindaban Gardens, a fairyland of lawns, shady walks, fragrant flowers and shrubs, and lovely fountains. Numerous other sidetrips provide close-up views of ancient Indian art and ageless scenery.

A striking contrast to southeastern scenery is the tropical garden state of Kerala, encompassing the southernmost west coast of India. Sprinkled with palm-fringed lagoons against a backdrop of green mountains and high jungles, it faces the Arabian Sea with the cities of Cochin and Trivandrum as focal points. Cochin emanates a medieval atmosphere with its narrow twisting streets and crooked houses. The harbor is one of the prettiest in the world, with a view of wooded islands before the sea. From here, excursions along the backwaters of the Malabar Coast give visitors an exciting familiarization with Kerala tropical scenery.

THE MOST unique game sanctuary in the world is located in central Kerala. Known as Periyar, or Thekkady, it is located on the shores of Lake Periyar, with its many hills and promontories rising above the water level and forming a sort of water-course.

Specially appealing here is the method of sightseeing, for tourists are transported through this land of elephants, bison, bears, leopards, tigers, deer, wild boar and others on a comfortable motor launch.

Winding its way past startling, close views of nature in its rawest form, the trip is long, but no one can be immune to its impressiveness. Periyar is easily accessible from Madurai, Cochin and Trivandrum. Accommodations at the sanctuary are fine, so guests can plan to spend the night.

SCENE IN INDIA — When tourists visit the Somnathpur Temple,they're seeing something out of the ordinary. It is merely a sample about 30 miles from Mysore in the south of India, they realizeof the astonishing sights to be seen throughout the country.

Plan Study Of Rivers

WASHINGTON, (UPI)—Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., announced this week that the St. Croix is among 12 rivers with outstanding recreational potential selected for detailed study and possible development.

The Namekagon River which flows from near Trego, Wis., to its confluence with the St. Croix is part of the same study.

A nationwide system of free-flowing rivers would protect and maintain certain streams with high recreation value in their freeflowing state so that unique fishing, canoeing, floating, and other outdoor recreation opportunities will be retained, the senators said.

A JOINT Departments of Interior and Agriculture wild rivers study team will investigate the St. Croix from near Gordon, Wis., downstream along the Wisconsin-Minnesota border to St. Croix Falls.

The study team's final report, due in about a year, could result in recommendations for congressional designation of a national system of rivers.

Umbrella Houses Exhibit at Fair

A building resembling a giant red umbrella floating on a circular wall of water — this description isn't from the pages of science fiction. It is about how visitors will describe the "Triumph of Man" exhibit now almost ready on the site of the 1964 World's Fair in New York.

Staged by The Travelers Insurance Companies to mark the Red Umbrella's centennial, the exhibit will be as striking inside as out. Completely free of inside supporting columns, the giant umbrella-shaped dome soars to form a 63-foot-high ceiling.

UNDER THE Travelers Red Umbrella, visitors will travel through millions of years in only 18 minutes. Ingenious lighting and sound effects will take them from prehistoric times through man's cliff-hanging adventures with many cultures and civilizations to show how growing intelligence and skills have helped him survive in an increasingly complex world. To top it off, the exhibit will wind up with fascinating scientific glimpses of the space age.

Making the "Triumph of Man" exhibit both entertaining and authentic is the job of Harry L. Shapiro, head of the anthropology department of New York's famed Museum of Natural History. In his opinion, "The public is ready for this exhibit—to understand it, to learn from it, to be entertained by it — and this is what a Fair should do."

A fair should also awe visitors—and there is no doubt at all that The Travelers' dramatic umbrella will do just that!

Freighter Can Be Travel Fun

by JEANNE WELCH
Travel Editor

Perhaps many of the so-called facts which this column is about to cite about freighter travel can be contradicted by isolated exceptions, but of two things I can be reasonably dogmatic. Freighters carry no more than 12 passengers (that is governed by law) and freighter travel is, by and large, for people who have more time than money.

Unless you are a gambler at heart, freighter travel is not for you who have only two or three weeks to spend. That is because on freighters, understandably enough, freight is the important business at hand. Passengers are just along for the ride and they cannot be sure when the ride will start, exactly how long it will last or even where it will take them. Sailing dates are governed by when the cargo is finally loaded and delays can occur. Itineraries can change en route. It makes for excitement but not for a budgeting of time.

WELCH

Freighter travel, obviously, is not for those who want organized entertainment, elaborate meals and luxury accommodations. On the other hand, freighter travel is not exactly spartan. Many freighters boast swimming pools, staterooms are spacious and modern and meals more than ample in quantity if not in variety. I must confess that meals on foreign lines seem to me superior to those of American ships. Dutch, German and Scandinavian lines often offer quite lavish menus.

Since the one category of person most likely to have unlimited time is the retired, freighter travel seems a natural for such. Writers, artists, students and others also find freighter travel just right for them and as a result your 11 fellow travelers are apt to be interesting companions. At the very least they will be people who like informality and leisure which gives you all at least one thing in common.

Freighter travel, of course, offers substantial savings and not only in the fact that fares are low. No investment in a large wardrobe is required, the staff members who expect tips are few and freighters are usually quite liberal about luggage allowances. If the last clause in the preceding sentence seems to contradict the first clause let me hasten to clarify. For most of us, bringing back loot from foreign countries is a big part of the fun. Clothes, gifts, articles for our home are often available at bargain prices. When freight costs are added, however, the bargain often isn't such a bargain after all. If, however, you can take your purchases with you or have them delivered to your ship, you not only save money but avoid delays and possible damage in shipment.

St. James Worker Compiles Cookbook, Recipes

APPLES AND CURRANTS are used as the topping for the appealing coffee cake being sampled by Susie Schaefer of Arlington Heights. Her mother, Mrs. Raymond F. Schaefer, makes this cake all year 'round, using whatever fruit is in season. This and several other of this good cook's favorites are being featured in the adjoining column, as well as in St. James Women's Guild's cook book on sale this month. (SH

Edits Favorites Of Churchwomen

by LOIS SEILER

As chairman of St. James Women's Guild's cookbook, Mrs. Raymond F. Schaefer undertook the interesting and enormous task of compiling and editing recipes submitted by good cooks for the parish for the church's cookbook.

With the book now in print and available for purchase this month, Mrs. Schaefer can heave a sigh of relief and begin to enjoy the fruits of her labor.

"This book has so many fine recipes that I'll be trying new things for months to come," she commented enthusiastically.

Several of her own specialties are appearing in the book—many of them appropriate for this season of the year, plus a few holiday favorites.

One of these is an all-season fruit coffee cake, which can be made any time of the year, using whatever fruit is in season. During the Fall and Winter months this good cook uses apples as the topping for this cake, while during the summer months peaches, plums or blueberries can be used, blueberries being her favorite.

This recipe was handed down to Mrs. Schaefer by her mother, of whom she gratefully acknowledges "taught me everything I know about cooking."

The cake has a light-textured baking powder batter, and is very simple to put together. It is equally good for breakfast or a late evening snack, and is an appealing item for bake sales, too.

ANOTHER TIMELY Autumn recipe is her hot mulled cider. Spiced with allspice, cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg and sweetened with brown sugar, this is an appealing beverage to serve in the evening with cheese dips and crackers. Mrs. Schaefer adds sherry to this recipe and serves it as a hot punch at Christmas. It can be doubled or tripled conveniently, bottled and re-heated, and will keep for a long time.

For Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners, Mrs. Schaefer likes to serve a delicious frozen cranberry cream salad. Made in two layers, one of whole cranberries, crushed pineapple and lemon juice, the other of sweetened whipped cream topped by chopped nuts, this is a pretty, make-ahead salad that's especially nice for heavy holiday meals or for buffets.

Another Christmas specialty is one which Mrs. Schaefer simply calls "Favorite Holiday Cookies," because they are definitely her family's favorite.

She took a basic recipe and added to it chopped nuts, mixed candied fruit and shredded coconut. After these drop cookies are baked, Mrs. Schaefer shakes them in a bag of powdered sugar. They are attractive in appearance and delightful to taste!

The recipe which this capable cook considers as her favorite dinner is veal scallopini. She uses paper-thin veal and cooks it, as well as onion, garlic and mushrooms, in a savory wine sauce. Topped with sliced, stuffed olives and served with noodles or rice, this Italian dish is delicious company fare.

ONE OF THE most successful easy-do recipes that Mrs. Schafer has ever used is one called "Saucepan Brownies." All of the ingredients are mixed together in one pan, then turned into a baking tin.

"This recipe is truly simple enough for a child to make, especially a kindergarten daughter," Mrs. Schaefer said. "It makes a chewy brownie that can be left plain, dusted with powdered sugar, or iced."

She highly recommends them for last-minute picnics, too, as they don't mess up the kitchen. The Schaefers' daughter, Susie, 6, likes to mix these brownies together, and her brother, Tom, 7, likes to eat them. Baby brother John, 8 months, will undoubtedly enjoy them too, in years to come.

The Schaefer family lives at 1307 N. Mitchell in Arlington Heights. In addition to her activities at St. James Church, Mrs. Schaefer is secretary of the Mundelein College Alumnae Association.

ALL SEASONS FRUIT COFFEE CAKE

2 cups all-purpose flour
4 tablespoons margarine
4 tablespoons sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
¾ cup milk, about

Cut shortening into sifted dry ingredients as for pie dough or muffins.

Beat egg and add enough milk to it to make one cup liquid.

Combine liquid and dry ingredients quickly, stirring briskly. Spread in greased, 9 by 13 inch pan. Cover with fruit topping of your choice and bake at 450 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes.

Blueberry Topping:

1 pint blueberries
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup white sugar
Dash of salt
Dash of cinnamon
Dash of lemon juice
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Mix ingredients together lightly in a small bowl and set aside while preparing cake batter. Spoon on cake and dot with butter.

Apple, peach or plum toppings:

Peel, core or stone fruits. Slice and arrange on top of batter in rows. Sprinkle with ½ cup sugar and some cinnamon and dot with butter. With the apple cake, sprinkle on top a few dried currants which have been soaked in a little hot water and then drained.

HOT MULLED CIDER

½ cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 quarts apple cider
1 teaspoon whole allspice
1 teaspoon whole cloves
3 inches of stick cinnamon
Dash of nutmeg

Combine brown sugar, salt and cider. Add spices. (They can be tied in a cheesecloth bag.) Slowly bring to a boil, cover and simmer 20 minutes.

Remove spices by draining through a sieve. Serve hot with orange slice floaters. A few hole spices can be placed in the bottom of the cups. Sherry may be added to make a hot punch for the holidays. Serves 10.

FROZEN CRANBERRY CREAM SALAD

1 1-pound can whole cranberries
Juice of 1 lemon
1 can (13½ ounces) drained, crushed pineapple
½ pint heavy cream
¼ cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Chopped nuts

Mix together the cranberries, lemon juice and crushed pineapple. Spread in an 8 by 8 inch pan and chill until set.

Whip the cream with the powdered sugar and vanilla. Spread over the first mixture and sprinkle with chopped nuts; freeze firm. Remove from freezer just before serving and cut in squares. Serves 9 to 12.

FAVORITE HOLIDAY COOKIES

½ cup butter
½ cup margarine
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well-beaten
2 cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅔ cup chopped nuts
⅔ cup chopped mixed candied fruits
1 package shredded coconut

Cream shortening and sugar; add eggs and beat. Thoroughly mix in sifted flour and salt. Blend in vanilla, nuts, fruit and coconut.

Drop from teaspoon onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees about 10 to 12 minutes. While warm, shake in bag of powdered sugar. Yield: approximately 10 dozen cookies.

VEAL SCALLOPINI

1 pound veal steak sliced very thin (like bacon, if possible)
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons flour
Dash of pepper
1 clove garlic (or more), slivered
1 medium to large onion, chopped
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sauteed, or
1 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms
½ cup dry white wine, or more
About 8 stuffed green olives, sliced

Melt butter in skillet; add olive oil. Saute garlic and onion until transparent and remove from skillet, leaving fats in skillet. Keep pan hot.

Dip bite-size pieces of veal in combined flour, salt and pepper. Cook quickly until lightly browned in butter and olive oil, turning frequently with fork, about 10 to 15 minutes. Add mushrooms, with liquid, if canned; if fresh, also add ½ cup water plus sauteed onion and garlic.

Cover, simmer 15 minutes. Add wine and cook another 10 to 15 minutes or until meat is fork-tender. A little more water may be added during cooking if mixture seems too dry. Should form a delicious, light brown gravy.

Top with sliced, stuffed olives and serve with noodles or with rice which has been cooked with parsley flakes and a bouillon cube. Serves 4 to 6.

SAUCEPAN BROWNIES

½ cup butter or margarine
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped nuts

Place butter and chocolate in a saucepan and melt together over low heat, stirring frequently. Remove from heat and stir in the remaining ingredients in the order listed.

St. James Worker Compiles Cookbook, Recipes

by LOIS SEILER

As chairman of St. James Women's Guild's cookbook, Mrs. Raymond F. Schaefer undertook the interesting and enormous task of compiling and editing recipes submitted by good cooks for the parish for the church's cookbook.

With the book now in print and available for purchase this month, Mrs. Schaefer can heave a sigh of relief and begin to enjoy the fruits of her labor.

"This book has so many fine recipes that I'll be trying new things for months to come," she commented enthusiastically.

Several of her own specialties are appearing in the book—many of them appropriate for this season of the year, plus a few holiday favorites.

One of these is an all-season fruit coffee cake, which can be made any time of the year, using whatever fruit is in season. During the Fall and Winter months this good cook uses apples as the topping for this cake, while during the summer months peaches, plums or blueberries can be used, blueberries being her favorite.

This recipe was handed down to Mrs. Schaefer by her mother, of whom she gratefully acknowledges "taught me everything I know about cooking."

The cake has a light-textured baking powder batter, and is very simple to put together. It is equally good for breakfast or a late evening snack, and is an appealing item for bake sales, too.

ANOTHER TIMELY Autumn recipe is her hot mulled cider. Spiced with allspice, cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg and sweetened with brown sugar, this is an appealing beverage to serve in the evening with cheese dips and crackers. Mrs. Schaefer adds sherry to this recipe and serves it as a hot punch at Christmas. It can be doubled or tripled conveniently, bottled and re-heated, and will keep for a long time.

For Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners, Mrs. Schaefer likes to serve a delicious frozen cranberry cream salad. Made in two layers, one of whole cranberries, crushed pineapple and lemon juice, the other of sweetened whipped cream topped by chopped nuts, this is a pretty, make-ahead salad that's especially nice for heavy holiday meals or for buffets.

Another Christmas specialty is one which Mrs. Schaefer simply calls "Favorite Holiday Cookies," because they are definitely her family's favorite.

She took a basic recipe and added to it chopped nuts, mixed candied fruit and shredded coconut. After these drop cookies are baked, Mrs. Schaefer shakes them in a bag of powdered sugar. They are attractive in appearance and delightful to taste!

The recipe which this capable cook considers as her favorite dinner is veal scallopini. She uses paper-thin veal and cooks it, as well as onion, garlic and mushrooms, in a savory wine sauce. Topped with sliced, stuffed olives and served with noodles or rice, this Italian dish is delicious company fare.

ONE OF THE most successful easy-do recipes that Mrs. Schaefer has ever used is one called "Saucepan Brownies." All of the ingredients are mixed together in one pan, then turned into a baking tin.

"This recipe is truly simple enough for a child to make, especially a kindergarten daughter," Mrs. Schaefer said. "It makes a chewy brownie that can be left plain, dusted with powdered sugar, or iced."

She highly recommends them for last-minute picnics, too, as they don't mess up the kitchen. The Schaefers' daughter, Susie, 6, likes to mix these brownies together, and her brother, Tom, 7, likes to eat them. Baby brother John, 8 months, will undoubtedly enjoy them too, in years to come.

The Schaefer family lives at 1307 N. Mitchell in Arlington Heights. In addition to her activities at St. James Church, Mrs. Schaefer is secretary of the Mundelein College Alumnae Association.

APPLES AND CURRANTS are used as the topping for the appealing coffee cake being sampled by Susie Schaefer of Arlington Heights. Her mother, Mrs. Raymond F. Schaefer, makes this cake all year 'round, using whatever fruit is in season. This and several other of this good cook's favorites are being featured in the adjoining column, as well as in St. James Women's Guild's cook book on sale this month. (SH

ALL SEASONS FRUIT COFFEE CAKE

2 cups all-purpose flour
4 tablespoons margarine
4 tablespoons sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
¾ cup milk, about

Cut shortening into sifted dry ingredients as for pie dough or muffins.

Beat egg and add enough milk to it to make one cup liquid.

Combine liquid and dry ingredients quickly, stirring briskly. Spread in greased, 9 by 13 inch pan. Cover with fruit topping of your choice and bake at 450 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes.

Blueberry Topping:

1 pint blueberries
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup white sugar
Dash of salt
Dash of cinnamon
Dash of lemon juice
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Mix ingredients together lightly in a small bowl and set aside while preparing cake batter. Spoon on cake and dot with butter.

Apple, peach or plum toppings:

Peel, core or stone fruits. Slice and arrange on top of batter in rows. Sprinkle with ½ cup sugar and some cinnamon and dot with butter. With the apple cake, sprinkle on top a few dried currants which have been soaked in a little hot water and then drained.

HOT MULLED CIDER

½ cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 quarts apple cider
1 teaspoon whole allspice
1 teaspoon whole cloves
3 inches of stick cinnamon
Dash of nutmeg

Combine brown sugar, salt and cider. Add spices. (They can be tied in a cheesecloth bag.) Slowly bring to a boil, cover and simmer 20 minutes.

Remove spices by draining through a sieve. Serve hot with orange slice floaters. A few hole spices can be placed in the bottom of the cups. Sherry may be added to make a hot punch for the holidays. Serves 10.

FROZEN CRANBERRY CREAM SALAD

1 1-pound can whole cranberries
Juice of 1 lemon
1 can (13½ ounces) drained, crushed pineapple
½ pint heavy cream
¼ cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Chopped nuts

Mix together the cranberries, lemon juice and crushed pineapple. Spread in an 8 by 8 inch pan and chill until set.

Whip the cream with the powdered sugar and vanilla. Spread over the first mixture and sprinkle with chopped nuts; freeze firm. Remove from freezer just before serving and cut in squares. Serves 9 to 12.

FAVORITE HOLIDAY COOKIES

½ cup butter
½ cup margarine
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well-beaten
2 cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅔ cup chopped nuts
⅔ cup chopped mixed candied fruits
1 package shredded coconut

Cream shortening and sugar; add eggs and beat. Thoroughly mix in sifted flour and salt. Blend in vanilla, nuts, fruit and coconut.

Drop from teaspoon onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees about 10 to 12 minutes. While warm, shake in bag of powdered sugar. Yield: approximately 10 dozen cookies.

VEAL SCALLOPINI

1 pound veal steak sliced very thin (like bacon, if possible)
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons flour
Dash of pepper
1 clove garlic (or more), slivered
1 medium to large onion, chopped
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sauteed, or
1 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms
½ cup dry white wine, or more
About 8 stuffed green olives, sliced

Melt butter in skillet; add olive oil. Saute garlic and onion until transparent and remove from skillet, leaving fats in skillet. Keep pan hot.

Dip bite-size pieces of veal in combined flour, salt and pepper. Cook quickly until lightly browned in butter and olive oil, turning frequently with fork, about 10 to 15 minutes. Add mushrooms, with liquid, if canned; if fresh, also add ½ cup water plus sauteed onion and garlic.

Cover, simmer 15 minutes. Add wine and cook another 10 to 15 minutes or until meat is fork-tender. A little more water may be added during cooking if mixture seems too dry. Should form a delicious, light brown gravy.

Top with sliced, stuffed olives and serve with noodles or with rice which has been cooked with parsley flakes and a bouillon cube. Serves 4 to 6.

SAUCEPAN BROWNIES

½ cup butter or margarine
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped nuts

Place butter and chocolate in a saucepan and melt together over low heat, stirring frequently. Remove from heat and stir in the remaining ingredients in the order listed.

Pour batter into a greased pan, 8x8x2 inches and bake at 375 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes, until the batter pulls from the sides of the tin. Serve plain or frosted, or dust with powdered sugar. (SH

Carol Owen Picks Turquoise Satin for Her 6 Attendants

(Jenart

Six attendants in full-length turquoise satin gowns, plus a flower girl and ring bearer, preceded Miss Carol Jean Owen down the aisle of St. James Catholic Church in Arlington Heights Oct. 12 when she became the bride of Gerald George King. Both graduates of Arlington High School, the bride is the daughter of the William Owens, 1452 N. Yale, Arlington Heights, and the groom is the son of the Harold Kings, 1230 Forrest, Arlington Heights.

Two bouquets decorated the altar for the 3 p.m. service during which Mr. Owen gave his daughter in marriage. The bride's gown was of white taffeta peau de soie and chantilly lace. Fashioned chapel length, the gown featured a demure neckline with chantilly and pearl trim, long sleeves and a small bow highlighting the back of the skirt. The chantilly also trimmed the bodice and the front and back panels of her gown. Her silk illusion 3-tiered veil fell from a pearl and aurora borealis 2-tiered wedding cake crown, and she carried a bouquet of white and pink roses and stephanotis.

MAID OF honor was Diane Bishop of Chicago and bridesmaids were the bride's cousin, Donna Johnson of Kalamazoo, the groom's sister-in-law, Gail King of Arlington Heights, and Cindy Paice, also of Arlington Heights. Junior bridesmaids were the bridal pair's cousins, Susan Johnson of Kalamazoo and Cheryl King of Arlington Heights.

In nylon organza, also turquoise, was 4-year-old Lori Herrmann of Arlington Heights, cousin of the bride, who served as flower girl. Lori carried a basket of rose petals while the older attendants carried bouquets of pink and white roses.

Ring bearer was 6-year-old Robert Herrmann of Arlington Heights, also a cousin of the bride, who wore a miniature tuxedo and carried a satin pillow.

MATCHING THE turquoise and pink color scheme of the attendants' gowns were the mothers of the bridal couple. Mrs. Owen chose a turquoise bengaline with matching accessories while Mrs. King was in pink brocade with matching accessories. Both mothers wore white orchid wrist corsages.

William King of Arlington Heights served as his brother's best man and ushers were Timothy Lonergan, Harold Rice and Robert Olson.

Palatine Fireman's Hall was the scene of the reception where a buffet was served to 250 guests. The couple then left on a Florida honeymoon, spending two weeks in Daytona Beach, Fla. Since the end of October they have been at home at 1443 N. Race, Arlington Heights.

The new Mrs. King is employed in Arlington Heights by Andersons Dress Shop and the groom by Cockrell Coffee Service. (S

Teacher Secrets of Discipline Revealed

The curious mother asked her daughter why she drank her milk in kindergarten, and not at home. The child replied, "When the teacher says 'drink your milk,' she means it!"

Hard-pressed parents, painfully aware that the only thing children can wear out faster than shoes are mothers and fathers, might take a tip from the teacher who has under her guidance every day not just one or two or even three youngsters but as many as 30.

American Education Week might be a good time for parents to ask the teacher how he or she-does it. After all the teacher, like parents, has not only children but livestock to complicate classroom matters-guppies, turtles, goldfish, perhaps a 12-inch alligator. And the teacher gets asked even more questions than parents do: "Can I get a drink? Go to the bathroom? Sharpen my pencil? Sit with Kathy? Be first? Collect the papers? Get my lunch money: When is gym? Recess? What do we do next?"

AND YET the classroom atmosphere remains relatively calm, the pupils keep busy, learning proceeds in a businesslike way. What are teacher's discipline secrets? Here are some, compiled by the National Education Association:

—Naturalness, a businesslike attitude, consistency, a liberal helping of praise over blame, warmth, and a clear, pleasant voice — these are attributes of good teachers.

—Wise teachers know they're not in any popularity contest to win over their charges. Pupils may enjoy and have fun with the "just pals" kind of teacher, but they respect the take-charge types. How many times have you heard your youngster say: "I'm in Miss Kane's class. She's tough but she's swell."

—The teacher plays fair, knowing that children have a keen sense of justice. She tries to avoid situations where pupils have to lie; above all she tries to let a student save face when he's in a tight spot.

THE TEACHER is appreciative of good work and effort, remembering that when a virtue is praised, a vice may disappear. The teacher uses often 15 "magic" words: "I am proud of you;" "What do you think?" "If you please. . ." "Thank you;" and "We."

—The teacher stays calm in class, never looking or acting worried, for the class senses insecurity and acts accordingly. By a calm attitude, she robs unusual episodes of the excitement instigators hope to arouse.

—In explaining rules, the teacher tries to help students understand the reasons behind the rules. . .and the reasons must be sound ones.

—The teacher is interested in each child—she looks interested and she listens hard to what he is saying. Watch a good teacher sometime listening to a child: she looks at the child doing the talking, shows interest, leans forward slightly, asks questions, doesn't interrupt with her own views, asks him to tell more.

—MOST OF ALL, the teacher believes in each student, and builds up his feelings of worth with jobs, honors, a kindly compliment, a smile.

—Lastly the teacher maintains a lively sense of humor with her class—not the broad-joke kind, but the light-touch humor. It helps a lot, for the teacher, like parents, has to cope with little girls who are not always made of sugar and spice, and with little boys like this:

Little boys like noise, mangy
cats, tame rats
Wiggly worms—and thrive
on germs;
So teachers must be calm and take germs
Worms, rats, cats, and noise
Along with little boys. (S

Carol Owen Picks Turquoise Satin for Her 6 Attendants

Six attendants in full-length turquoise satin gowns, plus a flower girl and ring bearer, preceded Miss Carol Jean Owen down the aisle of St. James Catholic Church in Arlington Heights Oct. 12 when she became the bride of Gerald George King. Both graduates of Arlington High School, the bride is the daughter of the William Owens, 1452 N. Yale, Arlington Heights, and the groom is the son of the Harold Kings, 1230 Forrest, Arlington Heights.

Two bouquets decorated the altar for the 3 p.m. service during which Mr. Owen gave his daughter in marriage. The bride's gown was of white taffeta peau de soie and chantilly lace. Fashioned chapel length, the gown featured a demure neckline with chantilly and pearl trim, long sleeves and a small bow highlighting the back of the skirt. The chantilly also trimmed the bodice and the front and back panels of her gown. Her silk illusion 3-tiered veil fell from a pearl and aurora borealis 2-tiered wedding cake crown, and she carried a bouquet of white and pink roses and stephanotis.

MAID OF honor was Diane Bishop of Chicago and bridesmaids were the bride's cousin, Donna Johnson of Kalamazoo, the groom's sister-in-law, Gail King of Arlington Heights, and Cindy Paice, also of Arlington Heights. Junior bridesmaids were the bridal pair's cousins, Susan Johnson of Kalamazoo and Cheryl King of Arlington Heights.

In nylon organza, also turquoise, was 4-year-old Lori Herrmann of Arlington Heights, cousin of the bride, who served as flower girl. Lori carried a basket of rose petals while the older attendants carried bouquets of pink and white roses.

Ring bearer was 6-year-old Robert Herrmann of Arlington Heights, also a cousin of the bride, who wore a miniature tuxedo and carried a satin pillow.

MATCHING THE turquoise and pink color scheme of the attendants' gowns were the mothers of the bridal couple. Mrs. Owen chose a turquoise bengaline with matching accessories while Mrs. King was in pink brocade with matching accessories. Both mothers wore white orchid wrist corsages.

William King of Arlington Heights served as his brother's best man and ushers were Timothy Lonergan, Harold Rice and Robert Olson.

Palatine Fireman's Hall was the scene of the reception where a buffet was served to 250 guests. The couple then left on a Florida honeymoon, spending two weeks in Daytona Beach, Fla. Since the end of October they have been at home at 1443 N. Race, Arlington Heights.

The new Mrs. King is employed in Arlington Heights by Andersons Dress Shop and the groom by Cockrell Coffee Service. (S

Teacher Secrets of Discipline Revealed

The curious mother asked her daughter why she drank her milk in kindergarten, and not at home. The child replied, "When the teacher says 'drink your milk,' she means it!"

Hard-pressed parents, painfully aware that the only thing children can wear out faster than shoes are mothers and fathers, might take a tip from the teacher who has under her guidance every day not just one or two or even three youngsters but as many as 30.

American Education Week might be a good time for parents to ask the teacher how he- or she-does it. After all the teacher, like parents, has not only children but livestock to complicate classroom matters-guppies, turtles, goldfish, perhaps a 12-inch alligator. And the teacher gets asked even more questions than parents do: "Can I get a drink? Go to the bathroom? Sharpen my pencil? Sit with Kathy? Be first? Collect the papers? Get my lunch money: When is gym? Recess? What do we do next?"

AND YET the classroom atmosphere remains relatively calm, the pupils keep busy, learning proceeds in a businesslike way. What are teacher's discipline secrets? Here are some, compiled by the National Education Association:

—Naturalness, a businesslike attitude, consistency, a liberal helping of praise over blame, warmth, and a clear, pleasant voice — these are attributes of good teachers.

—Wise teachers know they're not in any popularity contest to win over their charges. Pupils may enjoy and have fun with the "just pals" kind of teacher, but they respect the take-charge types. How many times have you heard your youngster say: "I'm in Miss Kane's class. She's tough but she's swell."

—The teacher plays fair, knowing that children have a keen sense of justice. She tries to avoid situations where pupils have to lie; above all she tries to let a student save face when he's in a tight spot.

THE TEACHER is appreciative of good work and effort, remembering that when a virtue is praised, a vice may disappear. The teacher uses often 15 "magic" words: "I am proud of you;" "What do you think?" "If you please. . ." "Thank you;" and "We."

—The teacher stays calm in class, never looking or acting worried, for the class senses insecurity and acts accordingly. By a calm attitude, she robs unusual episodes of the excitement instigators hope to arouse.

—In explaining rules, the teacher tries to help students understand the reasons behind the rules. . .and the reasons must be sound ones.

—The teacher is interested in each child—she looks interested and she listens hard to what he is saying. Watch a good teacher sometime listening to a child: she looks at the child doing the talking, shows interest, leans forward slightly, asks questions, doesn't interrupt with her own views, asks him to tell more.

—MOST OF ALL, the teacher believes in each student, and builds up his feelings of worth with jobs, honors, a kindly compliment, a smile.

—Lastly the teacher maintains a lively sense of humor with her class—not the broad-joke kind, but the light-touch humor. It helps a lot, for the teacher, like parents, has to cope with little girls who are not always made of sugar and spice, and with little boys like this:

Little boys like noise, mangy
cats, tame rats
Wiggly worms—and thrive
on germs;

'Magic Mountain' Is First In Series of Children's Theatre

A world of fairyland, magic and dancing spirits will come to life on the stage of St. Viator High School's auditorium Saturday, Dec. 7, when Pinocchio Players Guild presents the first in a series of three children's plays sponsored by Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club.

First production in the winter series, produced by Chicago's only touring company of professionals specializing in children's theater, will be "The Magic Mountain." An original fairy tale, utilizing time-tested folklore elements to build a fast-moving, colorful play, "The Magic Mountain" is directed to the 6 to 12 age group.

The story revolves about a prince and a princess, fleeing from their respective courts, who meet in front of a dark cave in the mysterious woods, where things are not what they seem. Here they encounter two enchanted old people and are caught up with them in a conflict between the scheming cave spirit and the free spirit of the mountain.

WHEN THIS struggle eventually results in transforming the old people into their rightful selves, the youthful audience will be as surprised as the prince and princess by the sudden change.

The conflicts of the two spirits are told in dance. Joanne Craig, formerly a featured dancer at the Diamond Horseshoe in New York and veteran of "Ado Annie" in the national company of "Oklahoma," is choreographer and will dance the part of the mountain spirit.

Also playing a dual role in both production and cast, Rosemary Thurber Sauers, daughter of the late James Thurber, portrays the enchanted old woman and is responsible for the play's sets, designed with more than a touch of her father's whimsy.

Another professional touch is added by the beautiful costumes designed by Edythe Brearley, costumier to Salt Creek summer theatre, and to various stars of the legitimate stage.

"MAGIC MOUNTAIN" scenes such as this will intrigue children Saturday, Dec. 7, when they attend the first in a series of three children's plays presented by Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club. Pinocchio Players Guild is presenting the play in St. Viator High School Auditorium.

DIRECTOR OR "The Magic Mountain," and of all Guild productions, is Marie Brady, graduate of Goodman Theatre and veteran of all forms of dramatic activities. Her most recent appearances were this summer at Melody Top where she appeared with Jaye P. Morgan and Sheila and Gordon McCrea. Previously she had appeared at Second City, in films and on television.

"Literally thousands of children from Milwaukee to Gary and elsewhere in central Illinois have enjoyed the magic of living theatre through productions of the Pinocchio Players Guild. The Guild has helped scores of civic and charitable organizations raise funds for worthwhile causes through its productions," commented Arlington Juniors.

BOYS AND girls of the northwest suburbs are being offered the chance to attend the three play series by Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club. "The Magic Mountain" Dec. 7 will be followed by "Huckleberry Finn" Jan 18 and "The Shoemaker's Wife" March 14. Two performances will be held on each of the scheduled Saturday dates at St. Viator High School auditorium.

Season tickets for 10:30 a.m. or 1:30 p.m. performances are still available, but are moving rapidly, according to Mrs. John Rustemeyer, play series chairman. For tickets and further information, parents may phone Mrs. John Johnston at 255-8950 north of Northwest Hwy. and Mrs. Donnell Wagner at 255-7094 to the south.

Local philanthropies and Illinois Federation of Women's Club state projects such as scholarships for teachers of exceptional children will benefit from proceeds Arlington Juniors earn from sale of season tickets for the 3-play series. (S

PLENTY . . . when it comes to carpeting

EVERYTHING . . . when the name is ACRILAN

What those words "Carpet Pile of Acrilan Acrylic Fiber" really say is — go ahead, pick the color and style of any Mohawk carpet that appeals to you. You won't be fooled by appearances. There's more to the beauty of a carpet made of Acrilan than meets the eye!

Thanks to Acrilan they retain their "good looks" despite heavy traffic. Colors stay vibrant — and that luxurious Acrilan pile remains thicker, more resilient underfoot much longer than good carpet wool.

An Acrilan carpet is a pleasure to live with. Its special chemical composition makes it a strong discourager to dirt. And its moisture absorption is so low that a quick wipe with a sponge is usually enough to take up most ordinary household spills! Besides, Acrilan is moth-proof, mildew-proof, non-allergenic, and free from static electricity.

Carpeting is a good investment — if you invest wisely. If you put your money into beauty that can take it, beauty that will last. In other words, a Mohawk carpet that bears the label "Carpet Pile Made of Acrilan Acrylic Fiber."

'Magic Mountain' Is First In Series of Children's Theatre

A world of fairyland, magic and dancing spirits will come to life on the stage of St. Viator High School's auditorium Saturday, Dec. 7, when Pinocchio Players Guild presents the first in a series of three children's plays sponsored by Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club.

First production in the winter series, produced by Chicago's only touring company of professionals specializing in children's theater, will be "The Magic Mountain." An original fairy tale, utilizing time-tested folklore elements to build a fast-moving, colorful play, "The Magic Mountain" is directed to the 6 to 12 age group.

The story revolves about a prince and a princess, fleeing from their respective courts, who meet in front of a dark cave in the mysterious woods, where things are not what they seem. Here they encounter two enchanted old people and are caught up with them in a conflict between the scheming cave spirit and the free spirit of the mountain.

WHEN THIS struggle eventually results in transforming the old people into their rightful selves, the youthful audience will be as surprised as the prince and princess by the sudden change.

The conflicts of the two spirits are told in dance. Joanne Craig, formerly a featured dancer at the Diamond Horseshoe in New York and veteran of "Ado Annie" in the national company of "Oklahoma," is choreographer and will dance the part of the mountain spirit.

Also playing a dual role in both production and cast, Rosemary Thurber Sauers, daughter of the late James Thurber, portrays the enchanted old woman and is responsible for the play's sets, designed with more than a touch of her father's whimsy.

Another professional touch is added by the beautiful costumes designed by Edythe Brearley, costumier to Salt Creek summer theatre, and to various stars of the legitimate stage.

"MAGIC MOUNTAIN" scenes such as this will intrigue children Saturday, Dec. 7, when they attend the first in a series of three children's plays presented by Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club. Pinocchio Players Guild is presenting the play in St. Viator High School Auditorium.

DIRECTOR OR "The Magic Mountain," and of all Guild productions, is Marie Brady, graduate of Goodman Theatre and veteran of all forms of dramatic activities. Her most recent appearances were this summer at Melody Top where she appeared with Jaye P. Morgan and Sheila and Gordon McCrea. Previously she had appeared at Second City, in films and on television.

"Literally thousands of children from Milwaukee to Gary and elsewhere in central Illinois have enjoyed the magic of living theatre through productions of the Pinocchio Players Guild. The Guild has helped scores of civic and charitable organizations raise funds for worthwhile causes through its productions," commented Arlington Juniors.

BOYS AND girls of the northwest suburbs are being offered the chance to attend the three play series by Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club. "The Magic Mountain" Dec. 7 will be followed by "Huckleberry Finn" Jan 18 and "The Shoemaker's Wife" March 14. Two performances will be held on each of the scheduled Saturday dates at St. Viator High School auditorium.

Season tickets for 10:30 a.m. or 1:30 p.m. performances are still available, but are moving rapidly, according to Mrs. John Rustemeyer, play series chairman. For tickets and further information, parents may phone Mrs. John Johnston at 255-8950 north of Northwest Hwy. and Mrs. Donnell Wagner at 255-7094 to the south.

Local philanthropies and Illinois Federation of Women's Club state projects such as scholarships for teachers of exceptional children will benefit from proceeds Arlington Juniors earn from sale of season tickets for the 3-play series. (S

Dried, Fresh Fruit Make Most of Duckling Flavor

Small families might do well to consider serving roast duckling with a luscious orange and dried fruit stuffing for Thanksgiving. The succulent bird is a treat now available all over the country thanks to the growth of the duckling industry. Distributed frozen and ready to cook, ducks add interesting variety to menu planning all year 'round.

In this recipe, a fruit stuffing is substituted for a heavy bread stuffing, and the result is delicious. Florida orange slices are combined with packaged mixed dried fruits and undiluted Florida orange juice concentrate. During roasting, the fruit stuffing flavors mingle and enhance the flavor of the duck itself.

Good fresh oranges will be available for a variety of uses throughout the winter months, and, of course, the frozen Florida orange juice concentrate is always available—to reconstitute for juice or to use as a flavoring ingredient in sauces, dessert toppings, and other foods.

ROAST DUCKLING WITH FRUIT STUFFING

- 4 to 5 pound duckling (ready to cook weight)
- 2 Florida oranges
- 1 package (11 ounces) mixed dried fruits (about 2 cups)
- 6 tablespoons undiluted frozen Florida orange juice concentrate, divided
- 2 tablespoons honey

Prepare duckling for roasting; sprinkle cavity with salt and pepper. To prepare oranges, cut off peel round and round, spiral fashion. Go over fruit again to remove any remaining white membrane. Slice oranges crosswise about ¼-inch thick; cut slices in halves. Combine with dried fruits and four tablespoons of the orange juice concentrate; stuff duckling.

Fasten neck skin over back of duckling; close body opening with poultry pins or skewers and lace with string. Place bird on rack in shallow pan, breast up; roast until duckling is tender and done, about 2½ to 3 hours. During last ½ hour roasting time, brush duckling several times with mixture of honey and remaining 2 tablespoons orange juice concentrate. Yield: 4 or 5 servings.

Note: Reconstitute remaining orange juice concentrate with 3 times the amount of water to use as juice.

Dried, Fresh Fruit Make Most of Duckling Flavor

Small families might do well to consider serving roast duckling with a luscious orange and dried fruit stuffing for Thanksgiving. The succulent bird is a treat now available all over the country thanks to the growth of the duckling industry. Distributed frozen and ready to cook, ducks add interesting variety to menu planning all year 'round.

In this recipe, a fruit stuffing is substituted for a heavy bread stuffing, and the result is delicious. Florida orange slices are combined with packaged mixed dried fruits and undiluted Florida orange juice concentrate. During roasting, the fruit stuffing flavors mingle and enhance the flavor of the duck itself.

Good fresh oranges will be available for a variety of uses throughout the winter months, and, of course, the frozen Florida orange juice concentrate is always available—to reconstitute for juice or to use as a flavoring ingredient in sauces, dessert toppings, and other foods.

ROAST DUCKLING WITH FRUIT STUFFING

- 4 to 5 pound duckling (ready to cook weight)
- 2 Florida oranges
- 1 package (11 ounces) mixed dried fruits (about 2 cups)
- 6 tablespoons undiluted frozen Florida orange juice concentrate, divided
- 2 tablespoons honey

Prepare duckling for roasting; sprinkle cavity with salt and pepper. To prepare oranges, cut off peel round and round, spiral fashion. Go over fruit again to remove any remaining white membrane. Slice oranges crosswise about ¼-inch thick; cut slices in halves. Combine with dried fruits and four tablespoons of the orange juice concentrate; stuff duckling.

Fasten neck skin over back of duckling; close body opening with poultry pins or skewers and lace with string. Place bird on rack in shallow pan, breast up; roast until duckling is tender and done, about 2½ to 3 hours. During last ½ hour roasting time, brush duckling several times with mixture of honey and remaining 2 tablespoons orange juice concentrate. Yield: 4 or 5 servings.

Note: Reconstitute remaining orange juice concentrate with 3 times the amount of water to use as juice.

Giblet Gravy

Giblets: Place turkey heart, liver, neck and gizzard in saucepan and cover with water. Add 2 teaspoons Ac'cent, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper, onion slice and a celery stalk. Cook slowly for about 2 to 3 hours until tender.

Cut up the cooked giblets. The giblets and their broth are used in the gravy along with the pan drippings.

Gravy: Remove turkey from roasting pan to a platter. Skim most of the fat from the pan juices. Add giblet broth and enough water to make 3 cups of liquid to the juices remaining in the roasting pan. Add diced giblets. Stir until the stock reaches a boil, making sure to stir in all the brown crustiness from the bottom of the roasting pan.

To thicken the gravy, spoon 5 tablespoons of the fat skimmed from the turkey into a saucepan. Stir in 5 tablespoons flour and heat the mixture, stirring, until it begins to brown. Pour in the prepared turkey stock and stir over medium heat until the gravy thickens. (SH

ZESTY APPLE GINGER soup makes an interesting Thanksgiving first course. Stock is made from the turkey's giblets, and convenient cans of pie-sliced apples make for easy preparation. The same apple slices go into a tart-savory stuffing for the bird.

Ginger Soup, Dressing Are Enhanced by Canned Apples

Of course it is turkey and trimmings for holiday dinners but why not add a unique touch, too, with temptingly different homemade soups. Here is a recipe for one perfected by an adventurous cook that will prove itself appetizing to even the most conservative of palates.

Caroline Comstock, director of consumer service for Comstock Foods, evolved this intriguing apple ginger soup. She says, "Coming from a family which has lived for generations in upstate New York in the heart of the apple-growing country, I've always been fascinated with the wonderful versatility of this fruit that can be used for every course from soup to nuts. My admiration has increased with the development of our modern form of apple. It comes now in cans already peeled and cored, its succulent uniform slices unsweetened and ready for use in any kind of recipe. These slices hold their juice and shape and don't mush down in cooking with the result that eye-appealing texture isn't lost."

Today's apple ginger soup uses stock made from the turkey giblets, combined with canned chicken stock or stock made from bouillon cubes. An apple-prune stuffing recipe for a 12-pound turkey is also given.

APPLE GINGER SOUP

3 quarts stock made from turkey giblets, and chicken stock from cans or bouillon cubes
2 cans (1 lb. 4 oz. each) pie-sliced apples (unsweetened, just as they come from the can)
1 teaspoon ground ginger

Simmer giblets in 1 quart water. Add 2 quarts chicken stock from bouillon cubes or cans. Combine ingredients. Bring to a boil and simmer 20 minutes.

APPLE-PRUNE STUFFING

(12 cups stuffing for a 12-pound turkey)

2 packages stuffing mix
1 cup melted butter or margarine
1½ cups chopped onion
1½ cups chopped celery
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1½ cups water
1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) pie-sliced apples (unsweetened, just as they come from the can)
1 cup chopped pitted uncooked dried prunes

Combine all ingredients and blend well. Stuff mixture loosely into the body cavity and neck of the turkey. Roast turkey as usual. A guide for the amount of stuffing required for a turkey is 1 cup of stuffing for each pound of dressed weight of turkey.

New Boneless Turkey Adds New Dimension to Shopping

Family-sized boneless turkey rolls add a new dimension to shopping this Thanksgiving season.

Hugh Johnson, University of Illinois extension poultry science specialist, reports that these turkey rolls, now commonly available, weigh from four to seven pounds, or about the right amount for a small or medium-sized family. They contain all meat, usually a combination of white and dark, so there is little waste.

In addition, this turkey can be stored conveniently and handled and carved easily. And it requires less oven space than a whole bird.

FOR MANY families, however, Thanksgiving would not be a festive holiday without a large, golden-brown whole turkey.

Johnson points out that this year's "gobbler crop" is about the same size as last year's. So look again for favorable prices. Many stores will feature whole birds for 39 cents or less per pound. Boneless rolls will cost about 2½ times as much, but they are equally good buys when figured on an edible meat basis.

Buy a turkey according to your serving needs. For whole birds weighing less than 12 pounds, allow ¾ to one pound per serving. When buying a medium or heavy bird, 12 pounds or over, allow ½ to ¾ pound per serving. For boneless rolls, allow ½ pound for each person.

WHEN BUYING a whole turkey, be sure it is plump and has a broad breast, indicating ample white meat. It should also be compact, have smooth-textured skin and be free from discoloration and bruises.

Check to make sure that the wrapping around frozen birds is intact at the time of purchase. Broken wrappings let in air and thus lower the quality of the bird.

Thaw frozen birds in the original wrapping in the refrigerator, allowing about two days. Do not thaw at room temperature. If you must hasten defrosting, place the bird in cold water and change the water frequently.

Add Charm to Holiday Tables with Flowers

Because some calendar printers differed, florists have been getting calls from customers who are confused about the date of Thanksgiving. The correct date is Thursday, Nov. 28, and not the 21st as circled on many calendars.

The later date is ideal for the maximum production of the flowers available for festive tables. A majority of the centerpieces will be made with dainty pompon chrysanthemums, roses or carnations, with the large conventional chrysanthe mums or gladiolas favored for focal points on buffet tables.

EVEN AT THE first Thanksgiving feast, the women settlers decorated their tables with autumn leaves and fruits they found in America and the precious bits of holly and greens they had stored in the holds of the ships which brought them to the New Land.

Modern day hostesses can rely on the colorful blooms nurtured for the occasion in warm greenhouses and augmented with fall leaves, foliages and Indian corn.

The proper care will lenghten the life of your Thanksgiving flowers. If your centerpiece has been already arranged in a bowl or vase by the florist, be sure to check at once to see whether the container has water. Add the flower preservative if sent with the flowers. Keep in a cool place for a few hours—overnight in a cool room is even better. When adding water, make it hot—as hot as your hand will stand; the reason: hot water travels faster and goes up the stem to the bloom itself.

NEW "FOAM" materials are being used by the florists to insure the longest possible life of flowers. Blooms are stemmed in these moisture retaining substances, and fresh water is added from time to time in the home.

Another tip: the heavier, woody stems of chrysanthemums should not be cut but rather broken off or crushed near the end to assist the absorption of water. The stembreak is also best for freshening pompon mums, those bunched floral buttons and daisy-like blooms we sometimes call "baby chrysanthemums." However, stems of roses and carnations should get a diagonal cut with a sharp knife before going into water.

FOR THE THANKSGIVING BUFFET, Nov. 28, cocktail table or end table has three yellow mums arranged with yellow and bronze pompon mums, stemmed in moisture-holding product which eliminates water in container. Accessories are cat-tails, gourds and Indian corn.

Today's Tender Turkeys Need Less Cooking Time

Homemakers no longer need to roast turkey as long as many cookbooks say.

As a result of developments in production practices, turkeys are more tender than they used to be, explains Mrs. Glenna Lamkin, University of Illinois home economist.

She suggests the following guide, based on purchase weight, for estimating roasting time for stuffed birds that are fresh or completely thawed: 6 to 8 pounds, 2 to 2½ hours; 8 to 12 pounds, 2½ to 3 hours; 12 to 16 pounds, 3 to 3¾ hours; 16 to 20 pounds, 3¾ to 4½ hours, 20 to 24 pounds, 4½ to 5½ hours.

Adjust cooking time to individual birds.

ROAST TURKEYS in a preheated oven at 300 to 325 degrees F. The turkey is done when a meat thermometer placed in the center of the inside thigh muscle or the thickest part of the breast muscle registers about 185 degrees F. Also, the thickest part of the drumstick feels very soft when pressed between protected fingers.

Time roasting accurately. Prolonged cooking makes a dry bird.

Two ways to keep the turkey breast juicy during cooking are to (1) brush on fat at the beginning of cooking and baste occasionally with pan drippings; or (2) keep a fat-saturated cheesecloth over the breast.

SOME PEOPLE feel that the breast dries out less when the turkey is placed breast down for one-half to two-thirds of the cooking and then turned over for the rest of the time to even up the brownness. This is easier to do with small birds than with large ones.

Two Bethel Girls Receive Majority

Bethel 103, Jobs Daughters, Arlington Heights, at its meeting last Wednesday, Nov. 13, awarded the Majority Degree to Miss Carol Alletto and Miss Prisca Stiarwalt, as these girls are now 20 years of age. They were also presented with Certificates of Honorary Membership. When Bethel 103 was organized, these two girls were recorder and chaplain, respectively. Miss Alletto is a sister of the honored Queen, Miss Dixie Alletto.

A proficiency test was conducted by Miss Nancy Heilig, Junior Past Honored Queen, for 17 members. All passed and were awarded Proficiency certificates.

THE HONORED Queen announced that Bethel 103 will be in an escort at the public installation of Arlington Heights Masonic Lodge, Saturday evening, Nov. 23, at the Masonic Temple.

Sunday morning, Nov. 24, the girls will gather at the Prospect Heights Community Church at 10:45 a.m., to attend church service together.

At the next stated meeting Wednesday, Nov. 27, there will be election of officers and the Honored Queen and other officers will give term reports. (S

ZESTY APPLE GINGER soup makes an interesting Thanksgiving first course. Stock is made from the turkey's giblets, and convenient cans of pie-sliced apples make for easy preparation. The same apple slices go into a tart-savory stuffing for the bird.

Ginger Soup, Dressing Are Enhanced by Canned Apples

Of course it is turkey and trimmings for holiday dinners but why not add a unique touch, too, with temptingly different homemade soups. Here is a recipe for one perfected by an adventurous cook that will prove itself appetizing to even the most conservative of palates.

Caroline Comstock, director of consumer service for Comstock Foods, evolved this intriguing apple ginger soup. She says, "Coming from a family which has lived for generations in upstate New York in the heart of the apple-growing country, I've always been fascinated with the wonderful versatility of this fruit that can be used for every course from soup to nuts. My admiration has increased with the development of our modern form of apple. It comes now in cans already peeled and cored, its succulent uniform slices unsweetened and ready for use in any kind of recipe. These slices hold their juice and shape and don't mush down in cooking with the result that eye-appealing texture isn't lost."

Today's apple ginger soup uses stock made from the turkey giblets, combined with canned chicken stock or stock made from bouillon cubes. An apple-prune stuffing recipe for a 12-pound turkey is also given.

APPLE GINGER SOUP

3 quarts stock made from turkey giblets, and chicken stock from cans or bouillon cubes
2 cans (1 lb. 4 oz. each) pie-sliced apples (unsweetened, just as they come from the can)
1 teaspoon ground ginger

Simmer giblets in 1 quart water. Add 2 quarts chicken stock from bouillon cubes or cans. Combine ingredients. Bring to a boil and simmer 20 minutes.

APPLE-PRUNE STUFFING

(12 cups stuffing for a 12-pound turkey)

2 packages stuffing mix
1 cup melted butter or margarine
1½ cups chopped onion
1½ cups chopped celery
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1½ cups water
1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) pie-sliced apples (unsweetened, just as they come from the can)
1 cup chopped pitted uncooked dried prunes

Combine all ingredients and blend well. Stuff mixture loosely into the body cavity and neck of the turkey. Roast turkey as usual. A guide for the amount of stuffing required for a turkey is 1 cup of stuffing for each pound of dressed weight of turkey.

New Boneless Turkey Adds New Dimension to Shopping

Family-sized boneless turkey rolls add a new dimension to shopping this Thanksgiving season.

Hugh Johnson, University of Illinois extension poultry science specialist, reports that these turkey rolls, now commonly available, weigh from four to seven pounds, or about the right amount for a small or medium-sized family. They contain all meat, usually a combination of white and dark, so there is little waste.

In addition, this turkey can be stored conveniently and handled and carved easily. And it requires less oven space than a whole bird.

FOR MANY families, however, Thanksgiving would not be a festive holiday without a large, golden-brown whole turkey.

Johnson points out that this year's "gobbler crop" is about the same size as last year's. So look again for favorable prices. Many stores will feature whole birds for 39 cents or less per pound. Boneless rolls will cost about 2½ times as much, but they are equally good buys when figured on an edible meat basis.

Buy a turkey according to your serving needs. For whole birds weighing less than 12 pounds, allow ¾ to one pound per serving. When buying a medium or heavy bird, 12 pounds or over, allow ½ to ¾ pound per serving. For boneless rolls, allow ½ pound for each person.

WHEN BUYING a whole turkey, be sure it is plump and has a broad breast, indicating ample white meat. It should also be compact, have smooth-textured skin and be free from discoloration and bruises.

Check to make sure that the wrapping around frozen birds is intact at the time of purchase. Broken wrappings let in air and thus lower the quality of the bird.

Thaw frozen birds in the original wrapping in the refrigerator, allowing about two days. Do not thaw at room temperature. If you must hasten defrosting, place the bird in cold water and change the water frequently.

Add Charm to Holiday Tables with Flowers

Because some calendar printers differed, florists have been getting calls from customers who are confused about the date of Thanksgiving. The correct date is Thursday, Nov. 28, and not the 21st as circled on many calendars.

The later date is ideal for the maximum production of the flowers available for festive tables. A majority of the centerpieces will be made with dainty pompon chrysanthemums, roses or carnations, with the large conventional chrysanthemums or gladiolas favored for focal points on buffet tables.

EVEN AT THE first Thanksgiving feast, the women settlers decorated their tables with autumn leaves and fruits they found in America and the precious bits of holly and greens they had stored in the holds of the ships which brought them to the New Land.

Modern day hostesses can rely on the colorful blooms nurtured for the occasion in warm greenhouses and augmented with fall leaves, foliages and Indian corn.

The proper care will lenghten the life of your Thanksgiving flowers. If your centerpiece has been already arranged in a bowl or vase by the florist, be sure to check at once to see whether the container has water. Add the flower preservative if sent with the flowers. Keep in a cool place for a few hours—overnight in a cool room is even better. When adding water, make it hot—as hot as your hand will stand; the reason: hot water travels faster and goes up the stem to the bloom itself.

NEW "FOAM" materials are being used by the florists to insure the longest possible life of flowers. Blooms are stemmed in these moisture retaining substances, and fresh water is added from time to time in the home.

Another tip: the heavier, woody stems of chrysanthemums should not be cut but rather broken off or crushed near the end to assist the absorption of water. The stembreak is also best for freshening pompon mums, those bunched floral buttons and daisy-like blooms we sometimes call "baby chrysanthemums." However, stems of roses and carnations should get a diagonal cut with a sharp knife before going into water.

FOR THE THANKSGIVING BUFFET, Nov. 28, cocktail table or end table has three yellow mums arranged with yellow and bronze pompon mums, stemmed in moisture-holding product which eliminates water in container. Accessories are cat-tails, gourds and Indian corn.

Today's Tender Turkeys Need Less Cooking Time

Homemakers no longer need to roast turkey as long as many cookbooks say.

As a result of developments in production practices, turkeys are more tender than they used to be, explains Mrs. Glenna Lamkin, University of Illinois home economist.

She suggests the following guide, based on purchase weight, for estimating roasting time for stuffed birds that are fresh or completely thawed: 6 to 8 pounds, 2 to 2½ hours; 8 to 12 pounds, 2½ to 3 hours; 12 to 16 pounds, 3 to 3¾ hours; 16 to 20 pounds, 3¾ to 4½ hours, 20 to 24 pounds, 4½ to 5½ hours.

Adjust cooking time to individual birds.

ROAST TURKEYS in a preheated oven at 300 to 325 degrees F. The turkey is done when a meat thermometer placed in the center of the inside thigh muscle or the thickest part of the breast muscle registers about 185 degrees F. Also, the thickest part of the drumstick feels very soft when pressed between protected fingers.

Time roasting accurately. Prolonged cooking makes a dry bird.

Two ways to keep the turkey breast juicy during cooking are to (1) brush on fat at the beginning of cooking and baste occasionally with pan drippings; or (2) keep a fat-saturated cheesecloth over the breast.

SOME PEOPLE feel that the breast dries out less when the turkey is placed breast down for one-half to two-thirds of the cooking and then turned over for the rest of the time to even up the brownness. This is easier to do with small birds than with large ones.

Cook fresh or thawed turkey promptly. Stuff it just before cooking. Leaving a stuffed bird at room temperature overnight invites food poisoning.

Here's HAUGH to Plan a Party

Holiday-time Birthday Child Will Like 'Unbirthday' Party

By DOLORES Haugh

Goodie, Goodie Gumdrops, it's birthday party time for a pre-schooler. And, what a fine time of year NOT to have a birthday. Yes, if your child is a pre-Christmas child it seems the gifts always read "for your birthday and Christmas." So have an unbirthday party early and have him enjoy a separate "special" day.

Invitations

Let your child help make the invitations by outlining a big gumdrop on a double fold white notepaper. Let the host, or hostess, color these in bright colors. When finished, cover gumdrop with white glue and sprinkle on transparent glitter so that it resembles sugar.

Inside write the following:

Goodie, Goodie Gumdrops
Im going to have a party.
It is not on my birthday,
Now aren't I a Smarty?

An unbirthday can be a lot of fun,

So won't you help me celebrate and come?

State time, place and then prepare for the festivities.

PREPARATION

Be sure you have a table for play set up, covered with newspaper and have on hand several bags of gum drops in various shapes and sizes, together with toothpicks. Have the round ones as they are heavier and less apt to break. Also have ribbon and cloves.

Let each child make his name tag by "building something with gumdrops such as snowmen, elves, turkeys or other animals by using the long-shaped gumdrops and pipecleaners for tails, antlers or noses, cloves for eyes. The imagination of the child is put to use here and they love it. You may supervise and of course, count on "eating" candy so there will still be material to work with.

You, too, may tie the ribbons on the creations and let each child make two or three items to take home. If the children are older and in Cub Scouts, or Blue Birds, or Brownies, set several aside for hospital tray favors but make sure each one takes a couple home, too.

MENU

With all the candy which will be consumed, you need not plan anything more than animal cookies and milk or birthday cake and cocoa. The cake should be large with four layers and tint each layer a different color. Ice with white frosting and decorate the top with the animals or elves that your own child has made, or have fun and create a few yourself. Ice cream cups with gumdrop flowers add color too.

DECORATIONS

Use the cake for the centerpiece at the table and pick up one or two of the gumdrop colors for the table. We have chosen red and green because of the nearness of Christmas, but red, white and blue, yellow and green, or any accents would be appropriate. Use a bright red runner on each side of the table. This may be crepe paper or felt, even percale as you can use it later for the Christmas holidays.

Use white plates and green napkins. At each place, have the name and let each child choose which creation will be his "marker." Tie a big bow of red and green on the birthday child's chair. Make him a cardboard gold crown and top each point with a gumdrop jewel. Have the guests place their gifts in a large cardboard box which is covered with white paper and has gumdrops spelling out the child's name.

So, like Alice in Wonderland, have a very Unbirthday Party and your child will cheer, "Goodie, Goodie Gumdrops!"

Two Ovens Now Asked In Ranges

What's the most popular type of range today?

According to Mrs. Mary Ann Kruce, California kitchen designer, it's electric and has a separate, automatically controlled oven — preferably a double oven.

Next most popular with her clients are the free-standing electric ranges with a built-in look. Mrs. Kruce, who is the owner of Western Kitchens in Pomona, says the new high-oven units with surface cooking elements flush with the counter are especially appreciated by families who rent.

THEY LOOK built-in but can be taken along when the family moves, she explains.

Asked if women have accepted automatically in their kitchen appliances. Mrs. Kruce replied, "Yes, certainly. For one thing, controls on the new electric ranges have been greatly simplified — they're easy to use.

"On and off oven timers are particularly wanted by women who work or are socially active and away from home often.

Mrs. W. Kirchhoff Is Speaker At Luncheon Welfare Program

"WE'LL BE COUNTING candy wreaths instead of sheep tonight" agree St. Jude members as they work on items to be displayed at their annual Christmas bazaar Saturday, Nov. 30 from 2 to 7 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 1 from 2 to 7 p.m. in the school hall. Booths will include a Country Store, jewelry, handicraft, toys, sewing, white elephants, religious goods and holiday items. Games and refreshments will also be on the program. (S

The woman volunteer in today's welfare program is not a neurotic who's bored with playing bridge and has decided to "do good."

So said Mrs. Walter Kirchhoff of Mount Prospect, at the recent Lutheran Health and Welfare Forum at the Pick-Congress Hotel. Mrs. Kirchoff is a member of the board of trustees of Lutheran General and Deaconess Hospitals, Park Ridge.

"In serving our hospitals, churches and related institutions, we are employing a modern form of the diaconate," Mrs. Kirchhoff pointed out. "Our Deaconess programs have always been guided by the words of Jesus."

Mrs. Kirchhoff discussed ways women are now serving the agencies of the Lutheran Church. In a Lutheran school, volunteers serve as secretarial help. Women present monthly programs in a Lutheran home for the aged. More than 700 women belong to a service league of a Lutheran hospital.

"OUR institutions, through their auxiliary organizations, provide these women with an opportunity to serve by directing and using their various talents in many areas of need," Mrs. Kirchhoff said.

In setting up an auxiliary, Mrs. Kirchhoff stressed the need to remember that the motivation for auxiliary work should always be Christian service.

"In planning programs for auxiliary meetings, it should be borne in mind that this is a service group, not a social group," she said. "To give her service efficiently where it is needed, a volunteer must be oriented and trained."

"WITH MORE and more leisure time on our hands, we should strive to discover the role which gives us the sense of true fulfillment for which all men and women yearn. Then we will be able to say in the words of Jesus "I have accomplished the work that You have given Me to do."

Mrs. Kirchhoff was the first president of the Lutheran General Hospital Service League, Park Ridge. Under her direction, the program has received national acclaim for utilizing volunteer help in 45 areas of the hospital. (S

Telford to Talk On Pulpit Role

Ken Telford will speak on "The Role of the Pulpit" at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Countryside Unitarian - Universalist Fellowship meeting house, Ela and Algonquin Roads, Palatine.

Telford is chairman of the Fellowship board and a professor of philosophy and humanities at Wright Junior College.

Modern Etiquette

Q. I thanked each guest personally for gifts received at a birthday party in my honor. Am I supposed also to write thank-you notes to each of these persons?

A. This is not necessary.

Do not say, "He spends the major portion of his time in his office." It is better to say, "the GREATER PART of his time."

Do not say, "We are going to try and stop them." Say, "try TO stop them."

Inveterate Fund Volunteer Hears All Varieties of 'No'

by BETTY AINSLIE

Once upon a time Pop said "I'd be glad to help out" when he was called to assist on a fund-raising drive. Since then he has joined the small minority who manage to be included in every campaign where aid is needed.

He's No. 1 man on the domestic aid parade and likely to be involved in pledge drives, fund raisings, literature distribution and political stumping for the right candidate of the right party.

Now of all the thankless, uninteresting but necessary jobs—collection drive workers probably face more closed doors and telephone "no's" than any other organized throng.

They spend countless hours on the phone and walk untold miles soliciting help for some worthy cause or other. They do all of this for free, expect no thanks, but do hope for a little cooperation from fellow villagers.

"DON'T TELL me he got roped in on another drive," said a friend who had been trying to get a call into our home for over an hour only to get the busy signal.

"He's sure a sucker to get involved," she finished when I'd explained that Pop was helping on a collection drive.

"Someone has to do it," I finished lamely. But it suddenly dawned on me that someone really did have to do these things we all dislike. That there were miles of paper work and countless hours of organization behind every new building community improvement or political campaign.

That somewhere, nearly every night in every thriving village some group was meeting gratis to further plans for a new and important change to the face of their community.

"IF WE'RE going to live in a growing suburb, I guess the only thing we can do is help out now and then to make sure it grows the right way," agreed a neighbor when Pop asked him to help.

It is sure a delightful and heart-lifting surprise to find someone who will agree without a long and detailed argument to do some collecting. I guess we're all so satisfied and weary of drives of all kinds which touch our flat purses that we've an automatic "no" for anyone who calls begging for help.

We're all gorged on pledge drives, building funds or appeals and we'd all like to find a place with adequate buildings, big enough schools and churches so we'd never be asked to solicit money from a neighbor in this Utopia. But if we like the place others will too and the vicious circle of fund raising starts again.

"THEY'RE ALL worthy causes," declared a down the street neighbor. "Just where can you draw the line? That's why I give a small amount to them all. But it's got so I hate to see my neighbor ring my front doorbell with a sheaf of papers or an envelope in his hand. Me do the collecting? No sir! I haven't time."

"Now it's not that a man is a sucker or a fall guy for helping. Maybe he feels seriously that he's been pretty lucky so far in this business of worldly goods and health, and can help with either time or money for something he feels might be beneficial to him or his neighbor.

"We do need larger and more churches, increased educational buildings and bigger hospitals I suppose," said another collector, "But this is the last time. I've called so many to help me that I've a book of excuses hoarded which I'm all set to use when I'm called again to lend a hand."

NOW POP is just one member of this small band who have all my sympathy, but little help.

When he calmly replaces the phone after the third straight turn down in a row and merely says, "They've more cotton pickin' ways to say no." I'd have an answer for all those too busy, uninterested, traveling all the time, crabby refusers.

I'd hang up with the words, "A pox on you." It would express my feelings exactly. Probably liven up this campaign organizing business and guarantee to end my career for all time as a valuable fund raiser.

BICYCLES PROVIDE transportation for Mrs. George Beacham and Mrs. Harley Drake as they deliver fashion show ticket to Mrs. Andrew Van Sickle. Sponsored by Hasbrook Civic Association, the luncheon-show will be held Sunday, Dec. 1, in Old Orchard Country Club with clubmembers modeling ensembles from Baskins' Randhurst Store. Mrs. Richard Walker, CL 5-2295, is chairman of the affair.

New Car Salesmen Make Pitch to Women

by JODY CARR

Once you find your way through the maze of balloons, crepe paper and assorted advertising whoop-de-do, you'll discover some perfectly marvelous 1964 cars in the show rooms. What's more, if you enjoy attentive salesmanship, you're in luck. This year's advertising sales pitch leans more to women than ever before, and the sales force is on the job.

CARR

There seems to be little doubt in anyone's mind . . . from top management to the sales floor level. . .that it's a woman's world, after all. Women, who represent a million sales a year, will be a major factor in making decisions on family car purchases this year and for years to come.

One successful salesman I know watches husband and wife teams as they drive up to the showroom. "If the husband opens the door for his wife, she's really the boss," he says. "But even if she gets out by herself," he adds, "she'll still have the final say in regard to fabric, color and comfort . . . AND. . .she holds the purse strings." So, heads up, girls. You wouldn't get this much attention if you were shopping for a full length chinchilla.

IN THE AREA of feminine-type pleasures, the new cars have hit an all time high. Colors are dazzling. Upholstery and carpeting can match the exterior color of the car, compliment it or blend with it. . . to suit your fancy. Vinyl is the watchword, because women like it.

Clear plastic floor mats reveal to all observers the richness of your carpeting. There are gimmicks to protect high heels and doors that open backward to help you maintain your poise. Soft, shell-shaped seats are as relaxing as your chaise lounge. There's more head room. . .more leg room, too.

Some seat belts retract when not in use. . .lights remind you to use them. Steering wheels swing away for your convenience; rear deck lids open from the driver's seat; side mirrors adjust from inside. There are child-proof power door locks—even wiper-washers for rear windows on station wagons.

JUST FOR FUN, I visited several showrooms. Sales people filled my arms with brochures depicting the luxury of their products and my head with the vision of admiring eyes watching a "new me" encased in a plush, beautifully designed, expertly colored limousine.

All this catering to the female of the species wasn't done overnight. Automotive experts know how many women are driving now, and they aim to please. In the final analysis, I guess they've done it. The new cars are the most magnificent ever. . .in every price range. Whether you're after an economy model or a big one, a sports car or a station wagon, the sky's the limit in luxury. (S

"In planning programs for auxiliary meetings, it should be borne in mind that this is a service group, not a social group," she said. "To give her service efficiently where it is needed, a volunteer must be oriented and trained."

"WITH MORE and more leisure time on our hands, we should strive to discover the role which gives us the sense of true fulfillment for which all men and women yearn. Then we will be able to say in the words of Jesus "I have accomplished the work that You have given Me to do."

Mrs. Kirchhoff was the first president of the Lutheran General Hospital Service League, Park Ridge. Under her direction, the program has received national acclaim for utilizing volunteer help in 45 areas of the hospital. (S

Q. I thanked each guest personally for gifts received at a birthday party in my honor. Am I supposed also to write thank-you notes to each of these persons?

A. This is not necessary.

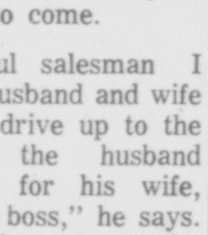
Do not say, "He spends the major portion of his time in his office." It is better to say, "the GREATER PART of his time."

Do not say, "We are going to try and stop them." Say, "try TO stop them."

New Car Salesmen Make Pitch to Women

by JODY CARR

Once you find your way through the maze of balloons, crepe paper and assorted advertising whoop-de-do, you'll discover some perfectly marvelous 1964 cars in the show rooms. What's more, if you enjoy attentive salesmanship, you're in luck. This year's advertising sales pitch leans more to women than ever before, and the sales force is on the job.



CARR

There seems to be little doubt in anyone's mind . . . from top management to the sales floor level. . .that it's a woman's world, after all. Women, who represent a million sales a year, will be a major factor in making decisions on family car purchases this year and for years to come.

One successful salesman I know watches husband and wife teams as they drive up to the showroom. "If the husband opens the door for his wife, she's really the boss," he says. "But even if she gets out by herself," he adds, "she'll still have the final say in regard to fabric, color and comfort . . . AND. . .she holds the purse strings." So, heads up, girls. You wouldn't get this much attention if you were shopping for a full length chinchilla.

IN THE AREA of feminine-type pleasures, the new cars have hit an all time high. Colors are dazzling. Upholstery and carpeting can match the exterior color of the car, compliment it or blend with it. . . to suit your fancy. Vinyl is the watchword, because women like it.

Clear plastic floor mats reveal to all observers the richness of your carpeting. There are gimmicks to protect high heels and doors that open backward to help you maintain your poise. Soft, shell-shaped seats are as relaxing as your chaise lounge. There's more head room. . .more leg room, too.

Some seat belts retract when not in use. . .lights remind you to use them. Steering wheels swing away for your convenience; rear deck lids open from the driver's seat; side mirrors adjust from inside. There are child-proof power door locks—even wiper-washers for rear windows on station wagons.

JUST FOR FUN, I visited several showrooms. Sales people filled my arms with brochures depicting the luxury of their products and my head with the vision of admiring eyes watching a "new me" encased in a plush, beautifully designed, expertly colored limousine.

All this catering to the female of the species wasn't done overnight. Automotive experts know how many women are driving now, and they aim to please. In the final analysis, I guess they've done it. The new cars are the most magnificent ever. . .in every price range. Whether you're after an economy model or a big one, a sports car or a station wagon, the sky's the limit in luxury. (S

Homemaker Finalists to Meet with 2 Panels

Keynoter to Talk About Delinquency

by HESTER KLINE

The opinions of 35 top homemakers from across the country will be sampled by two panels of experts, as the second annual National Suburban Homemaking Conference opens today (Thursday) in Chicago's Drake Hotel.

Paddock Publications will be represented in the forum by Nancy Bristol Manos, selected by the local judges for the honor of being the northwest suburbs' Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

Mrs. Manos received her local award last Wednesday evening in a ceremony at the Northwest YMCA, after the other 39 entries in the Paddock Publications search had been introduced, and received certificates of merit.

THERE WERE four finalists who, in addition, received silver dishes engraved to commemorate the occasion. Chosen by the judging panel of Dr. Frank J. Smith, Mrs. William Darnall, Mrs. Noble J. Puffer, Mrs. Frank Chesnick and Mrs. John Corliss for special recognition were Mrs. Robert Winsell of Rolling Meadows, Mrs. Marius Ktsanes of Roselle, Mrs. Donald Gardner of Mount Prospect and Mrs. Bern Neiweem of Wheeling.

The forums at the national conference will follow a unique format. Panelists will poll the audience, rather than the usual reverse procedure.

How goods and services can contribute to improved homemaking and better buying practices will be the subject of this morning's session.

Panelists who will engage the homemakers in an exchange of ideas and opinions include prominent members from the fields of medicine, finance, retail and food.

IN THE afternoon, the homemakers will express their opinion as to how well they are being served by their suburban newspapers, by their women's magazines, by radio and television.

One by one in alphabetical order the homemakers will be called from the conference, to be interviewed by the national judges who on Friday will announce their selection of the National Suburban Homemaker of the Year, who will receive a $5,000 cash award from the American Dairy Association.

Keynote speaker at tomorrow's session will be Inspector Edward C. Kemper Jr. of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, whose subject will be "Our Great Responsibilities."

SPECIFICALLY, he will discuss the new awareness that juvenile delinquency is becoming a suburban problem, highlighting the purpose of the conference, which is to honor American family living and recognize the important role of the homemaker in the suburban community.

The conference, sponsored by the Suburban Press Foundation, will include besides the local winners in their respective communities, newspaper publishers and their staffs, and representatives of industry, business, civic and professional organizations.

A CHECK FOR $50 is presented by Robert Y. Paddock, president of the Suburban Press Foundation, Inc. and vice president of Paddock Publications, to Mrs. Warren Weed (right) for nominating the winner in the local search for Suburban Homemaker of the Year, Mrs. Nancy Manos (center). At left is Mrs. Hester Kline, Suburban Homemaker editor, who presided at the Nov. 13 award ceremony. The local search was sponsored by Paddock publications and the Suburban Press Foundation, which also sponsors the national award. (Staff Photo)

IMPORTANCE OF SUBURBAN homemakers to family, civic, and economic well-being of northwest communities was emphasized by Charles E. Hayes, executive editor of Paddock Publications 14 suburban newspapers, in an address before more than 200 guests at the Suburban Homemaker of the Year award ceremony. "We are grateful and proud of this opportunity to offer special recognition to these 40 outstanding women representative of homemakers throughout northwest suburbs," Hayes told the group at the Northwest Suburban YMCA. Here Is Text of Letter Nominating Top Homemaker

Paddock Publications 1963 Suburban Homemaker of the Year was nominated by a neighbor, Mrs. Warren C. Weed of 410 Mueller St., Arlington Heights. For nominating the winning homemaker, Mrs. Weed received a $50 award. Here is the text of her letter in behalf of Mrs. Nancy Bristol Manos:

Mueller Street is not too well known to most residents of Arlington Heights. After all, it's the shortest street in town. But on this street there lives the greatest homemaker in all of Suburbia.

Her name is Nancy Manos.

Single-handedly, Nancy is raising four wonderful children. She's been both mother, provider and what have you for the past three years. She's been a leader in our community and on our street. She has the courage and fortitude of three ordinary people. She's an exceptionally warm and wonderful person.

THE TWO older boys have taken part in the park program for the past several years. Scouting is greatly encouraged by Nancy, with Margaret (the only girl) being a brownie and the older boys being members of the boy scouts.

Nancy is always neatly dressed, clean and well-groomed. This, together with her smile and charming manner, makes her a person we all admire and try to imitate. She has managed to keep herself in top physical condition . . . in spite of the major surgery that she has had to suffer through early this year.

Her activities in the community are many and varied. She is extremely active in the First Methodist Church, where she has donated much of her time and talent (she's a commercial artist). Most recently she has served as art chairman on the board of the Ridge School PTA. She is "up" on current events and on local issues. Everytime we have an election you will find Nancy on the phone encouraging people to get out and vote . . . especially when a bond issue or other community improvements are at stake.

BECAUSE she is the breadwinner, Nancy must be a good manager. Feeding, sheltering and clothing her family of four is a big job indeed. She manages to do all of this with only her resources to call upon. In all the time I've known her, she has never complained about finances, but I know her money problems must be a great burden.

Each meal is a delightful new project in the Manos house. Everyone seems to be included. Likes and dislikes are taken into consideration. More than likely, dessert will include something that Tony (her five-year-old son) had a hand in making. All of Nancy's and Margaret's clothes are handmade. Nancy's talents run from shorts to winter coats. The Manos house is old, but Nancy has done her best to make it very livable. She has wallpapered, painted and even done minor repairs.

Nancy is the focal point around which her children revolve. There is deep affection and mutual respect between her and her children . . . a beautiful relationship.

TO DEMONSTRATE Nancy's spunk: she had to undergo a very serious operation back in February. The operation was urgent; she had no time to shore up her resources. As the sole support of her family, this was a cruel blow. The operation was a success. Nancy was out of work for eight weeks. For six of those eight weeks she had to report to the hospital for x-ray treatment. She withstood all of this alone . . . except for what moral support her friends could provide. And through it all she has shown only deep belief in God and her charming smile.

You at Paddock can do no better than to select Nancy Manos for your honor of Suburban Homemaker of the Year. W- on Mueller Street have elected Nancy to this spot already, and she will always remain our Suburban Homemaker of the Year. (S

Debt Consolidation Services Explained

Have you seen ads reading, "My Creditors Are Driving Me Nutty — I'm calling Miss So-and-So" and wondered what kind of business was being conducted? The Chicago Better Business Bureau has made it it's business to find out — it's called "debt consolidating."

Sometimes it is referred to as "debt pro-rating" or "debt pooling." But, by any name, the business is a financial counseling service designed to help individuals snowed under by bills.

About 45 debt consolidating firms operate in Chicagoland where the business originated 30 years ago. These businesses are presently licensed and regulated by the state. Most firms operate without complaint. But, as in most industries, there have been a few fast buck boys who entered the field hoping to trade on reputations of established, reliable firms.

Basically, debt consolidation is a carefully planned, week-by-week debt payment program administered by a credit counselor. He is a conscientious adviser for hard-pressed families.

A DEBT consolidator requires his customer to sign a contract agreeing to make regular payments to him. He then pays a portion of the money to the customer's several creditors, according to the arrangements made. The customer is obliged to sign a promissory note for the fee charged by the debt consolidator for his service. This fee is in addition to the customer's other debts and can range up to 15 per cent of his total indebtedness.

This contract gives the debt consolidator authority to seek from the customer's creditors an extension of time, a reduction in the amount of each payment or other such compromise as may be acceptable to the creditors.

A few debt consolidators have been known to imply to potential customers that all bills would be paid immediately. Over-due payment notices and wage assignments would be a thing of the past. All money probems would be forgotten and everything would be roses.

ETHICAL FIRMS do not give their customers this false sense of security. The reverse is true. They endeavor to impress their clients with the seriousness of financial obligation.

Debt consolidators do not lend money. Reputable firms plainly inform their customers that all money used to pay creditors comes from the customer alone.

Customers should also understand that debt consolidators do not assume legal responsibility for all money owed by its customers. That obligation remains the responsibility of the customer.

The premises of one Chicago firm was found suddenly closed and the office abandoned. Ninety-seven clients were left stranded. Having paid in sizable amounts, they were unable to obtain an accounting of money paid in or paid out. As the owner had skipped town, these customers found they had not only lost money, but could not find out where they stood financially.

ANOTHER FIRM which promised financial relief for its customers was found to be unavailable to customers when wage assignments were received. Its phones had been equipped with an answering device which requested the caller to leave his name and number, the call would be returned. Customers sometimes tried 10 days before contacting the firm.

Anyone contemplating having a debt consolidator handle his bills should check the firm carefully. If he does not, he might find his financial affairs in a much worse condition than before he signed the contract.

North Western to Sell 'Santa' Fares

The Chicago and North Western Railroad announces that it will again offer its special 30-ent "Santa Claus" tickets for children, good for a round trip to Chicago from any one of 53 communities served by the railroad's suburban trains in northern Illinois and Wisconsin.

The 30-cent fares will apply to trips on every Saturday preceding Christmas from Nov. 30 to Dec. 21, inclusive. The "Santa Claus" tickets also will be good for trips to Chicago on Sunday, Dec. 1, when the annual Christmas Parade is held on State Street.

The flat 30-cent round-trip "Santa Claus" tickets are for children between 5 and 12 years of age. Each child or group of youngsters must be accompanied by an adult with a regular ticket. Children under five ride free.

Because many of the suburban station ticket offices are closed on weekends, the "Santa Claus" tickets must be purchased in advance. These tickets are already available at all suburban ticket offices and in the downtown Chicago terminal. These tickets will not be sold on trains. (BB

Frederking Gets Postal Promotion

Ted R. Frederking of Arlington Heights, a postal supervisor for 13 years, recently was promoted to the post of superintendent of training, for the Chicago Post Office.

The training unit supervises the preparation of postal personnel to hadle various details involving post office operations.

Frederking, of 1011 N. Haddow Ave, has been an area resident for more than 30 years. He entered the postal service in 1937 as a clerk and worked on a number of assignments before being made a supervisor in 1951. He was assigned to the personnel division where he remained until his recent promotion.

The new training unit superintendent was honored with an achievement award for his development of a personnel form widely used in the department.

Frederking and his wife Edith have been married for 27 years. He is a member of St. James Church in Arlington Heights, a member of the National Association of Postal Supervisors and American Legion, Post 401.

VA Homes For Sale In Area

Homes owned by the Veterans Administration in the north and northwest metropolitan Chicago area are now available on very nominal credit terms, according to John B. Naser, manager of the VA regional office.

There are 431 homes that can be had at prices ranging from $12,000 to $20,000, Naser said.

All properties will be shown by real estate brokers who will provide prospective buyers with information they need and want.

A small down payment and monthly payment of less than rent are inducements to attract the buyer, Naser said. Some of these houses may be purchased for as little as $100 down with no closing costs. The current interest rate is five and one-half percent with terms up to 30 years.

The VA requires the buyer to furnish a hazard insurance policy for his protection, Naser explained. There is no charge for financing.

Properties available have been checked in comparison with similar homes in the community and prices set to represent today's values, he said. The homes are in good condition. (BB

AN INTERIOR ROOM DISPLAY, set up by the Henry M. Goodman Furniture Co. of the Golf-Mill Shopping Center, Niles, was among the prize winners at the Home Furnishings and Electrical Living Room Show held recently at McCormick Place. A close look reveals this is not the ordinary glamorous traditional dining room, but that the table and chairs are cut in half and placed against mirrors to get a complete room effect in half the space. A similar device was used in bedroom. (BB

Farming a Year-Round Market for Petroleum

TULSA, OKLA., (UPI) — The first icy blast of winter may be bitter to most, but to the petroleum industry it means the start of the profitable home heating season.

Fuel oil, natural gas and liquid petroleum gas (LPG) firms once were more or less dormant until the first pang of winter.

This seasonal slack has been the object of much market research by the industry. The object is to find summer markets for their fuels. The addition of year-round business is fine, of course, but the real goal is to find a market that begins when the winter heating season ends.

One field that meets this requirement is agriculture. The sellers of LP gas are among the most active in the pursuit of farm business.

FARMERS already have benefited from petrolaum industry research, and the future may hold startling new advances brought about by this research.

For example, Whirlpool Corp. has developed an amazing process using natural gas or LP gas that retards the maturity of fruit at any desired point.

The Whirlpool device, developed at the firm's Benton Harbor, Mich., plant, is in its second year of testing. Installed in a warehouse, it keeps apples for up to six months in the same condition as they were when picked.

The exact process is a well-kept secret, but the device creates an atmosphere in storage places that retards ripening. Whirlpool reportedly plans to test it soon on vegetables and even dairy products.

FLAME CULTIVATION is a relatively new agricultural operation that is paying off both for the farmers and the firms that sell them LP gas. Used on row crops primarily, it involves burners pulled behind a tractor through the crop rows.

The process started out as a method of killing weeds between rows of plants. But it was soon learned that plants exposed to the flame developed deeper roots and grew stronger.

Flame cultivation now is being used on cotton, soybeans, corn and other crops. It strengthens corn stalks and helps them survive strong winds.

TOBACCO still is dried and cured in the traditional loft barns, but now heat is easily controlled at the desired temperature by using gas in place of the old wood fires. Gas leaves no residue on the tobacco leaves.

Farmers find gas at work for them doing everything from burning vegetation out of irrigation ditches to refrigerating products bound for market by road, rail and water. (BB

Predicts Future Growth In Energy Use Will Spiral

ST. LOUIS, (UPI) — Joseph C. Swidler, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, predicted that the nation may be using the energy equivalent to 15 billion tons of coal per year within the next century.

Swidler said, at the present time, we now use the equivalent of two billion tons per year and "we are likely to be using the equivalent of three and one-third billion tons in 1980 . . ."

The official told 400 delegates to the Electrical World Energy Transportation Conference, "A vast and even revolutionary change in the patterns of energy use and transportation has come about in the last century."

HE SAID the growth in energy use is the result of developments in energy transportation.

"In the last generation we have witnessed the emergence of great new energy transportation industries," Swidler said. "Perhaps the greatest is the fuel pipeline."

Swidler also praised water, highway and rail transport.

F. G. RINCHLIFFE, chairman of the board of Philadelphia Electric Co., predicted, "Within 20 years, the useful energy conversion rate will approach 3,000 billion kilowatt hours per year."

At the present time, Rinchliffe said, the United States extracts energy from coal, oil, gas, water and nuclear materials "at an annual rate of one-thousand-billion kilowatt-hours." (BB

Accountants Get CPA Certificates

Accountants living in the northwest suburban area were among 193 recipients of Illinois CPA certificates presented at the recent annual awards dinner of the Illinois Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Certificates were given to: Richard E. George Jr., 145 Villa St., Addison; Charles D. Gustafson, 1102 Hawthorne, Arlington Heights; Harold R. Warman, 1115 N. State Road, Arlington Heights; Margaret E. Schabow, 917 Medinah St., Bensenville.

Also, Don R. Daseke, 976 Maple Lane, Elk Grove Village; James T. Arnold, 131 S. Kenilworth St., Mount Prospect; Louis H. Newtson, 219 N. Prospect Manor, Mount Prospect; Elwyn C. Winland, 1403 E. Lowden Lane, Mount Prospect, and Edmund R. Meyer Jr., 436 N. MacArthur St., Palatine.

TIMOTHY W. Swain, Peoria, University of Illinois Board of Trustee member, presented the CPA certificates.

Laurence J. Taylor, vice-president of Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich. was the principal speaker and discussed "Subject to Change Without Notice."

Frederick L. Hahn, Highland Park, was awarded a gold medal and Richard F. Page, Glenview, received a silver medal. These men received the highest grades among more than 12,000 papers in the May examination.

The Illinois Society of CPA's has honored new CPA's at dinner twice annually for 25 years. The Society has awarded 9,063 certificates, including the Oct. 31 awards. Superior achievement medals have been awarded by the Illinois Society since 1914.

Drought Perils Trees and Shrubs

The Illinois Nurserymen's Association warned home owners to expect serious damage and possible loss of some trees and shrubs unless watered heavily before the soil freezes.

The prolonged drought in most areas throughout the state has left plants with insufficient root moisture to withstand the drying effect of cold weather, the Association explained.

EVERGREENS, it was pointed out, are especially vulnerable because leaves and needles continue through the winter to draw moisture from the roots to replace that lost by evaporation. An inadequate reserve of soil moisture will result in "burning" and oftentimes loss of plants.

Area directors of the Association include Victor E. de St. Aubin, Jr. of Eugene A. de St. Aubin and Bro., Inc., Addison, and Carl Klehm and Son Nursery, Arlington Heights.

Made Chairman

Elmer R. Schuemann, superintendent of transportation and safety for United Motor Coach Co., Des Plaines, was elected general chairman of the Transit section of the National Safety Council at its Golden Anniversary Safety Congress and Exposition held in Chicago.

Rome Takes Course In Water Chemistry

ALVIN P. ROME

Alvin P. Rome has been granted a diploma certifying his successful completion of a water chemistry course sponsored by the Water Conditioning Foundation. Rome is a service manager of the Rainsoft Co. with offices at 1950 Estes Ave., Elk Grove Village.

Rome enrolled in the Foundation training program to enable him to better serve the needs of consumers in his area.

HE REPORTS that nearly all water supplies call for some type of treatment within the home in order to provide families with the ultimate in satisfaction and usefulness with regard to water.

The Foundation training course is presented in a series of 12 individualized lessons.

Each of the 12 lessons covers some phase of the complex subject of water treatment. Detailed explanations of the water cycle in nature, basic chemistry, hard water and its treatment plus iron, manganese, tastes, odors and turbidity are but a few of the subjects treated in the course. (BB

Second Car Care A Growing Concern

How to care for the second car is becoming the concern of an increasing number of U.S. families.

According to figures compiled by the Automobile Manufacturing Association, multi-car households have increased 90 per cent in the past eight years. Last year some 7.9 million U.S. families owned two or more autos.

John H. Struben, director of emergency road service for the Chicago Motor Club, points out that it is extremely important that the second car receive the same sound mechanical care that is given the first car.

In many cases, Struben said, the second car is an older model, purchased used, or acquired new and retained by the family for several years after the purchase of a new car.

OLDER CARS require the same care as new models, the motor club official said, but sometimes the second auto—if it is an older car—is neglected. This might happen if the second car is driven by members of the family who are not as familiar with car maintenance as the husband or father.

Systematic maintenance of an auto always is essential for driving safety, Struben said, but if the car is used to drive the children to school or other destinations, auto safety takes on additional importance, he added.

THE PERSON who knows most about car maintenance should have the final responsibility to see that the car receives proper mechanical attention, Struben said.

Auto care for old and new cars alike should not be a careless procedure, Struben said, but should be done on a regular basis using as a guide the recommendations of the auto manufacturer. These recommendations usually are contained in the owner's manual.

Liquor Industry Reports Big Taxes

Alcoholic beverage industry salaries and taxes enlarged the Illinois economy by $467,387,024 during 1962, according to a state economic study prepared and released by Licensed Beverage Industries, Inc.

State and local revenues derived from taxes on alcoholic beverages amounted to $79,039,024. This includes the general retail sales tax.

Salaries paid to the 73,282 persons directly employed by the industry in Illinois totaled $388,348,000.

Today, the nation's alcoholic beverage industry represents an investment of more than $10 billion dollars. In its manufacturing, wholesaling and retailing establishments it provides employment for more than 1,300,000 persons who earn $5.2 billion in wages and salaries annually.

Since national repeal, the federal treasury has collected more than $59 billion in direct taxes on alcoholic beverages with state and local governments collecting an additional $22 billion.

A Failure

A man may fall many times. But, he won't be a failure until he says somebody pushed him.

Today's Agriculture

by Robert E. Hood, Assistant Farm Adviser

Should we sell wheat to Russia? This question is being asked by many people. L. H. Simerl, Extension Economist, at the University of Illinois, recently presented the following discussion of the question.

The Russian wheat situation has stirred up more questions than we have heard since the kids stopped asking them because they had learned all the answers.

We find that our friends have many different feelings about selling wheat to Russians. Some say that the famine was sent to punish the Russian leaders and that we ought not intervene. Others feel that their moral convictions require giving help to those in need, or at least selling food to them, if they pay in cash.

We have two alternatives. We could sell wheat to Russia or not. Now suppose we had decided not to sell. This fact would have been conveyed to the Russian people by the politically controlled newspapers and radio and TV stations. It seems very likely that we would have been pictured in a very bad light. Although many Russians now have a favorable attitude toward Americans, they would hold a much less favorable view after seeing their children go hungry for a few months.

Our image would also suffer in many other countries, especially those wavering between communism and private enterprise. The communist elements in those countries would picture us as selfish and inhuman for holding great hoards of food and refusing to sell it to hungry people. There would be enough truth in their stories to make strong anti-American propaganda.

Even if we did not sell wheat directly to Russia, they would likely get some of our wheat indirectly. We sell wheat to many foreign buyers each year. We probably could not prevent them from reselling United States wheat to Russia.

Even if we did succeed in preventing such resales, intermediate countries would likely sell part of their own crops to Russia and buy from us to meet their own needs.

In summary, our real choice was between selling wheat directly to Russia and making wheat available indirectly. The direct sale seems to have more advantages, or fewer disadvantages.

But what about those subsidies? Will the American taxpayer get stuck with the bill? He is already stuck with the bill, about $1.5 billion a year. Any export sales that can be made for cash will reduce the taxpayer's burden.

Government farm programs have kept our farm prices of wheat at $1.80 to $2.00 a bushel in recent years. This is 50 to 70 cents higher than going prices in international wheat markets. To sell in these markets our grain dealers have to offer wheat for 50 to 70 cents a bushel less than they paid for it. They can do this only if and when the government makes up the difference between what the dealers have to pay for wheat and the price that they can get in foreign markets.

Much of the wheat that we export, however, brings no cash to the United States. It is shipped under special surplus disposal — foreign aid programs. The taxpayer pays the whole bill, often including freight and amounting to $2.50 or more a bushel.

The cost to taxpayers would be much less if wheat were sold to Russia for cash, even at reduced prices, than it would be if wheat were shipped to other countries under surplus disposal programs. (BB

Liquor Industry Reports Big Taxes

Alcoholic beverage industry salaries and taxes enlarged the Illinois economy by $467,387,024 during 1962, according to a state economic study prepared and released by Licensed Beverage Industries, Inc.

State and local revenues derived from taxes on alcoholic beverages amounted to $79,039,024. This includes the general retail sales tax.

Should we sell wheat to Russia? This question is being asked by many people. L. H. Simerl, Extension Economist, at the University of Illinois, recently presented the following discussion of the question.

The Russian wheat situation has stirred up more questions than we have heard since the kids stopped asking them because they had learned all the answers.

We find that our friends have many different feelings about selling wheat to Russians. Some say that the famine was sent to punish the Russian leaders and that we ought not intervene. Others feel that their moral convictions require giving help to those in need, or at least selling food to them, if they pay in cash.

We have two alternatives. We could sell wheat to Russia or not. Now suppose we had decided not to sell. This fact would have been conveyed to the Russian people by the politically controlled newspapers and radio and TV stations. It seems very likely that we would have been pictured in a very bad light. Although many Russians now have a favorable attitude toward Americans, they would hold a much less favorable view after seeing their children go hungry for a few months.

Our image would also suffer in many other countries, especially those wavering between communism and private enterprise. The communist elements in those countries would picture us as selfish and inhuman for holding great hoards of food and refusing to sell it to hungry people. There would be enough truth in their stories to make strong anti-American propaganda.

Even if we did not sell wheat directly to Russia, they would likely get some of our wheat indirectly. We sell wheat to many foreign buyers each year. We probably could not prevent them from reselling United States wheat to Russia.

Even if we did succeed in preventing such resales, intermediate countries would likely sell part of their own crops to Russia and buy from us to meet their own needs.

In summary, our real choice was between selling wheat directly to Russia and making wheat available indirectly. The direct sale seems to have more advantages, or fewer disadvantages.

But what about those subsidies? Will the American taxpayer get stuck with the bill? He is already stuck with the bill, about $1.5 billion a year. Any export sales that can be made for cash will reduce the taxpayer's burden.

Government farm programs have kept our farm prices of wheat at $1.80 to $2.00 a bushel in recent years. This is 50 to 70 cents higher than going prices in international wheat markets. To sell in these markets our grain dealers have to offer wheat for 50 to 70 cents a bushel less than they paid for it. They can do this only if and when the government makes up the difference between what the dealers have to pay for wheat and the price that they can get in foreign markets.

Much of the wheat that we export, however, brings no cash to the United States. It is shipped under special surplus disposal — foreign aid programs. The taxpayer pays the whole bill, often including freight and amounting to $2.50 or more a bushel.

The cost to taxpayers would be much less if wheat were sold to Russia for cash, even at reduced prices, than it would be if wheat were shipped to other countries under surplus disposal programs. (BB

Firm Tells Trend For Holiday Time

This could be described as a year when the strong trend away from employe Christmas parties, gifts from suppliers to customers and other aspects of corporate holiday celebrity picked up added steam.

There will be fewer parties for employes, less to eat and drink at those that are being given, and more companies not giving gifts to important customers. This is a far cry from business holiday practices of a decade ago.

Management Information Center, Deerfield, business research and publishing company, has just completed its study of 1963 holiday practices. A selected group of 183 companies, representing many types of business and industry, large and small organizations, union and nonunion throughout the United States and Canada were surveyed.

CHRISTMAS and New Year's Day this year come in midweek, Wednesday. This eliminates the long weekend such as we had last year when many companies closed the Monday before each holiday, giving employes a four-day weekend. But things are not too bad at that, MIC finds:

Eighty-eight per cent of the surveyed companies will give employes at least a half-day off Christmas Eve — a goodly number giving the full day before the holiday off.

A small number of companies plan to give employes Christmas and the full day following to get over the celebration.

THE NEW YEAR'S picture isn't as generous. Seventy per cent of the firms surveyed plan to give only New Year's Day. Thirty per cent will give anywhere from a few hours to half a day to let employes have a head start into the evening. Only one organization of all reporting plans to give employes the full day off on New Year's Eve.

Few organizations (less than eight per cent) are making changes in policy this year — other than the fact that a weekend isn't involved with the holidays as was the case in 1962. Of the changes contemplated, all but one are toward more liberal practices. (BB

HINTS TO HOMEOWNERS

by James Fizzell, Associate Farm Advisor

ALERT HOMEOWNERS DIAL DAILY 392-3060

Most rose gardeners are aware that hybrid roses are not 100 per cent hardy in this climate. How well a rose plant withstands winter weather depends on the condition of the plant, and the way in which low temperature occurs.

Plants that have had proper care throughout the growing season are more likely to withstand severe winters than unhealthy plants since healthy plants are able to manufacture the maximum amount of sugars and to mature properly.

Fluctuating winter temperatures are much harder on roses than consistently low temperatures.

IN OUR climate, these fluctuating temperatures predominate, so it is essential to give the plants protection which will serve, not to keep them warm, but to avoid sudden changes in temperature.

With small hybrid teas and floribundas, the best way is to mound up soil around the base of the plant. The pile of soil should be 8 to 10 inches high. Do this after the first killing frost, while the ground can still be worked. Be sure when gathering the soil around the plant not to expose any roots. It is probably better to bring soil from another part of the yard, than to risk damage to roots while scraping around among the roses. Hold the soil in place with tar-paper collars which fit around the plant.

If you do not have sufficient soil to cover your plants use mulching materials such as coarse peat, ground corncobs, coarse vermiculite or straw.

Prune back long canes on bush roses to keep them from being whipped about by winter winds.

TREE ROSES are quite susceptible to winter injury. In protected locations, the top can be wrapped with straw and covered with burlap.

In exposed locations, the plant should be pulled over to one side and covered with soil or straw. Do this by digging under the roots on one side until the plant can be pulled over without completely breaking all connections with the soil. Tie the end securely so it is not tossed about by winter winds.

Proper attention to preparing your roses for winter will insure that they will come through even the most severe winter in the best possible condition.

NOW THAT the leaves have fallen, it is a good time to prune trees and fall blooming shrubs. Thin out about one-fourth of the oldest branches of the shrubs and cut back the remaining branches to a good size shoot or bud.

Remove the least desirable of any branches on the trees. Avoid narrow V-crotches on the trees. When one begins to develop, cut off one of the branches. Remove sucker growth on the inner portions of the large branches.

When removing large branches, cut upward (under cut) the branch three inches from the trunk. When the branch falls, it will not split the trunk. Remove the remaining stub by cutting as close to the tree as possible. Tree wounds always heal from the sides in, not from the top and bottom. Because of this, an elipitical, vertical wound will heal faster than a round one. Paint any large wounds with asphalt base tree paint.

An excellent bulletin on pruning trees and shrubs is available free of charge from the Extension Service Office, 201 N. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights, Ill.

With the coming of the holiday season your household will be receiving flowers either as gifts or for everyday use as decorations. There are few things which will brighten up a room or lend a friendly atmosphere as well as fresh flowers.

Every florist uses all means available to him to get your flowers to you in the best possible condition, but it is up to you to take proper measures to insure maximum life of the flowers.

WHEN CUT flowers are received, cut off about one inch of the bottom of the stems and immediately immerse them in warm water. If possible, the flowers should be put in a cool place for a couple of hours until they pick up water before being arranged and displayed. If you receive an arrangement, be sure to add water. Many arrangements are delivered dry.

Recent research has shown that treating water so that it has the proper acidity, has some sugar as food for the flowers and has something to prevent bacterial growth in the water will often double the cut life of such flowers as roses and carnations.

Florist use ready made floral preservatives and often provide a small envelope of the material with cut flower deliveries. You can get floral preservatives at your neighborhood florist the next time you stop in.

DIFFERENT types of flowers vary in the length of time they stay fresh after they are cut. Some, such as carnations and chrysanthemums, will often keep from two to three weeks. More delicate flowers such as roses, snapdragons, and stocks are not as long lived even under the best conditions. However, proper care will help to make these flowers last the maximum time possible.

Pot plants, too, need care for best performance. Most plants do not like the warm dry air we have in our homes. Keeping the plants in a cool and moist place at night, and bringing them out during the day will sometimes double the life.

Pot plants need frequent but careful watering. If the pot is covered with foil, punch a hole in the bottom so the water will run out, and set it in a saucer. After watering, pour the excess water out of the saucer.

SOME PLANTS, such as poinsettias, are very sensitive. Drafts, sudden temperature changes, improper watering or too little light causes the leaves to drop.

Flowering pot plants do require a little extra attention, but the reward is well worth the effort.

An excellent publication on care of these plants is available for the asking from our extension offices. (BB

Railway Pays Big Tax Bill

CHICAGO, (UPI) — The Chicago and North Western Railway reported that its 1962 taxes on railroad operating properties in Illinois, paid this year, equalled $2,819,203.

The five counties of Cook, Lake, McHenry, DuPage and Kane, where the line runs a commuter service, absorbed almost $2 million of the tax payment, North Western said. In Cook, Lake and McHenry Counties, the North Western is the largest railroad taxpayer, officials said.

Cook County received more than half of the road's tax payments. The line's property taxes in Chicago exceeded $833,000 and in Cook County (including the city) were $1,427,834.

SOME PLANTS, such as poinsettias, are very sensitive. Drafts, sudden temperature changes, improper watering or too little light causes the leaves to drop.

Flowering pot plants do require a little extra attention, but the reward is well worth the effort.

An excellent publication on care of these plants is available for the asking from our extension offices. (BB

Ordered to Halt Fraudulent Sales

PEORIA (UPI) — A permanent injunction was obtained in Peoria County Circuit Court by Atty. Gen. William G. Clark to stop a Chicago firm from "fraudulently" selling aluminum siding in Illinois.

Clark's injunction named the Stanley Building & Development Co. at 188 W. Randolph St. Chicago, and its officers and agents, Norman Troyan, Joseph Du Val, Joseph Gatus and Steve Allen.

Clark said the company violated provisions of the consumer fraud act by "falsely" informing homeowners siding would be installed free of charge on their homes if they permitted the homes to be viewed by prospective siding customers.

Seven contracts were signed by Peoria residents and two by Decatur residents, Clark said.

Agents of Stanley also "falsely" informed the homeowners they represented the Reynolds Metal Co. The homeowners were told the siding would be installed free and the homeowners would be given commissions of sales if their homes were used as models.

Other homeowners were told their homes would be shown on television and that they would receive other "benefits," such as the company paying off mortgages on automobiles and washing machines owned by them or the company footing the bill for other home repairs. ((BB

Traps Best Way To Catch Mice

Every year with the first hint of cold weather, Illinois homes are invaded by mice.

Even in this age of chemical control, traps are the most satisfactory control for these unwelcome visitors, says Glen Sanderson, wildlife specialist with the Illinois Natural History Survey and the University of Illinois.

Traps are inexpensive and easy to place, and the mice can be disposed of so they will leave no odor in the house, says Sanderson.

The best bait is peanut butter mixed with a little rancid bacon grease. If a mouse doesn't spring the trap, tie a small piece of bacon or a raisin to the treadle with a thread, advises Sanderson.

Around the house, Sanderson suggests anticoagulants or red squill-type poisons only if trapping doesn't control the invaders.

In outbuildings where odor is not a problem, Sanderson says to use poisons, preferably anticoagulants, placed 8 to 12 feet apart. Mice travel only short distances, says Sanderson. Bait stations should be covered to protect the poison from rain and pets.

Anticoagulants kill mice and rats with no pain, Sanderson adds, but they must eat the bait for 3 to 14 days before it will kill them. (BB

New System Weighs Moving Train Cars

CHICAGO, (UPI)—Two railroads have put into operation a revolutionary new weighing system that will weigh freight cars while coupled and in motion.

International Railroads Weighing Corp., Northfield, Ill., which developed the system, said it would relieve the perennial shortage of freight cars in the future.

WHILE old-fashioned static scales can weigh three cars in eight minutes, the new system can handle 75 cars in eight minutes. Spokesmen said many more hours would be saved by elimination of delays in weighing.

The new system makes possible the weighing of individual freight cars while coupled in a moving train by eliminating the bind in the couplers.

The system was put into use by Western Maryland Railroad in its Baltimore, Md., freight yard and by Reading Railroad in the Reading, Pa., yard.

New Rule on High School Equivalency

Under a new regulation which became effective Nov. 4, 1963, county superintendents of schools are authorized to accept the test report for qualified adults who have previously passed the GED tests administered by the United States Armed Forces Institute, official VTS agencies in other states or Veterans Administration hospitals.

The new regulation provides for acceptance of test results for such adults, regardless of the age of testing, but they must be 21 years or older at the time of issuance of a High School Equivalency Certificate.

The requirement for the applicant to have passed the Constitution examination before issuance of a certificate still remains. Any person 21 years of age who has passing grades from the GED test and has passed the examination on the Constitutions of the United States and State of Illinois is eligible to apply for a High School Equivalency Certificate.

If a person has not met the Constitution requirements the examination may be taken at the county superintendent's office. If a person is in service, the examination may be sent to the education advisor to administer.
